A CRIME THAT IS NOT PUNISHABLE.

How many people reading this article have gone into a drug store and asked for some well known and highly tried medicine and some unscrupulous druggist has said, "Yes I have that, but have you ever tried this remedy, it is just as good and costs less." Any druggist doing this has not the interest of your health at heart, but the interest of his pocket, as he can make more profit out of the cheap substitute.

For the protection and benefit of the public, we wish to say that Dr. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY has been used in thousands of homes for the past sixty-two years and has never failed to give prompt relief and cure in all cases of Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Stomach Cramps, Summer Complaint, Sea Sickness, Cholera Infantum, Cholera Morbus and all Fluxes of the Bowels. When you buy Dr. FOWLER'S, you are not experimenting with a new and untried remedy, but are getting one that has stood the test of time.

Miss Lettie Reid, Vivian, Ont., writes: "Last year I suffered untold agony from cramps in the stomach and did not know what to do until a friend suggested I should try Dr. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY and as I was glad to try anything I purchased a bottle.

"When I had taken four doses I found relief and since then I never fail to keep a bottle in the house."

SOCIALISTS MEET ON GERMAN SOIL

A Picturesque Gathering of 25 Nationalities.

GROANS FOR JOHN BURNS

Herr Bebel Refers to the Recent Election of a Socialist in England.

Stuttgart, Aug. 21.—For the first time a great international Socialist congress is meeting on German soil. The streets from the station to the meeting hall were decorated with flags, red being the predominant color.

The delegates number 886. Germany has sent 300, England 130, France 90, Austria 80, and Russia 50. Switzerland, Bohemia, Hungary, Italy, Bulgaria, Roumania, Sweden, Holland, the United States, Argentina, South Africa, Australia and Japan sent smaller numbers.

The congress, which will sit for a week, will consider questions of militarism, international conflicts, the relations between political parties and industrial workers and emigration.

The relations of trade unions to social democracy will also form an important point in the programme. The British Independent Labor Party will bring forward an amendment asking for the admission to the international congress of those trade unions which, though bona fide, are not expressly based on class war, but the international bureau recommends the rejection of the proposal.

Herr Bebel's Speech.

The chief event yesterday, after Van der Velde, secretary of the international Socialist Bureau, declared the conference open in the presence of delegates representing 25 nationalities, was Bebel's speech. The German Socialist leader was received with unmeasured enthusiasm. He declared that never had international socialism gathered such a brilliant assemblage.

After mentioning the fact that the French Socialists, since the Amsterdam congress, have increased their representation in the chamber from 37 to 54, he said that for the first time the English proletariat, which hitherto had not entered the political lists, had made an independent fight, and gained a brilliant victory.

Groans for Burns.

The Government of England had taken the Socialist John Burns into the cabinet (groans and cheers from the English delegates), but in spite of this concession, so far as he could see, the Government had not succeeded in changing the fighting tactics of the workmen's party. In Finland, Austria, Holland and Switzerland the Socialists had gained triumphs.

In Germany the situation might seem different. Still, the last Reichstag elections, although the Socialists had a reduction in the Reichstag seats, showed a gain of a quarter of a million in the Socialist vote since 1900. The number of organized workmen had increased from 384,000 to 534,000. The men enrolled in Socialist syndicates in 1907 numbered 1,800,000.

Herr Bebel then referred to the strong representation of the Socialist party in the United States in the congress. He mentioned the "scandalous prosecution" of Haywood in Idaho, where, he said, the capitalist classes had done everything possible to convict him, but after all he had been brilliantly acquitted. In conclusion Herr Bebel expressed the hope that this conference would do better than the one still sitting at The Hague, which would bring forth a ridiculous mouse which would probably be still-born.

The Eight-Hour Day.

Sunday afternoon there was a gigantic mass meeting in the fields at Cronstadt a suburb of Stuttgart, 10,000 Socialists being present. The meeting was unparalleled in the history of Social Democracy. The dense, orderly crowd swarmed around six red-draped platforms, whence they were addressed by their leaders.

In a never-ending stream came orderly processions of different trade unions and guilds, with bands playing and with banners bearing inscriptions reading "Eight hours work, eight hours play, eight hours rest." "Workmen unite," and "Long live international solidarity."

The leaders spoke in tongues that were often unintelligible to a majority of their hearers, who yet listened to them, such is the magnetism of men like Bebel, Singer, Jaures and Ferri. The enthusiasm never flagged for a moment.

Baby Cut Mother's Head

Swinging a stick at his play, the little son of Mrs. L. Webster, 519 St. Jean street, Montreal, struck his mother a blow over the eye, inflicting a nasty gash. Inflammation followed, and the wound looked very ugly, when a box of Zam-Buk was obtained. "The pain was soothed almost instantly the balm was put on," says Mrs. Webster, "and healing commenced. In four or five days the wound was closed, the inflammation gone, and there was only a faint red line showing where the gash had been. Even this mark is now gone. Zam-Buk is such a wonderful healer it should be in every home where there are children."

Imagine a combination of the finest healing balsam and essential procured from the best medicinal plants all over the world. Add to this combination high antiseptic powers. Mix it—not with a base of coarse animal fats or oils (as most ointments are), but use a vegetable base. Distill, concentrate, and purify the whole. That is what Zam-Buk is!

It heals cuts, sores, bruises, abrasions. It cleanses and cures eczema patches, blood poison, ulcers, abscesses, heat sores, etc. It takes the poison out of stings, cools and eases sore feet, and it is the best known cure for piles. All mothers should keep it handy. Fifty cents a box, at all stores and druggists, or Zam-Buk Company, Toronto. Send one cent stamp for trial box. Send one cent stamp for trial box.

moment and the crowd pressed ever closer to listen to denunciations of the Russian autocracy, the Prussian Government and kindred diatribes.

At the tribune where Jaures spoke the excitement was intense, and when at the end of his harangue in polished French, of which he is master, he broke into German, declaring that North German capitalism must be smashed, the enthusiasm knew no bounds. Banners were waved, and hats thrown into the air, while the crowds shouted "Hoch die Internationale! Hoch Jaures!"

The few policemen on duty were exclusively employed in administering to frequent cases of collapse from the heat.

VON BUELOW AND HIS CHEF

How the Kaiser Happened to Nickname the Cook "Misere."

Paris, Aug. 21.—M. Jules Huret has been interviewing Prince Buelow, the German imperial chancellor, for Le Figaro, and most entirely in a serious vein, although the German admitted that his countrymen were beginning to perceive that they had "probably gone far enough along the path of philosophic distastefulness." Then came a new story about the chancellor's cook, who enjoys the nickname of "Misere."

"It was the Kaiser who gave him that sobriquet. We were in Rome when I was summoned to his majesty to take the post of minister of foreign affairs," called my chef, and said we were about to leave Rome for Berlin, but that our future residence (and consequently our kitchen) would be much smaller than the Cafarelli palace, in which we were then housed, and asked if he would continue in my service. He asked for half an hour in which to consider the situation, and at the end of that time returned and said:

"I have reflected. I consent. When one has such worthy employers it would be ungrateful to abandon them in misfortune, (quand ils tombent dans le misere.)"

"One day I told the Kaiser of this, and he laughed heartily, and dubbed him 'le cuisinier Misere.' Two years ago the Kaiser, who seems to appreciate Misere's culinary efforts, presented him with a gold watch bearing the imperial monogram and also a fine chain."

THIS PRINCESS WALTZES

Wife of British Her-Apparent Breaks With Old Custom.

London, Aug. 21.—The splendid and exclusive ball given at the German embassy was practically the last big function of the London season. It was chiefly remarkable for the reason that the Princess of Wales, who seldom dances anything but the formal state quadrilles, danced with various partners in the waltzes throughout the evening. She was, in fact, almost as energetic as Princess Patricia of Connaught, who never misses a single dance.

The awkward thing about royalty at London balls is the fact that the royal ladies must find their own partners. When a princess attends a ball she sends for the partner whom she intends to honor with a dance. If the young man is engaged, he must, of course, cancel the engagement and obey the royal command.

The Princess of Wales tells an amusing story of a dance she attended where a young and very bashful peer was "commanded" by the princess to dance with her. The youthful peer was so overcome that all he managed to utter out was, "Sorry, ma'am, but I'm engaged for this one."

MANSFIELD MAY ACT AGAIN

But Must First Take a Prolonged Rest, Says Doctor.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Richard Mansfield, accompanied by Mrs. Mansfield, his brother Felix, and a retinue of servants today left Hotel Amersbach, where he has been resting for about a month, for his summer place at New London, Conn. The party traveled in a private car.

Mr. Mansfield denied himself the newswomen, but his brother Felix, speaking for him, said over the telephone:

"Mr. Mansfield is feeling somewhat better than when he arrived last month. He has not been out driving since the first day he arrived, because of the horrible roads you have here, which are really not fit for a person suffering from nervous prostration to ride over. He spends his time sitting on the piazza, reading, smoking and dictating letters. He was out on the piazza today. He is cheerful. We are leaving tonight for New London, Conn. I don't understand your railroads up here, but we are going via Albany to Palmer, and will reach New London about noon tomorrow."

"He may stay there until winter, or all winter, just as he feels. He will be apt to spend part of the winter in New York. He has had no intention, since he first realized that he had nervous prostration, of acting this coming season. He resolved to take a full season's rest."

"I expect in time he will regain his health and resume his career on the stage."

When asked if Dr. Lemieux encouraged them to think that Mr. Mansfield might act again, his brother said that he did.

PERISHES STEALING LAUNCH

Attempts to Operate Craft and Fires the Gasoline.

Utica, Aug. 21.—A thief last night stole a valuable launch owned by William Winterbottom, of Rochester, from Camp Maynard, on First Lake, Fulton Chain, took it out into the lake and attempted to operate it. Unfamiliar with the workings, he allowed the gasoline to escape and accidentally set fire to it. The launch burned to the water's edge and drifted ashore. No trace of the man has been found and it is supposed that he lost his life in the explosion.

DOLLAR PEACHES FOR THIS FALL

Peninsula Growth From One-Third to One-Half a Normal Crop.

Grimsby, Aug. 21.—Housekeepers who have been expecting to make up for the scarcity of strawberries and raspberries by preserving an extra supply of peaches are going to be disappointed. There may not be dollar wheat in the west, but there will be dollar peaches in the Niagara peninsula.

From extensive inquiries through the fruit belt from Stoney Creek, to Niagara-on-the-Lake the best information that can be gained is that the peach crop will this year be from one-third to one-half a normal crop. Perhaps 40 per cent would be a high average of the estimates given over.

The early and late Crawford—the peach that made Niagara famous—are almost a complete failure. They will not average the tenth of a crop. The Elberta, which is a second-grade peach, lately introduced because of its superior shipping qualities which fit it for the Northwest trade, is a good crop almost all over the district, but the Elberta does not constitute more than 20 per cent of the total crop. Other varieties are half a crop or less, so that altogether, perhaps, 40 per cent will be a liberal estimate.

The earlier reports sent out of an average crop were too optimistic, based on the number of fruit buds. However, owing to the late cold spring and the absence of bees at the right time to fertilize the blossoms, the fruit did not "set," and consequently men who were counting on thousands of baskets will now be glad to get that many hundred.

Of all the varieties of fruit, grapes alone promise a full crop, but growers confidently expect that the peaches for these will be high, because of the scarcity of other fruits. Growers state that no grapes will be sold this year lower than $30 per ton.

The scarcity of all kinds of fruit this year has about finished the commission agent, so far as this district is concerned. Practically no fruit has this year been shipped on commission, but buyers from Montreal and Toronto and local firms have bought and paid for fruit on the station platform or in the orchard. This is what the grower wants, because shipping fruit on commission was always a gamble and conducted to low prices and careless handling.

ANOTHER CRACK AT NATURE FAKERS

And Roosevelt Says Rev. Mr. Long is the Worst of the Lot.

New York, Aug. 21.—The "nature fakirs" have once more come under the fire of President Roosevelt. He discharges a whole broadside of criticism and ridicule against them in an article, written by his own hand, in the September number of Everybody's Magazine.

"Nature Fakers"—such is the simple title of the contribution, which constitutes as vigorously expressed a bit of censure as the President has penned for some time. Particular attention is paid to Rev. William J. Long, a prominent "faker," the clergyman being severely criticized. President Roosevelt advises a course of barnyard study for the "fakers" who "make such startling discoveries in the wilderness," it being pointed out that such a course would have a very enlightening influence on them.

Upheld by Naturalists.

In the same number of Everybody's, though separate from the President's article, is a symposium of opinions of eminent working naturalists on the "faker" question. Without exception the scientists who are quoted uphold the position which President Roosevelt took when he attacked the "fakers" in the early summer.

"The modern 'nature faker' is, of course," writes President Roosevelt, "an object of derision to every scientist, but the object of every real lover of the wilderness, to every faunal naturalist, to every true hunter or nature lover. But it is evident that he completely deceives many good people who are wholly ignorant of wild life. Sometimes he draws on his own imagination for his fictions; sometimes he gets them second-hand from irresponsible guides, or trappers, or Indians."

Compliments To Long.

Turning to Mr. Long individually, the President hints at this fashion: "Of all these 'nature fakers' the most reckless and least responsible is Mr. Long; but there are others who run him close in the 'yellow journalism of the woods,' as John Burroughs has aptly called it."

"There is no need of discussing their theories; the point is that their alleged facts are not facts at all, but fictions. Their most striking stories are not merely distortions of facts, but pure inventions; and not only are they inventions, but they are inventions by men who know so little of the subject concerning which they write, and who to ignorance add such utter recklessness, that they are not even able to distinguish between what is possible, however wildly improbable, and mechanical impossibilities."

"Be it remembered that I am not speaking of ordinary mistakes, of ordinary errors of observation, of differences of interpretation and opinion. I HAY FEVER POSITIVELY CURED.

am dealing only with deliberate invention, deliberate perversion of facts."

After this intimation that the "fakers" are eligible to the Annapolis Club, President Roosevelt considers story after story of the "fakers."

Need Barnyard Study.

Later he makes the suggestion for a course of barnyard research as follows:

"If the writers who make such startling discoveries in the wilderness would really study even the denizens of a barnyard they would be saved from at least some of their more salient mistakes. Their stories dwell much on 'teaching' of the young animals by their elders and betters. In one story, for instance, a wild duck is described as 'teaching' her young how to swim, and get their food. If this writer had strolled into the nearest barnyard containing a hen which had hatched out ducklings, a glance at the actions of those ducklings when the hen happened to lead them near a puddle would have enlightened him as to how much 'teaching' they needed. But these writers exercise the same florid imagination when they deal with a robin or a rabbit as when they describe a bear, a moose or a salmon. . . . Their books carry their own refutation, and affidavits in support of the statements they contain are as worthless as the similar affidavits once solemnly issued to show that the Cardiff 'giant' was a petrified pre-Adamite man. There is now no more excuse for being deceived by their stories than for being still in doubt about the silly Cardiff hoax."

A NEW CHAMPION

Noted French Writer Who Has Plea for the Trusts.

Paris, Aug. 21.—The trusts have an unexpected champion in Paul Adam, one of the most prolific and original French novelists. From a recent journey to America he brought back the impression that the immense development of that country's natural wealth was largely due to the enterprise of trusts and other associations of capitalists, and he proposes to embody these ideas in a book wherein he will describe how an American syndicate succeeds in monopolizing all the water power in the Island of Cuba and transforming it into electrical energy, which the syndicate supplies not only to America but to parts of Europe, thereby effecting an extraordinary economic revolution.

Adam also touches upon the question of the moral responsibility of the capitalists towards men who help them in building their fortunes, and sacrifice their own health and reason in the service of their employers. The novelist espouses neither side and merely states the case, for and against the employers. He leaves the readers to form their own conclusions.
