

Small 4to, Pictorial paper boards, beautifully Illustrated, price 1s.;
Cheap Edition, 6d.,

Within a Mile o' Edinburgh Toun. By ROBINA F. HARDY, Author of 'Jock Halliday.' Second Edition.

'A delightfully written and illustrated story, . . . exceedingly interesting, and has high literary merit.'—Scotsman.

'Will rank amongst the best of Robina F. Hardy's works.'—Daily Review.

'A fresh, breezy story. . . . A very charming picture of Scotch ways.'—Yorkshire Post.

'One of the brightest and liveliest, and most humorous stories which the author of "Jock Halliday" has yet thrown off. . . . Some very clever artist hands have lent their aid, and so made the book doubly attractive.'—Perthshire Constitutional.

'Prettily got up, . . . nicely illustrated, pleasant reading. . . . Scenes and characters well drawn and described, true to nature and ordinary life.'—The Queen.

'An Edinburgh suburban idyl; . . . the plot is of the simplest, a mere outline, but the picture is perfect. . . . The best of Miss Hardy's books, viewed from the artistic standpoint. . . . The volume, a small 4to, suitable for the drawing-room table, is richly illustrated with a title-page and frontispiece by Mr. J. Denovan Adam, and also with full-page views of Liberton Tower, Duddingston Loch, Gilmerton, Liberton Road, Craigmillar Castle, etc.'—Christian Leader.

'With a few strokes of the pencil, Miss Hardy sets before us a quaint little gallery of portraits; . . . no brochure of the present season will be read with more delight at Scottish firesides.'—N.B. Daily Mail.

'A story of faithful lovers in humble life; . . . the illustrations are humorous and attractive.'—Literary World.

'A sweet and simple little story of the domestic affections, told with the natural freedom, grace, and elegance which characterize Miss Hardy's writings.'—People's Friend.

'Characterized by all those delightful traits which have made her other books so popular.'—Scottish Nights.

'Natives of Edinburgh will be delighted; . . . the idea of the work is capital, and well carried out.'—Dundee Advertiser.

'Simply charming. In the delineation of the humour and pathos of humble life, Miss Hardy has few equals.'—Glasgow Herald.

'Full of life and humour, and forms an admirable picture of Scottish characteristics.'—Shetland News.

'Impossible to convey a complete idea of its mingled pathos and power. The illustrations are exquisite.'—Brechin Advertiser.