

Nelson's Highroads of History Series

has been described as "the most remarkable set of school-books ever published."

Great historical painters are enlisted in the service of the schools, thus producing a set of Readers which combine modern pedagogic methods with the highest products of British art.

BOOK

- I Tales of the Homeland.—Simple stories from British history, with a famous picture as the starting point of each.... Price 50c
- II Stories from British History.—Continues the method of Book I, and ranges over the whole field of British History Price 60c
- III Britons of Renown.—The stories of the preceding volumes are here knit together by means of biographies of outstanding historical characters Price 60c
- IV Other Days and Other Ways.—(55 B.C. to A.D. 1485). This book proceeds upon a distinctly novel plan, never before adopted in any Historical Reader. Every lesson is based on a description and picture of some building, object or institution actually existing and thus reality is given to the teaching Price 70c
- V Tudor and Stuart.—(1485-1688). The same method is continued Price 85c
- VI Modern Britain.—This volume gives special attention to the expansion of the race beyond the borders of Britain..... Price 90c
- VII Highroads of British History.—Introductory poem by Rudyard Kipling, and Epilogue by Lord Roseberry. The main theme of the volume is the process of fusion of English, Welsh, Scottish and Irish into one people. Price 75c
- VIII Highroads of Empire History.—By E. M. Wilmot-Buxton. Deals with the great periods of extension and consolidation of the Empire..... Price 75c
- IX Highroads of General History.—By E. M. Wilmot-Buxton. An attempt to give young pupils some idea of the great empires of the world from the earliest times down to the present day. The language is simple, and every opportunity is taken to correlate secular and Biblical history Price 90c
- X Highroads of European History.—A simple introduction to European history, with special reference to its relations with Great Britain Price 90c
- XI Allies, Foes and Neutrals.—By Sir Edward Parrot, M.A., LL.D. A First sketch of European history from the age of Pericles to the eve of the Great War Price $1.10
