BIG TALK OF TRADES

Johnson's Threat of Bomb May Be Made Good-Draft Talk.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

New York, Dec. 11 .- With just as much noise and the prospects of as little action as the minors engaged in last week in Louisville, the major league owners will hold their annual sessions here this week.

The National League meets tomorrow, the American League goes into session on Wednesday, and both will hold a joint conference on Thursday. With the annual meeting of the International here also today, it was quite a baseball week. Conway Toole, president of the International League, says his club-owners haven't much in their his club-owners haven't much in their systems, and the same holds good for te big fellows. Trade and big sale talk is rife around

Trade and big sale talk is rife around town. The magnates like to talk about a million dollars, as long as they have to pay the price themselves. Many trades are also said to be in the air, and many would become completed if the club-owners could get a good player without giving one in return. John A. Heydler, president of the National League, predicts a quiet session for his club-owners. The National League has been at peace for years, and no trouble is in sight. is in sight.

General Objection.

Rather general objection to the club-owners by barnstorming by the players may result in some action being taken to further curb or entirely stop the Garry Hermann, president of the Cincinnati Reds, may suggest the adoption of contracts calling for twelve months' service from the players.

Ban Johnson still has his American League well in hand and little doings are expected at the session of the younger circuit moguls. Johnson is just after losing a nice little battle with Commissioner Landis, but he has no reason for taking it out on the magnates.

magnates.

The pugnacious American League president threatened some time ago to explode a bomb this winter and if he has the explosives ready he will use them at the joint meeting of the two leagues. The National League may kick up a little row with Ban by asking him to prove or retract his insinuations against Rube Benton, former pitcher for the New York Giants, who is about to be-come a member of the Cincinnati Reds

HUSTON READY TO

Means That Huggins Will Be Firmly Entrenched as Manager.

By JOHN B. FOSTER.

Special to The Advertiser. Copyright. New York, Dec. 12 .- The long expected has come to pass. Col. T. L. Huston today formally announced he is ready to sell his interest in the New York Yankees.

It is generally believed that Col. Ruppert, who bought the other half of the American League club from Frank Farrell, and William Devery will buy Huston's share. Neither would say exactly what the price is to be. But it will be in the neighborhood of $1,500,000.

It has been known for quite some time that Huston has wanted to get out of baseball. The writer stated several weeks ago that the sale of "a certain major league baseball club was pending." Today's formal an-nouncements from Huston and Ruppert confirm this statement. Give Other Reasons

There are other reasons besides these, which Huston gave when he informally told about his plans Mon-day night. It is perfectly true that Huston is rather tired of the business worries which ownership of a ball club bring. But it is also true that he has chafed under the friction that has existed for some time.

The owners have not infrequently disagreed, not in any unpleasant way, but they have disagreed, never-theless, regarding Miller Huggins as manager. There has been disagree-ment, also, regarding certain policies of the club. Ruppert has always backed Huggins. Huston's getting out means Huggins is solidly in-The International League has de-

The Rochester club wants to know why Jack Dunn has not disposed of three star ball players, as he agreed to do. Only one has been sold, the Rochester folks asserted. Dunn saying that Dunn has all winter in divulged until after the draw is made on Dec. 13.

The matter of prizes has been painstakingly gone into with the result that Major Lawless, president of the association, has selected as first prize in each weight an artistic and valuable shield, with the figure of a boxer in silver in the foreground and surrounded by the crest of the London Garrison Amateur Athletic Association. On the bottom of the crest will be engraved the winner's name and unit. A second the winner's name and unit. could not see it that way.

Snow Prevents.

There is too much snow in Canada for early spring openings. Commissioner Landis talked to the league today, and from now on he will give each of the other leagues their daily dose. On the final day, he will give them to everybody all at one time.

The man with bucolic tastes and a love for the pastoral will wonder at the choice of Chance as manager of the Boston American League club. News of the signing of Chance was discounted last week when it was Pitsford, Lucas; 3 X Ray of Pitsford, stated positively by several prominent baseball folk that, although they had not "seen the papers," they knew Chance had been chosen.

The fact that Chance had said he was weary of tilling the soil and cultivating grape vines, and sighed for the voice of the umpire and the mutterings of the multitudes was hint chough for anyone.

Has Beautiful Home.

Chance has left a beautiful home in the San Joaquin valley in California, where any man who has gone through the baseball mill as Chance has should be perfectly happy to spend the rest of his days.

He is leaving the growing crops He is leaving the growing crops the clinging grape vines and the flowers for the clattering trolleys, the honking taxis and the sirenvoiced fire engines of the big cities, where he hopes for peace and comfort. It's a strange world.

What success Chance will have is another thing entirely. He has been so long out of the game, and so has the Boston club, it will be a case of old friends meeting.
