Mining Boom On West Coast

ST. GEORGE'S TO BE A SHIPPING PORT OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Reports from the West Coast indicate that great activity in the coal fields, gypsum and iron deposits, situated near St. George's is about to begin. All these minerals will be shipped from St. George's and the harbor is destined to become one of great importance. The coal fields are but 20 miles away, the gypsum deposits are only 4½ miles inland, whilst eight miles distant are valuable iron deposits, which need only capital to develop. Already a survey for a line of tram or railway from the gypsum deposits to St. George's has been completed and the work of quarrying the mineral will begin shortly. The company interested propose erecting plants for converting the raw material into the different gypsum products. A number of men are now engaged in preliminary work and when the plant is completed permanent employment will be found for about 350 men. The company hold 23 mining claims or 11½ square miles and an inexhaustible supply of gypsum can be obtained by surface mining. The plant is being erected with a view to a 1500 ton per day output. A survey of St. George's Harbor is now being made to ascertain the cost of dredging to permit of vessels of 25 feet draught entering, as the bar across the channel permits at present only vessels drawing 15 feet to pass. As the whole bottom is of sand no serious difficulty is anticipated in this connection.

Preliminary Enquiry

It is understood that the enquiry into the charges against Sir Richard Squires will proceed next week. At the previous session Mr. Meeney refused to give evidence fearing that it might incriminate himself, and since then the Crown Counsel has been engaged in looking up other witnesses. Hon. F. Gordon Bradley has been retained by the Crown to prosecute in the charge of defamatory libel preferred against Hon. Dr. Moesell by Sir John Crosbie. The enquiry will probably begin next week.

Doctors Who Give Drinks Scored By Colleague

CHICAGO, June 12 (A.P.)—Measures against unscrupulous physicians who make illegal prescriptions of alcohol, were urged by Dr. Joseph A. Capps of Chicago, chairman of the section on practice of medicine of the American Medical Association, in an address before its convention here recently.

"One of the most flagrant instances of irrational therapeutics is the abuse of the physician's license to prescribe alcohol," the speaker asserted. "It is well known that most of the liquor dispensed on physicians' prescriptions is not intended for the treatment of the sick. Whatever as individuals we may think of the 'voluntary' law, we are morally bound to restrict prescriptions to medicinal purposes. Selling one's prescription blanks to the druggist is worse than false splitting, and should be cause for exclusion from membership in this association."

Other unscientific tendencies in the practice of medicine cited by Dr. Capps were the promiscuous use of vaccines for disease in which they give no help, the growing use of gland extracts for treating various body functions, and the injecting of medicine into the blood, which is a dangerous practice, even in emergencies. All of these practices owe their being to the fact that in each field there has been limited work done by true scientists.

"A horde of therapeutic promoters and speculators have followed the productive wells drilled by scientists," Dr. Capps declared. "New methods should be tried out by research workers and approved by the association. In much of our so-called specific therapy of to-day, the general practitioner assumes the role of experimentalist without the clinical facilities, the training, or the experience, to enable him to pass judgment on their worth."

One Smile for Ed. is Gungirl's Plea

Bobbed-Hair Bandit Wants to Cheer Up Her Husband Before They Part.

"I'm satisfied. The Judge gave me what I deserve." So declared Mrs. Cecelia Cooney, the "bobbed-hair bandit," in her cell in Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn. She referred to the sentence of ten to twenty years in prison imposed upon her by Judge Martin. Then, with a smile that was not wholly natural, "I'm feeling wonderful. All I want now is a chance to see Ed. (Edward Cooney, her husband, also under sentence) to cheer him up. He'll feel better when he sees me smile."

Despite this "front," it was evident Mrs. Cooney was afraid of what awaits her at Auburn Prison, whence she is awaiting transportation and where she will long be separated from her husband.

This was corroborated by Warden Honeck, who said Mrs. Cooney is extremely nervous and under a high tension. Her husband will be given a chance to see her smile before she is sent away, the Warden said.

Asked if she had anything to say for the people of Brooklyn before she said goodby, the girl answered: "No, nothing."

Judge Martin has signed the necessary papers crediting the couple with thirteen days in jail. These days will be deducted from their stay in prison. Mr. and Mrs. Michael Roth, the girl's parents, and her sister, May Roth visited her.

Migrating Ducks

CARRY EGGS OF FISH TO INLAND RESERVOIRS.

PITTSBURGH, June 13—A popular belief that fish are placed in reservoirs for purification purposes, is discredited by E. E. Lanpher, superintendent of the distribution division of the Pittsburgh water bureau.

"It is an old notion that fish serve to keep down bacteria in water," Lanpher said, "but our bacteriologist says this idea cannot be substantiated. On the other hand, fish do no harm."

"Although many persons think the fish are put in the reservoirs to purify the water in the form of eggs that have lodged in the bills and feet of ducks. The ducks pause on the surface of the water in their flights in the spring and fall and the eggs, which are washed off while the ducks are swimming, soon hatch out."

My Twenty Years of Police Adventure

(By EX-INSPECTOR JOSEPH SANDERCOCK.)

"From the time you took me into custody on Easter Sunday, and again took me to the Tower on Easter Tuesday, you showed me the best side of an Englishman's character—his native good heart."

These words are from a letter sent to me by Sir Roger Casement, who was hanged for high treason. I received him into custody at Ruston Station, and he was perhaps the most important political prisoner who passed through my hands during the twenty years I spent in the Special Branch of Scotland Yard.

On a Traitor's Track.
On Easter Sunday of 1915 I received instructions to proceed to Willesden Junction and there take over Sir Roger Casement from some Irish Soldiers. Casement was travelling first class. He was sitting between two soldiers, looking very cold and woebegone. And he was wearing the same clothes as those he had on at four o'clock on the morning of the previous Good Friday. Then, as the tide was rising on the west coast of Ireland, off Currane, County Kerry, John McCarthy, a farmer, who was walking along the shore, saw a boat and four oars floating in.

He found a dagger in the boat, and half buried in the sand he came upon a tin box tied with cord. The footprints of three men were visible. On his journey home the farmer saw his small children playing with revolvers, so he sent for the police.

A little later Casement was discovered in an old fort. He had been landed from a submarine, and the clothes he wore were soaked. In one of his pockets was found a railway ticket showing that he had recently travelled in Germany.

Thus did the notorious Roger Casement come into custody. When I saw him in the train he seemed absolutely down and out, a sharp contrast to the dominating man who, a short time previously, had been seeking to undermine the loyalty of British and Irish soldiers and turn their sympathies in favour of his employers, Germany.

Prepared for Emergencies.
It was desirable to keep news of Casement's arrest secret. I instructed him to walk quietly by my side to where I had a taxicab waiting. We strolled to the vehicle arm-in-arm like two old friends. So quietly was the affair managed that Casement had been in custody in England a week before his presence was even known to the public.

Before undergoing his final trial, which took place at the Royal Courts of Justice in the Strand, London, Sir Roger made several appearances at Bow Street Police Court. Each night he was taken to Brixton Prison, and I was the officer solely responsible for his safe conduct to and from the court.

The whole business was surrounded by a network of intrigue. Casement had friends everywhere. At any moment the unexpected might have happened.

One of my superior officers suggested I should have a private motor car for my journeys to and from Brixton. But I pointed out that we could not effectively close the mouth of the chauffeur. In all probability he would tell his mates that he was ordered for Brixton Prison to fetch Casement, and I had to bear in mind that there were many people who would move heaven and earth to prevent Casement's coming to trial. I accordingly branch does not deal. It has to guard the great—kings, queens, statesmen, ambassadors, and other eminent people whose lives are of great value to their country. It tracks down undesirable aliens, foreign anarchists, keeps track of suspects, and, during the war, it dealt with the greatest of all its baffling problems—the German spy menace.

German agents were very busy in this country before the war. Vividly does my mind go back to one case as early as February, 1912. I was instructed by my superior officer to proceed to Ostend and obtain information about a man, a German, who was known to be meeting a compatriot in Ostend with important naval information obtained in England.

I was successful in my quest, and upon my information being given to Scotland Yard I had to follow up my case, which resulted in my tracking my man, whose name was Goudie, to a hotel in Rochester. I had a pleasant evening with this man, with whom I made good friends. But I found he was a German spy, and was later sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. His main channel of information were the unsuspecting sailors of British ships, who came to the public-house at Rochester, where they were entertained by the spy.

Saving Britain's Gold.
Part of my duties during the war consisted in preventing gold leaving England and finding its way into the hands of the Germans. I have no hesitation in saying that I saved many thousands of pounds in British gold leaving these shores, and in my preventive work I had some remarkable experiences.

Scott to Go on Trial June 11th

FORMER MONTREAL MAGNATE
FACES CHICAGO JUDGE ON MURDER CHARGE.

Montreal, June 7.—Penitence and without a friend in the world, Russell Scott, one time millionaire promoter of Toronto, Ont., faced a charge of murder before Judge Walter Sifton at Chicago. The former head of A. T. Scott & Co., Ltd., a concern which had eighty branch offices in the United States and in Canada, faces the possibility of hanging for the cold-blooded murder of Joseph Maurer, a twenty-year-old clerk, shot to death on the night of April 2 in one of the most daring downtown robberies in years.

His attorney, W. T. Stanton, made a vigorous plea for the waiving of the death charge on the ground that there was no evidence to show that Scott had fired the fatal shots. It was indicated that the defence would admit that Scott was one of the three who held up the drug store, but would plead that Scott's brother Robert emptied the contents of his gun into Laurier when the latter refused to open his employer's safe. In other words, Scott hopes to save himself from the gallows by flatly charging his brother with murder.

Boy Awarded $2,000 for Two Sound Teeth

One thousand dollars each was the value placed upon a seven-year-old boy's two teeth by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins at White Plains recently in awarding $2,000 to Adolf G. Bannerman of Mount Vernon, against Dr. Louis E. Entler, New York dentist. Dr. Entler lost the suit by default, the Court fixing the award without a jury.

Mrs. Emma Bannerman, who brought the action in her son's behalf, alleged that a year ago he went to Dr. Entler to have two baby teeth extracted. By error, it was testified, the dentist drew two of his permanent teeth.

All at Sea

A girl at a public library inquired if "The Red Book" was in. "I don't think we have the book," she was told.

"Oh, excuse me," said the girl. "I made a mistake. The title is 'The Scarlet Launch.'"

After a search, the library assistant reported that no book with that title was in the catalogue.

"But I am sure you have the book," the girl insisted. Suddenly she opened her handbag and produced a slip of paper on which something was written. Then she blushed. "Oh, I beg your pardon," she said. "It's 'The Ruby Yacht,' by a man named Omar, I want."
