GODERICH, Aug. 20, 1873.

The Situation.

The 13th of August has come and gone. The people of Canada know the events of that day, which will ever mark ral seems to have become a willing instrument in the hands of Sir John A. Macdonald, and while we are not willing too severely to blame Lord Dufferin he has done. Although we think Lord Dufferin has forever lost the high place he at one time seemed likely to take in the confidence and affections of the people of Canada, we will still ever treat him with at least the silent respect due to the representative of the Sovereign. We trust he will act more wisely in his future course in this matter, his past act is at best a blunder, to continue in the same course would be a crime. It is with the ministry, however, that we have mainly to do. They have made common cause with Sir John on the Pacific Scandal, and are a unit on the constitutional question and must now stand or fall together. No sane man will for a moment admit the plea that "the inferior members" of the Government do not know the plans of their

The events of the 13th of August have confirmed all the suspicions of the country in regard to the guilt of the ministry in the matter of the Pacific Scandal. It is in vain to reason further in the question. The ministry are afraid of Parliamentary investigation, and the prorogation is but another move in the desperate game of fence to which the ministry are driven in their crime. corrupted, a commission may be tampered with, a white washing report may some places but it is hoped not to such be produced by the commission, but all an extent as to do any great harm.

of the prerogative. Silently, calmly, not long distant, when justice shall triumph over trickery. But a question whose importance far overshadows the Pacific Scandal has been forced as an issue between the ministry and the people of Canada. That is the usurpation by the ministry of the power of priliament. In vain does the ministerial press exclaim the Governor General has appointed a commission of competent and honourable men. The country replies, we alone have the right in the circumstances to appoint a commission, and no man on earth should usurp the the poople have put in the hands of parliament. The people thoroughly understand the true issue and no attempt the ministerial of the program of the poople have put in the hands of parliament.
