BROKE HIS AGREFMENT

Los Angeles, Cal., July 4. - Jimmy and Britt arrived in Los Angeles this morning, accompanied by William Britt, his manager. He comes here to assume Batteries—Fairbanks and Beville; Hesterfer and Shea. Umpire Callahan, Atendance, 1,150. McGovern match, the champion said:

"The agreement I had with Corbett Wednesday afternoon the Diamond was that neither of us was to fight an Hall team and a team from the Y. M. outsider until our return match. He C. A. played a friendly game of ball jumped at the chance when the prothe jewelers having the better of it. after me for a return match as soon "I have been criticised for granting

Y. M. C. A., Pepper, Canfield and Mc-but I feel confident that I can beat Diamond Hall team challenge any would sidestep a second meeting and team for Wednesday afternoon or any thus allow him to make capital out of that fact, but I established a new precedent and made an agreement to meet him this winter in San Francisco. "He agreed not to meet anyone else time as I am ready to meet him.'

FLAME OF THE WIND.

O wind without moans and cries, O dark wind in my soul! I would I were the wet wild wind that's blowing to the pole! I'd seek the plunging bergs of ice to cool my flaming heart . . .

O Flaming Heart, I'd drown you deep where the great. lcebergs roll!

4 I'd follow on thy beating wings the wings of the wild geese, I'd seek among the plunging hills the phantom flight of peace . . O, is there peace for hearts of fire in gloom and cold and flight-Torches of night

'Mid swaying bergs that grind the trampling seas? -8 C wind without and rain without, O melancholy choir

Of tempest in the lonely night and tempest-whirled desire, What if there be no peace amid the snow clouds of the pole . . . O Burning Soul,

Can hills of ice assuage this whirling fire?

) wet wild wind bow down dark wings and winnow me away, Whirl me on mighty shadowy wings where's neither night nor day, Where 'mid the plunging bergs of ice may fade a whirling flame . . . O Heart of Flame! . 'Mid dirges of white shapes that plunge and sway.
