Captain Greaterex thought of gall, aged 41, for some years on the turning the ship and running back staff of the Beacon, died at his home to the Irish coast to refit, but was here yesterday after a brief illness with advised not to try the experiment appendicitis. Besides his wife he leaves by Lieutenant Hall, a naval reserve one daughter, Hazel, two sons, Fraser officer from the Merchant Marine, who and William. David, of Calgary, is a had served in the Atlantic trade. He said it would be fatal to make the attempt in such a heavy beam sea. The speed of the Natal was reduced to seven knots instead of her usual cruising speed of sixteen knots. The seams of the quarterdeck were opened up by the strain, and the water leaked through so much that the officers had to sleep in oilskins. Necessary repairs were made, and Christmas Day brought some decent weather.

When the Natal arrived off the coast of Newfoundland on Monday Dec. 30, the captain wanted to enter the harbor of St. Johns and refit before coming on to New York, but it was too foggy, and he had to "carry on," as they say in the navy.

The Natal belongs to what is called in the British navy as the particular service squadron, ships of which are always detailed for services similar to the Natal's late errand. The Natal will probably escort King George when he pays his visit to Canada neyt year. The ship carries a crew of six hundred officers and men.
