MR. CARLETON'S POSITION

"I have approved of the Haslam method of constructing the foundation of the granite pavement in Main street. You hereby have authority to permit this to be done."

W.M. McLEOD: "The above order sent to Inspector Carleton in the answer to all the charges that he should have complained to the engineer about the work done. He did complain, and this was the answer. He knew what the specifications called for, and tried to get it, but he had no means of telling what was required under the 'Haslam method.'"

Mr. Carleton is prepared to go to Main street tomorrow morning and uphold his statement that the foundation is defective. The resolution adopted by the council was artfully drawn, and may be read to mean that only one place is to be examined. This will not, however, satisfy Mr. Carleton, or the taxpayers. The inspector asserts that the foundation is in places defective. He repeats the statement in the face of the report of Mr. Dowdell, who he observes did not have any of the foundation taken up to prove the correctness of his view. It has taken many days to get the council's order carried out by the council's officials, and meantime work has been rushed on the pavement. Had the council been in earnest about the matter work would have been stopped until the charge made by Mr. Carleton was fully investigated.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE

A woman whose name has been a household word for half a century, because of her courage and devotion as a nurse and the founder of a new order of nursing, has just passed away in London, at the age of ninety years. "After life's fitful fever she sleeps well." So long as physical suffering brings agony to the human frame, the name of Florence Nightingale will be held in grateful remembrance. Not the English speaking world alone, but all humanity owes a debt to her memory. She devoted her devoted hand to the nursing of the wounded in the Crimean War, and after this war was over and she returned to England, her life was given up to the amelioration of the condition of the sick and the injured, and the training of cultured young women to take up the great work of nursing in hospitals and homes. Here was a woman, the daughter of wealthy parents, who in her time might have achieved some noteworthy act as that which has been won by some of the ladies of the Nineteenth Century. She might have laughed as they do at public criticism of her conduct. But Florence Nightingale's ear was attuned to hear the "low, sad music of humanity," and her heart yearned over those whose lives are darkened by disease or injury. She saw the condition, realized the need of reform, and with high courage and tireless energy set herself to the task. With what success she labored, the world today gladly attests. She won the most exclusive distinction that it is within the power of the English king to bestow, and where, ever pain is relieved and grief assuaged the name of Florence Nightingale is honored and revered. To live a life like hers is infinitely more than to be heralded in the press as the richest woman in the world. It is the lives of the Florence Nightingales that really count in the upward movement of humanity to the higher planes of thought and feeling and truly Christian service.

THE BAD ROADS

The Telegraph this morning gave to the self-complacency of Mr. Hazen and his colleagues a jolt which perhaps may be compared to that received at frequent intervals by adventurous persons who go by team or automobile along the Hazen highway.

The Telegraph reproduced a photograph of a section of road near Grand Bay, with long poles sticking up in holes in the road, to warn people of the risk to their necks in those places. The picture is shown in this issue of the Times, and our readers will see that what has been said in criticism of the roads in the province generally has been very mild in comparison with what fairly might have been said.

Members of the legislature, including Mr. Hazen himself, have been told of the state of the roads, and have been invited to go and see for themselves; but having passed a highway act they appear to think that it is all they should be expected to do. Their newspaper organs, with a fatuous disregard for the truth, continue to assert that the roads are in good condition, and thus destroy any little shred of reputation they may have had for stating facts.

Meanwhile the roads grow worse. Work that is done is poorly done, and does not make any permanent improvement. The people must get a better government before they will be able to get better roads.

CRIME AND PROTECTION

One of the penalties of growth in material development is the class of men introduced into the country as railroad navies or laborers at other forms of common work. Three Italians are under arrest in Moncton today because they broke into a farmhouse and stole valuable property. It is stated that they had previously acted in an insulting manner toward the lady who was alone in the house, and that she fled in fear to the home of a neighbor. It is probably true that the elements of the authorities and the general promptness with which criminals are rounded up in this province save the community from many more crimes of this sort; and it would be most unfortunate if there were any relaxation of vigilance. It may even be necessary to establish a strong force of provincial police to assist the local officers in the general protection of life and property. When to our own rather large class of underbriables are added criminals from southern Europe, the safety of the community demands effective organization and a hand of the law that is quick to strike. New Brunswick should be made known as a province that protects its citizens and tolerates no infractions of the criminal law.

Chief Clark is President of the Association of Chief Constables of Canada. It is an honor the city is glad to see conferred upon its representative at the convention.

The reading of the report of the outside engineer on the Main street paving will, no doubt, be prefaced by the remark that experts are no good and their opinions of no value.

The death of Earl Spencer recalls an unhappy period in Irish politics, when the Phoenix Park murders shocked the English speaking world.

Prof. E. Stone Wiggins, whose death is announced, was once a much heralded prophet of the weather. But he also did valuable work as a writer on less uncertain topics. Many friends in this province have kindly recollections of the man and his work.

It is stated that the concrete pipe which brings the water supply of the city from Loch Leamond is being repaired by putting patches on the outside. This sort of patching is not of the nature of permanent repairs. What have the aldermen to say about it? Winter is approaching and the pipe should all be in first class condition before frost sets in.

Of the Methodist conference which opened in Victoria, B. C., yesterday the Ottawa Free Press says:—"This is the eighth quadrennial conference of the Methodist Church of Canada. This great evangelical parliament represents the union of all the Methodist bodies constituted in 1883. It consists of 320 delegates, equally divided between clerical and laymen from every district of the Dominion. It is the first time that the quadrennial conference meets west of Winnipeg. At the old conference of 1883 volunteers were asked for service in British Columbia, and in 1878 they reported 900 members, including Indians. Today there are in British Columbia 9,800 members and doubtless will contribute a great impetus to the church in that province by this gathering of her foremost men."

ROME AND SPAIN

Various Statements Issued Today
Regarding the Difficulties

Madrid, Aug. 15.—A semi-official note, attributed to Cardinal Merry Del Val, the papal secretary of state, some responsibility for the acts of the Vatican in the controversy with Spain. The note says that the statements issued by Cardinal Merry Del Val for the purpose, referring to the note as influencing the world, will make no impression upon the Spanish government, which is thoroughly informed of what is proceeding behind the scenes at the Vatican.

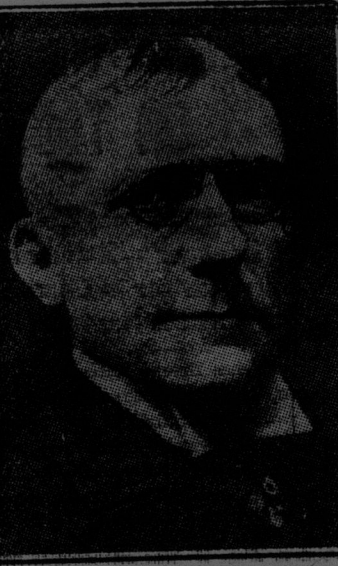

Premier Canalejas knows that every decision in the present controversy was taken solely by Cardinal Merry Del Val.

Rome, Aug. 15.—Owing to a misunderstanding, it was stated at the time of the abandonment of the clerical demonstration at San Sebastian, the Spanish summer capital, on August 7, that the Vatican has instructed the Roman Catholics of Spain to prevent the manifestation. The Vatican now wishes it clearly known that this statement was incorrect. The Holy See maintained a wholly extraneous attitude on the subject taking no steps toward the movement and doing nothing either to promote or to prevent it.

One sees many plumed picture hats; also chapeaux showing net, silk, wings and novel embroideries.

SERVING

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed.
Where deeds both great and small
Are close-knit strands of an unbroken thread.
Where love ennobles all,
The world may sound no trumpet, ring no bells;
The Book of Life the shining record tells.
They love shall chant its own beatitudes
After its own life working. A child's kiss
Set on the singing lips shall make these glad.
A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich;
A sick man helped by thee shall make thee rich;
Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense
Of service which thou renderest.

THE SAME OLD SUMMER-TIME

The same old summer-time is here,
The same old scene is set
Of dancing waters, shining sands,
And rocks where high tides fret.
The same old golden moon comes up
To make the scene complete,
Along the shore I walk with her—
The same old tale repeat.

THE SAME MOUNTAIN STANDS TO GUARD

The little lake so blue,
We paddle back the peaceful pads.
The same old bark canoe;
The same old pine trees whisper low
As dreamily we glide.
And from the same old poets pen
In thrilling tones I quote.

THE SAME OLD BAND INVITES TO DANCE

The same old band invites to dance,
And I at once make haste.
The same old music of mine
Around her slender waist.
The same "Blue Danube" sets the pace,
To make the scene complete,
Along the shore I walk with her—
The same old tale repeat.

COURT ST.CURING CRAMP IN THE LEG.
(Family Doctor.)

Many persons are greatly troubled with cramp in the legs. It comes on suddenly, and generally at night. There is nothing easier than to make the spasm let go its hold, and it can be accomplished without sending for a doctor.

When I have a patient who is subject to cramp I always advise him to provide himself with a good strong cord. A long carter will do if nothing else is handy. When the cramp comes on take the cord, wind it around the leg over the place that is cramped and take an end in each hand and give it a sharp pull; instantly the cramp will let up and the sufferer can go to bed assured it will not come on again that night.

THE COMMON COUNCIL

The Socialist party held an interesting meeting in their hall in Mill street last night. A Taylor acted as chairman, and explained the objects of the Socialist party and said there was need of a strong branch in St. John.

The speaker, J. W. Eastwood, chose for his subject, "Why St. John should have a Labor Party." He said that the Socialist party was the only logical labor party; it was a party composed of the mental and physical workers, it was a party composed of working men and women, who were out to better conditions for the working class.

He further said that the trade unions would never dream of electing employees to run their unions, and yet they sent them or their representatives to the local houses in Fredericton, and also to Ottawa, where they simply voiced their own interests and forgot all the promises they made to the working class at election times. He further said that a working man could aspire to be premier of Canada, or minister of public works, but could not sit on the

BRILLIANT SCENE AT
WESTFIELD ENJOYED

The illumination of Westfield on Saturday evening, by the members of the Westfield Outing Association was considered the most successful of any so far conducted. Nearly all the houses were illuminated, while flags and bunting added to the attractiveness of the scene, which was also brightened by the handsome lighting of the quays and boats lying at anchor in the river, and by the camp fires along the beach. The illuminations at Hillside, Woodman's Point, and Belyea's Point, were especially prettily contrived, and shone in for much deserved praise.

The whole surrounding country was lit up by the reflections from the fires and lights. The scene was enjoyed by about 500 people. At Belyea's point, through the efforts of E. A. E. Belyea and H. A. Powell, K. C., a line of about forty bonfires stretched along the sandy beach, all burning brightly at the same time. The members of the association at Westfield enjoyed a fine programme of dances with music by an orchestra, and the ladies served refreshments.

A SERIOUS THREAT.

Indians tell a story of Senator Dewridge's entrance into politics when he was little more than a boy. He won the liking of the governor of the state by a quaint little speech he made during the presentation of a petition by a delegation whose spokesman was unaccountably long-winded and tedious. The man talked to the governor nearly an hour, during which every one stood. To all it seemed that it would never end.

When, however, it finally did, the governor asked wistfully if the delegation wished to offer any further reasons for the granting of the petition.

Whereupon Dewridge remarked quietly:
"If you don't grant it, governor, we'll have that speech repeated to you."—Lap-pincott's.

Don't expect too much of a friend. Even friendship has a limit.
