SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 26.

The Seventy-Five Men.

The Times (of Toronto, Ont.) states that it is impossible for 75 men to party will do. By the same token it is realize that the citizen should be the plain that one man, even the editor of first consideration. a paper, cannot be sure. But he may give his opinion with due modesty. If it be backed up by 75 men who are mot afraid to say what they think it may be appreciably nearer the truth than an oninion in opposition to the 75. The Times appears desirous of conveying the impression that the 75 are wrong. But this involves a degree of political dogmatism to which perhaps even The Times will not allow strelf to be committed.

The provincial government and the federal government are neither of them in great favor in the Central Conservative Association, which met on Thursday evening. Had the meeting committed itself to a wholesale eulogy of the present governments, we doubt that The Times would have been so anxious to disparage the opindon of 75 men. Perhaps The Times forgets that the war was fought to establish independence of all kinds. Mr. Hilliard Birmingham, who is well, acquainted with the views of the 75 men, and others, handed in his resigmation. No doubt he felt that the time had come. The party is getting out of hand, and he may have had more faith in the opinion of the 75 than The Times professes.

The signs that surround the proceedings of the government, particularly in Toronto at present, are highly suggestive of the great change that began to take place in 1904. There is mo Gamey-Stratton drama to be staged, no 'Minnie M." to be brought into port for this kind of history does net necessarily repeat itself, but there are other things that are quite as beginning to take stock.

When The World catled for a conention after the death of Sir James Winfitney there was scarcely a decent ploiting the public, should beware lest Conservative in Ontario that did not desire that convention to be held. But premier of their own choice on the activity which can best be managed It finds fault with the apparent premier of their own choice on the activity which can best be managed equalities of appointments and the Conservatives, on the Liberals, on the by public authority. The public of any ranking with other distinctions, while people of Ontario:

When the war came to a halt we new bill of fare was needed. A new reneration that knew not the Josephs of the post-Whitney era, had arrisen and they wanted leadership. A convention would have developed a program and discovered a leader. But again the Ottawa politicians came down and informed the faithful that it would not do to have a convention until the referendum was voted upon. After that a convention would be held. The faithful were put to sleep once more. In a little while the word went out that the referendum and the election were to march up the aisle together, and the faithful had all the naving just previously lost a dollar. The the faithful that whether they liked it chises. or mot, there was to be no change of leadership in Ontario, and the agentgeneral for the particular interests represented by the Ottawa delegation twould continue in office till after the election

Those who know politics are begintriing to have some idea of the desperate to retain office by those who have succeeded to Sir James Whiitney's offlices, but not to his policies, who have inherited his good will, but know mothing of his integrity.

The 75 have had these things in mind. They cannot be downed. There is only one thing to heal the situation. It is to play fair with the people. It is to play fair with the party. A convention should be called. A platform should be adopted. The election should be honestly arranged and openly settled without reference to private interests of any kind. If this ganization, most of whose members is not done we all know what happened to Premier Ross under similar Above Nos. 11 and 14 on the suburban part of Wychwood avenue north of St. Clair the county authorities have not changed their numbers, and the result is that the postoffice, which knows all the facts and could straighten out the whole business with a piece of chalk, turns many letters quite properly adiressed, either for the sake of being contrairy" or on account of the red tape-worms that invade official organsms. The postoffice is fully aware of all the changes made, and the postmen on the beat must be familiar with the few houses affected. The delay, loss and inconvenience to citizens is more importance than any friction between city and county and postoffice. be sure of what the Conservative but officialdom always seems slow to
