IN DRESS AND PERSONAL HABITS. Don't walk with a slouching, slovenly gait. Walk erectly and firmly, not stifly; walk with ease, but still with dignity. Don't bend out the knees, nor walk in-toed, nor drag your feet along; walk in a large, easy, simple manner, without affectation, but not negligently. Don't carry your hands in your pockets. Don't thrust your thumbs into the arm-holes of your waistcoat.

the arm-holes of your waistcoat.

Don't cleanse your ears, or your nose, or trim and clean your finger-nails, in public. Cleanliness and neatness in all public. Cleanliness and neatness in all things pertaining to the person are indispensable, but toilet offices are proper in the privacy of one's apartment only. Don't chew or nurse your toothpick in public—or anywhere else. Don't use a toothpick, except for a moment, to remove some obstacle; and don't have the habit of sucking your teeth.

Don't chew tobacco. It is a bad and ungentlemanly habit. The neatest tobacco-chewer can not wholly prevent the odor of tobacco from affecting his breath and clinging to his apparel, and the "places that know him" are always redolent of the weed. If one must chew, let him be particular where he expectorates. He should not discharge tobacco-juice in public vehicles, on the side-walk, or in any place where it will side-walk, or in any place where it will be offensive.

Don't expectorate. Men in good health do not need to expectorate; with them continual expectoration is simply the result of habit. Men with bronchial or lung diseases are compelled to expectorate, but no one should discharge matter of the kind in public places except into vessels provided to receive except into vessels provided to receive the result of habit. Men with bronchial or lung diseases are compelled to expectorate, but no one should discharge matter of the kind in public places except into vessels provided to receive it. Spitting upon the floor anywhere is inexcusable. One should not even spit upon the side-walk, but go to the gutter for the purpose. One must not spit into the fire-place nor upon the carpet, and hence the English rule is for him to spit in his handkerchief—but this is not a pleasant alternative. On some occasions no other may offer.

Don't whistle in the street, in public

Don't whistle in the street, in public vehicles, at public assembles, or any-where where it may annoy. Mem.: don't

"DON'T DRINK."

Commenting on the suggestion of the Catholic Citizen and the Examiner, that the best cure for drunkenness is—don't the best cure for drunkenness is—don't drink—the Glen Cove Gazette says:

"And these two words—'don't drink' are the most useful that can be preached to the people of the United States. 'Don't drink' thundered from the pulpit and echoed by the press, followed by the people taking the advice and abstaining from the use of intoxicants, would banish poverty and crime from the land, would result in vacant alms-houses and overflowing churches, means clothing for the naked, food for the hungry, happy homes of peace and plenty for all. The Word is that the murderer shall be cast into outer darkness (hell) and that no drunkard shall enter the kingdom of heaven, shall share enter the kingdom of heaven, shall share the fate of the murderer—and the wonder is that there should be any murderers, or drunkards, or makers of mur-derers and drunkards by rum selling.

True charity is the sweetest and most True charity is the sweetest and most attractive of qualities. It smoothes away the angles, and rubs off the roughness, and diminishes the friction of life. It adds grace to daily courtesies, and makes burdens easier to be borne. The loving heart is the strong heart. The generous hand is the hand to cling to when the path is difficult. There is room for the exercise of charity everywhere—in business, in society, and in where—in business, in society, and in the church; but first and chiefest is the need for it at home, where it is the salt which keeps all things sweet, the aroma which makes every hour charming, and the divine light which shines star-like through all gloom and depression.

Mr. R. C. Winlow, Toronto, writes: "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery is a valuable medicine to all who are troubled with Indigestion. I tried a bottle of it after suffering for some ten years, and the results are certainly beyond my expectations. It assists digestion wonderfully. I digest my food with no apparent effort, and am now entirely free from that sensation, which every dyspeptic well knows, of unpleasant fulness after each meal." Sold by Harkness and Co., Druggists, Dundas street.
