IN OUR ANCESTORS' DAYS

Only a very prejudiced person would deny that with all our imperfections we are nevertheless much in advance of our forefathers. Mrs. Haldane, the mother of Lord Haldane, now in her 90th year, is emphatically of this view, according to her interesting reminiscences published in the St. Columbia's "Church Magazine."

"I was born," Mrs. Haldane writes, "at Rotherfield, Sussex, on April 9th, 1825, and while still very young my family travelled to Northumberland. The only mode of travelling was by driving, and my sister and I were sent in a carriage drawn by a pair of thorough-bred horses. The journey took 16 days; in the present day it takes 6 1/2 hours. Children were in those days threatened with "Boney" (Bonaparte) in the nursery if they misbehaved. "We children were taken from our cribs about 7 a.m. and plunged overhead by a governess, and I learned to read at three years of age. The multiplication table and French verbs were repeated whilst sitting at a blackboard, and with our feet in the stocks, which stocks were specially made by the joiner. One wonders what would be said of such things now! Boys' schools were very different from those of the present day. I have known a cousin return from school black and blue from bruises inflicted by the cane, while a companion lived for three days up a chimney in hiding. A girl cousin was punished by being locked up in a barn and fed on bread and water."

Mrs. Haldane goes on to describe how, in 1832, when cholera visited England, the children were given port wine and ale "to strengthen our systems against attack." In those days, she adds, children were always given a mug of ale at dinner time.

Mrs. Haldane adds a note on dress. "Like all gentlemen, my father wore stays in hunting. My mother wore a large white or blue satin hat in the evening, with long bird of paradise feathers hanging from it. "Once," she says, "we had to drive over the bleak moors during a snowstorm, and not far from the roadside on a gibbet was hanging a tramp named Winter, who had murdered an old woman in a cottage in sight of the place. I can remember the clanking of the chains to this day, I was to see a complete change in affairs, educational, political, social, and religious during my long life." Mrs. Haldane writes in conclusion, "and I am glad to know and testify that on the whole the changes have been for the better."

MULTI-MILLIONAIRES

Who are the ten richest men in the world? asks the London Sunday Express. It answers the query itself by giving a list at the head of which is Henry Ford, whose fortune it estimates at $500,000,000. John D. Rockefeller comes next with $450,000,000; Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, is third, with $150,000,000, and then follow the Duke of Westminister, Sir Basil Zaharoff, Hugo Stinnes, Percy Rockefeller, Baron H. Mitsui, Baron H. Iwasaki and the Gackwar of Baroda—each with $100,000,000.

James B. Duke, the Tobacco King, George F. Baker, of the First National Bank of New York, and T. B. Walker, the Minneapolis Timber Landowner, the Express says, might be added to the list, since they all have fortunes estimated at $100,000,000, while there are at least three other Indian rulers whose fortunes probably exceed this amount.

The Rothschilds, Guggenheims, Vanderbilts, Weyerhousers, and the Astors, says the writer, do not appear because theirs are family fortunes. The Rothschild wealth has been estimated at from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000, and that of the Astors at from $100,000,000 to $500,000,000.

Henry Ford is possibly the richest man in all history, the paper declares. He has a net business income of more than $100,000,000 a year. He earns $250 every minute. Croesus may have been richer, since his famous gift to Delphi cost $10,000,000, and that, reduced to today's terms, might mean $200,000,000.

John D. Rockefeller gave away $500,000,000 to charity and to foundations before 1921. He is the head, however, of the biggest group of wealthy men ever produced by a single industry, and his private fortune must still rank him second.

Sir Basil Zaharoff is Europe's mystery man, but it is no mystery that he is one of Europe's wealthiest men. He owns more than half of Monte Carlo, and his holdings in armament firms are even larger. He is in oil, finance, shipping; in fact, it is difficult to say what he is not interested in.

The Mitsuis and the Iwasakis are financiers, traders and shippers. The Gackwar of Baroda's wealth is almost impossible to estimate, but his diamonds alone are valued at $1,250,000, and he has a jewelled tapestry worth $1,500,000. Guns of gold weighing 400 pounds stand at his palace gate.

PROBLEM OF CURING FISH

Dr. J. F. Logan, professor of biochemistry at McGill University, is visiting in Dartmouth. Professor Logan, who has been carrying on research work recognized as a valuable contribution to the knowledge of the body secretions, came to Nova Scotia at the request of the Federal government to inquire into the problem of curing fish. His work is to determine the cause of certain changes that take place in the fish, both fresh and salt, which tend to spoil them in shipping to distant inland markets. Dr. Logan will continue his research work on his return to McGill.

Rev. Roman L. Harding, rector of the Grace Episcopal Church at Middleton, N. Y., has sailed for the Holy Land to bring back water from the River Jordan to be used in baptisms in his church.
