

September 6, 1992

standards-related measure means a "standards-related measure" as defined in Article 915; telecommunications means the transmission and reception of signals by any electromagnetic means; and terminal equipment means any digital or analog device capable of processing, receiving, switching, signaling or transmitting signals by electromagnetic means and that is connected by radio or wire to a public telecommunications transport network at a termination point.