London, Monday, Sept. 12.

THE BATTLE OVER THE BORDER. Before 60 days have clapsed the Presi-Cential battle in the United States will have been fought and won. After all the outery that has been made in certain quarters about the demoralization of business that results from this four-yearly contest, it As significant to learn that but comparatively little excitement has so far been evidenced, and the business of the country proceeds with Its accustomed activity. It is true that the professional politicians are busy, as they generally are in all countries in the few weeks prior to an electoral struggle, but the great mass of the people go about their business in the usual way, and confine their activities in the political arena to their spare moments.

There seems to be a belief that as be tween the two great political parties (the Democrats and the Republicans) it is any-body's battle, with the advantage decidedly body's battle, with the advantage decidedly in farer of the candidate who gets the electored vote of New York State. In addition to Cleveland and Harrison, representing the two chief divisions of the people politically, there are other two Presidential candidates in the field—one the Prohibitionist, the these that Prophlate are Express! Alliance other the People's or Farmers' Alliance Party. In some instances in the Western States the People's Party have fused with States the People's Party nave used with the Democrats, in order to defeat the Republicans. The question then is whether Cleveland or Harrison will suffer most from defections to the other parties. The advantage seems to be whether Cleveland or Harrison will suffer most from defections to the other parties. The advantage seems to be slightly in favor of Cleveland, because, while the People's Party will draw from both the old parties, the Prohibition candidate generally gets more Republican than Democratic votes. Nevertheless, the strength developed by the Farmers' Alliance in the 1890 elections, and the disposition of many Republican prehibition of many Republican probabilists to regard separation from their friends as a questionable means for promoting a reform that can only be accomplished by one other of the great political parties, has given rise to considerable measuring as to the Reimann specified to the provided the calling and had almost died down when the danger a degree that his election to the reversible followed in 1861, which position of the great political parties, has given rise to considerable measuring as again caused public attention to be directed to the position every succeeding year by account of the country of Perth in 1870.

The issues, as will no doubt be made more fully evident when Mr. Cleveland issues his letter of acceptance, are pretty clearly drawn.

THE LATE JAMES TROW.

No more popular representative ever sat in Parliament than James Trow, ex. M. P. for South Perth, whose sudden death, reported in the Evening ADVERTISER of Saturday, has shocked a wide circle of his friends. Mr. Trow, it may sately be said, had not an enemy either in public or in private life, and that is saying a good deal for a man who had to rab up against all sorts and conditions of men in a long public career.

Mr. Trow was a Welshman by birth. His early days were spent at Newton, Montgemeryshire, and he was educated at Welshpool. When but 17 years of age he came to Canada, and six years later he was married to Miss Mary Moore, of Blenheim, Oxford county. He first followed the occupation of a conveyancer. For nearly 30 years he was reeve of North Easthope, chosen each time by acclamation, and he had the honor of being elected warden of Perth. At Con-federation he was elected a member of the Ontario Legislature for South Perth and held the seat till 1871. In 1872 he was chosen representative of the riding in the House of Commons, and was the member continnously till the recent byc-election, when, through various causes that need not be through various causes that need not be stated, he was defeated by a small majority. For many years he enjoyed the distinction of being elected as Liberal with in the Commons, and received many marks of the appreciation of his services by his associates. He was a model whip. He and the services in the his associates. held a prominent position in various

[Seaforth Expositor.]

As an example of the great benefits (?) protection confers upon the farmers, we may state that this year Messrs. Scott Bros., of Seaforth, being unable to find a profitable market in Canada for their fall apple, shipped them to Buffale. They paid 75 cents per barrel to the farmers here; they paid 85 cents duty to the American Government, and 35 cents freight, and still they realized a paying profit on their apples. We leave it to our farmer friends who, election after election, vote for protection, to figure up for themselves the amount they lose on their fall fruit by not having free trade with the United States. If the farmers of Canada are willing to lose 85 cents per barrel on their apple in order to add to the already enormous wealth of the Masseys, Harrises, Redpaths and other combination lords, we presume they have a perfect right te do so, but if the lords laugh at them for their folly no person need be surprised.

A LEADER FALLEN!

Details of Mr. James Trow's Sudden Death.

The Remains Taken to the Family Residence in Stratford-Characteristic Message of Condelence from Hon. Wilfred Laurier-The Funeral.

STRATPORD, Sept. 11.—In regard to the suddien death of James Trow, ex-M.P., on Saturday it is learned that Mr. Trow had been alting for some time, and went to Toronto with his son Edward Trow, to consult a physician. No serious result from his illness were looked for. Mr. Trow married in 1847 Miss Mary Moore, of Blenheim, Oxford county. She survives him, along with four sons and one daughter: James Trow, inn., auctioneer, etc., Stratford; Thomas Trow, an adderman of the city, and clerk of the Division Court, Milverton; Dr. Charles Trow, of Toronto; Edward Trow, barrister, Toronto; and Miss Mamie Trow, residing at home.

The Stratford Herald says of the deceased:

"He was essentially a self-made man, and his memory is entitled to respect owing to the fillustrations he furnished to the younger generation of the value of the qualities of tact, courage and perseverance which he possessed in an eminent degree. From landing in this country a poor boy of 16, he leaves behind him at dying an estate valued at between $500,000 and $400,000. In South Perth alone he owned nimeteen farms. Mr. Trow's public experience has
