was deterred from doing so by Davis, who feared that the Indians would turn upon them and kill them all. He said further that he always intended to have satisfaction out of them for stealing the immber, and that he wouldn's get a better chance than was presented that night. There would be no danger in destroying them, as he would the up the sail and rudder, put the bodies in, and send them adrift upon the lake. Until Davis drew his attention to it, Nelson had not neticed a boat drawn up upon the beach. He had not seeing any poat with the Indians, as they had comes to camp on foot. Davis tapped his rifls and remarked. There's the lady that is good for two of them, and we're good for the other one with the axe." Then he made threats against the lives of several others, whom he mentioned, because they had offended him in various ways. He worked himself into such a passion that he trembled and foamed at the mouth. He remained this way for a couple of hours, when he said, "Are you going to help me kill these beggars?" Nelson tried to persuade him not to carry out his design, but he took Nelson by the collar and dragged him out of the camp. Nelson tried to free himself, but Davis threatened to hit him with the axe, and fearing that the threat would be carried into execution, he went along quietty. Nelson again tried to dissuade him from his purpose, but as he was speaking Davis raised his rifle and fired. Two Indians were lying sleeping by the fire, and as the rifle was discharged they threw up their hands and feet. The third one jumped up and was making towards the boat, when Davis fired the second barrel The Indian did not fall until he reached the boat, when he leaned across its bow. The night was very dark, and as Davis ran towards the fire, where there were two oars. He graspod one of the oars, and going to the boat, he fell, and dropping the rifle, could not recover it on account of the darkness. He got up, ran towards the fire, where there were two oars. The tatal occurrence was the result of a drunken fight between hushand and wife, in which the latter used as are inflicting such wounds that death ensued two days after the affray. The Hon R. W. Scott was the Crown presentor in the case, and Messers. N. Sparks and Wm. Mosgrove appearedfor the defence. The prisoner pleaded not guilty. The imprisonment seems to have told on Mrs. Sabourin, who appeared pale and haggard. The members of the Sabourin family, consisting of four girls, two grown up, and two small boys, wers in Court, the large ones having been summoned as witnesses in the case.

Briograf Sabourin, such was first called, testified that her father assaulted her mother, who used an axe in defence, striking several blows, but none after the deceased fell on the floor. She said her father often forced her mother to drink liquor, and at times when she refused, he threw the liquor in her mother's face; that on one occasion he bit a piece of her mother's chin off, spitting the piece out of his mouth; that deceased was in the habit of late years of ill-treating her mother, calling her, at times, hard names.

Charles Reade, for an author of his reputation, has managed better than most writers to keep the knowledge of his personal life from the public. Very little is known about him, and yet, in the number and virility of his works, he is one of the foremost writers of the day. Like Diokens, he delights to take up subjects which lead to reform, and have noise in them, and has been apparently indifferent as to the opinion the public might have of him. He was born in 1814, and was graduated at Magdalen College, Oxford, some twenty years later. He is said to be very fond of his old college, where he had a Fellowship. In 1843 he was called to the bar at Lincoln's Inn, and thence passed into the field of authorship. In his books, two points or you are yearnly; ene is his pronounced epinion of an auti-Malthusian, the other, his profound contempt for the art of Government as understood in these days. He has none of the qualities of an orator or a popular tribune, but this does not prevent his being ambitious. He talks very much as he writes, and is strong in the belief that his books will live. He usually names his own terms to editors, and has what he asks. For a story in the Cornhill he was paid at the rate of three guineas a page, with absolute right of reproduction. His earliest literary work, dated in 1852, "Maske and Facea," was a comedy, his first novel. "Peg Woffington," appeared to 1852, "Maske and Facea," was a comedy, his first novel. SOCIALISM IN GERMANY. OPERATION OF THE REPRESSION LAW EX-

Berlin, May 4.

In a debate on the third reading of the Auti-Socialist Bill to-day, the Reichetag rejected an amendment proposed by Herr Leicheusferger, that the law should continue in force one year only, and adopted the bill by 191 to 94, prolonging the operation until September 30th, 1884, and providing that the law empowering local authorities to refuse right of residence to persons already expelled by them should not apply to members of the Reichetag, or other legislatures who remain at the seats of their respective legislatures during the seasions. During the debate Herr Leebknechb was called to order for insulting a Deputy, and Herr Hasselman fer saying German workmen were using forced to act the same as Russian anarchists.

The President of the Reichetag had a conference with Bismarck, and it was settled the House should close on the 11th of May.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—At a meeting of the Board of Supervisors last evening, the Judiciary Committee expressed the opinion Mayor Kalloch is unscrupulous, unprincipled, devoid of integrity and fidelity to public interests, and that the time had arrived for people to express their condemnation of his acts, and recommend prompt action to vindicate the name of the municipality by Judicial enquiry into the Kalloch case. The motion to adopt the report was put by Mayor Kalloch, who announced it was carried. Throughout the reading of the report and resolution Mayor Kalloch appeared unmoved, appearing to consider only the dignity of his position as presiding efficer.

Pollockville, N.C., May 4.—Yester-day Moses Miller and Alex. A race to reach her residence, a mile distant, ensued. Miller arrived first, and Bibb followed soon after, and fell fainting in the doorway from his exertion. Miss Loyd said the man who won the race was the best runner, but the man who fainted was the most ardent lover, and married Bibb.

QUEBEC, May 4.—No further trouble has occurred in connection with restrictions. coourred in connection with yesterday's rick. The ship laborers, however, had the sahifaction of seeing the steamhip Sociland arrive in pert and proceed to Montreal without stopping. They claim that such can be done so long as the water is so high in Lake St. Peter, but as soon as it falls too low for reasels or steamers fully laden to pass through the channel, then they will be certain that employment must be given them. Further disturbance is, therefore, certain when that time arrives. The parent society declare their peatitive intention not to allow the members of the Union Canadienne to work at reduced rates. They affirm that $4 per diem is not too high a price, as many of them are obliged to remain in Quebec during the winter season, and so are dependent on their savings for a livelihood at that time. On the other hand the new society adhere to their reduced rates of $2 per diem, and are willing to work at that rate if proteoted in so doing.

MONDAY'S RIOT.

No fatal result has so far attended yestenday's doings, nor is such now apprehended, but the fact remains the same that peaceful ditzens were shot down in cold blood, their only offence being an effort to gain an honest livelihood. It is now known that by the advice of the Rev. Father Godbout, care of St. Roohs, the French district of the city, the members of the new society went to their work yesterday unarmed; that they will do so again is highly improbable, especially as it is known that members of the parent society are not only all armed with revolvers, but in many instances are possessed of repeating rides, which were purchased in the States and brought here this spring by members returning from Pensacols.

London, May 4.—Edward Bradley, a tailor, was drowned in the river some three miles below this city this forenoon while boating in company with a friend named James Tolton. They had with them a couple of bottles of liquor, and probably under its influence Bradley began rocking the boat from side to side in a spirit of bravado. He was cautioned to desist, but would not. At length he lost his balance and fell into the water. Tolton sprang to his help, but also fell, or was dragged in, and in saving himself had to leave Bradley perish. He came to the city covered with mud, and reported the fate of his companion, when men were sent with grappling irons to search for Bradley's body. They have not yet been successful. The body was found to nigth at about ten o'clock, at the water works dam, by draining off the water. Deceased leaves a wife and two children.

St. Catharines, May 4.—There is a rumor current here which has not been confirmed that the stove works in this city will be re-opened. The report has it that Mesers. Norris, Neelon and Merritt have purchased the interests of the other stockholders in the company, and intend to push the business for all it is worth.

London, Ont., May 3.—Mr. Sutton, an Englishman, who has been many years engaged in cotton manufactuaing in England, is here seeking to start a large factory. He asks a bonus from the city, and proposes, therefor, to build a factory 250 feet by 90, and to give constant work to 300 or 400 hands brought from England. The project meets with favour.

Otrawa, May 3.—As an evidence the revival in the tumber trade, a gentleman well informed in the business says a sale of culls was recontly effected at prices almost double those of the previous year. Oulis that brought only 48.6 hast year are now commanding $17.50. It is said to be the intention of the mill owners to raise the wages of their men to an average of about $1.50 per day.

Mostrant, May 3.—A very large trade will be done this season between this city and the Maritime Provinces in coal. Ten steamers of large carrying capacity, and a fiest of saling ships have been chartered, and will be engaged in conveying the coal to this port. One Cape erston coal mine owner has confracted to deliver 100,000 tons here this season. In any good year previously he has not sold 30,000 tons in Montreal.
