FATALITY CAUSED BY EXTREME HEAT

John Colwell Found Dead in Railway Coach at Station

ON WAY TO UXBRIDGE

Return Ticket Found in His Pocket—Brother Identifies Body

The intense heat of yesterday is supposed to have been the cause of the death of John Colwell, 257 St. Clarens avenue whose lifeless body was found about 9 o'clock at the Union Station in a passenger car on the G.T.E. train which was about to leave for Uxbridge. Mr. Colwell had apparently just entered the car and taken a seat when he expired, and it is thought that the exertion made by him in catching the train caused heart failure. He was single and 51 years old.

It was just by accident that the conductor noticed the man apparently lifeless in his seat. When there was no response to his shaking he notified the police, and the body was removed to the morgue, where later in the day it was identified by Charles Colwell, a brother of the deceased. It is thought that he was going out of the city to spend the holiday.

Chief Coroner Arthur Jukes Johnson decided that an inquest was not necessary.

REPPRESSED GAYETY IN LONDON SOCIETY

Series of Functions, With Patriotism as Keynote, Enliven Season

MATCH-MAKERS BUSY

Numerous Engagements and Marriages Announced From Day to Day

By HENRY SIDDON.
Special to The Toronto World.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—London has been quite gay the last week or two, although, of course, all the big things were really because of the war. The Souvenir Luncheon at the Savoy, and the "France's Days," and the fête at Ranelagh for good cause and endless special matinees all helped to make things more cheerful after a very long spell of absolute dullness. Several wealthy hostesses, too, have ventured recently on dinners and even tiny dances. This in spite of the troubles that each day brings from the front. But in justice to the English it must be said that most of these venturesome hostesses are foreigners living in London, and even they will scarcely have the hardihood to continue after all such "goings on" are strongly disapproved of here at a time so extremely unsuited to merry-making.

Many Matches Made.

One thing that is not frowned down upon anywhere, however, is the vigorous match-making that is going on just now. Each day brings a long list of engagements and marriages. A very courtly engagement just announced is the one between the son and heir of the Duke of Portland and Miss Gordon-Lennox, who is one of Queen Alexandra's maids-of-honor, and very pretty. And the prime minister's daughter, Miss Violet Asquith, is soon to wed Henry Bonham Carter, who is her father's secretary. United step-mother, who always appears in the dernier cri, Miss Asquith does not seem to be in the least lessened by her type can hardly be said to have its best setting in voluminous skirts of no great length. Moreover she does not seem to have succeeded in being placed in the list of best-dressed women.

Polaire the Popular.

Mlle. Polaire who appeared in Toronto some time ago is just now the head-liner in an excellent variety bill at the Coliseum. Polaire with eyes deeper and more mysterious than ever, and with a waist quite as Victorian and wasp-like as ever. And her head! A mass of short, bold curls that are a moment in awesome and fearful disarray and the next instant are where they are intended to be. And she is just as wild and untamed as ever. No one is to be done to death in any way in Le Mannequin Amoureux, and so her wildness is directed in other channels. Mainly dancing in this her newest play and what dancing it is! Such energy, grace and abandon are rarely seen so well combined. Some people are apt to shrug and smile when it is said that Polaire is clever. These skeptics should see her in her wonderful dance with Mme. Simon-Girard. She believes that she is dancing with a dummy. As a matter of fact she really is at the beginning of the dance, and then as it proceeds they dance before a screen and when they re-appear she has the genuine article for a partner—the graceful Mme. They work hard, but it is to some purpose, because nightly crowds are being thrilled with their grace. The piece de resistance of Le Mannequin is really the last dance, however, and particularly was this the case on the first night when Polaire said good-bye (by accident or design it is hard to say), to part of her costume. The effect was the same however, tremendous applause, much nodding, many explanations each to another, and then more applause! It might be added that to begin with Polaire was not exactly muffled up, and at the end—It is possibly the warm weather we are having that has induced so many of the beautiful actresses playing in London just now, to appear with what might almost be called a gown on. And this not only at the theatre either. Delia, the gracefully delicious, appeared the other night at Ciro's, the famous night club, with violets and pearls for a costume. This might call forth some criticism in august circles, but at Ciro's no one seemed to mind.

New Styles.

Speaking of gowns, one of the newest fashions in London and one quite popular with several well-known beauties is a ribbon binding the hair and showing at one side of a hat tilted over to a very dizzy angle. At the successful souvenir luncheon given at the Savoy last Tuesday, Lady Curzon had her fair locks bound by one of blue and Mrs. Ralph Peto chose red or was it pink to give a touch of color to her dark hair. The luncheon was a very original and wonderful affair, and the stage appearance of the evening was a most interesting one. Amongst many others, was the Serbian Sculptor, Ivan Mestrovic, whose strongly carved and the same time weird "Singlet" exhibition at the Victoria and Albert Museum is being shown. They are quite different, but not so different that even the ordinary mortal can't appreciate the pictures composed of a marvelous well-balanced and essentially artistic program.

Special services are being held at St. Alban's Cathedral on Wednesday, beginning at 8 a.m., with celebration of the Holy Communion. At 10 a.m. Holy Communion, with an address by the Lord Bishop of Toronto. Prayer and intercession from 10.30 to 6 p.m.

At 8 p.m. service and special prayer for the allies. Rev. Canon MacNab will conduct the evening service and a special invitation has been extended by the clergy of the Cathedral to members of the "Canadian Defence League," who it is expected will attend in great numbers. A special program of war hymns and patriotic music by the choir.

FARNUM BARTON WINS SUCCESS IN "WATERLOO"

Playlet Received With Splendid Approval, and is One of Several Hits at Hippodrome

Farnum Barton and Company won great favor with patrons of the Hippodrome yesterday. Their presentation of "Waterloo," a most appropriate playlet at this time, received an ovation which any actor might envy. The character so forcibly portrayed by Mr. Barton is that of a veteran, and his description of the battle is extremely realistic. Several curtain calls hardly seemed to satisfy the large audience who apparently would have appreciated more on this subject. "Waterloo" is a great success.

An all-star bill has been prepared. One of the finest musical treats of the vaudeville season is that of Guerrero and Carman. With violin and harp they entertain in a most artistic manner. Their rendition of "The Rose Tree" is excellent. Another musical offering of merit is that of the "Four Jolly Bachelors." This quartet is far above the usual, and the voices blend exceedingly well.

A unique exhibition is given by "The Dancing Mares," and their portion of the program is very interesting. Little Chief Tengenah has a fine bass voice and is an athlete of many accomplishments. There are many other first-class artists, and these together with some new moving pictures complete a marvellously well-balanced and essentially artistic program.

WHOLE DAY OF PRAYER AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Anyone can form a link in the chain of prayer at the church at any time.

'HER NAME WAS DENNIS' HEADLINES LOEW'S BILL

Comedy Playlet of Unusual Merit Top of Cleverly-Arranged Program

"Her name was Dennis," the leading attraction at Loew's this week, is a comedy playlet that keeps getting better till the curtain falls. At the wish of all is that the playlet might be lengthened into three acts. Mary Hampton is the headliner in the piece and her work throughout is a delight. In the role of the tempter she has to go thru a "pickling process," and she doesn't seem to dread the ordeal.

Bessie Le Count in her repertoire of songs and recitations won instant favor with the house, while Hamill and Thomas got their share of appreciation in their songs. Thomas hits the low spots and never falls off the way. His singing is a hit. As for comedians Rucker and Winfield, the black boys, had a good line of fun. The novelty dance of the Three Dicks Sisters shows that progress in the dance line is still being made. Other features of the bill are Kammerer and Howard's "Fencing" and Court and Andrews' Rag Battle.
