While no definite announcement has been made, it is understood that the Ontario License Commissioners will not allow manufacturers of wines in the Province to establish denots for delivery purposes. Some Some time ago a deputation of the manufacturers appeared before the Commissioners and asked if they could establish stores so that orders could be taken and filled from them. The Board has reached the conclusion that the Government did not intend, when drafting the Temperance Act, to allow the sale of wine from anywhere but the premises on which it was manufactured. The Board also intends to prohibit railway companies operating a bar service on trains through the Province after 16th September. The Commissioners have under consideration various regulations in connection with the sale of grape wine by Ontario manufacturers.

The following clipping shows how popular is Rev. J. M. MacGillivray, who was pastor of Knox Church here before going to Petrolea, and is now serving his King and Country: "It was unanimously decided by Presbyterian congregation of Petrolea at a largely attended meeting to request the Presbytery of Sarnia to grant to Rev. J. M. MacGillivray leave of absence during the continuance of the war, rather than to accept the resignation which he has placed in the hands of the Presbytery. The congregation further passed a resolution expressing their appreciation of Mr. MacGillivray's good work during his pastorate and their admiration of his patriotic spirit to go to the Front as chaplain of the 149th Battalion, many of whom he had influenced to enlist by appeals from his pulpit."
