The school was transferred later on to apartments in what is now known as St. Bridget's Refuge, and removed to the present house on St. Alexander street in the year 1870. The second Superior was Rev. Sister St. Wilfrid, who is now superior of the Ladies of the Congregation at Kingston, while the third is the good lady now in charge of the re-stored Academy, Rev. Mother St. Aloysius, who came to St. Pat-rick's as a teacher and was appoint-ed by her community as superior of the institution in 1880. The four hundred graduates and the thousands of Irish girls who have passed through her hands testify to the suc-cess which has attended her mission at St. Patrick's. concert was given in aid of the St. Vincent's Old Boys and Girls' As-sociation. The entertainment took the form of an opera, "Nona," by Mr. Cal. Corey, and sung under his personal direction. The efforts of the singers were much appreciated by the large audience who several times gave evidence of enjoyment. Mrs. Charlebois, little Miss Corey and Mr. Luishoffer in particular did jus-tice to their roles.

CONCERT IN AID OF PARISH OF ST. THOMAS AQUINAS.

The benefit concert in aid of the new parish of St. Thomas Aquinas, which was held in the Monument Na-tional on Monday evening last, was an unqualified success from every standpoint. The hall was crowded standpoint. The hall was crowded with friends of the pastor, Rev. Father Thomas Heffernan, who came from every part of the city to be present at the concert. A large number of the city clergy were hiso among the spectators. Of such universal excellence was would be manifestly unfair to single out any particular artist for special mention. The overture and the ac-companiments were played by Miss Agmes Lynch, whose ability as a pi-amist is too well known to need comment. Among those who sang were Miss May Coleman, Miss Fran-ces Stafford, Mrs. F. G. O'Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. Audry Bennett Gibbons and Master Russel Lavallée, all of whom have already appeared to ad-vantage on the concert stage. Mr. Ellsworth Duquette also sang and never did his magnificent bass voice sound better than it did that might as he poured out the story of The Two Grenadiers. A novelty was in-troduced in the way of a Zither Trio, played by Messrs. Ransberger, Hernick and Romul. The recitations were particularly effective, and Mr. M. J. Power, one of the best ama-teur actors in the country, scored a distinct success in "The Dream of the Reveller." This may also be said of Mr. Howard J. Turner in selections from Dr. Drummond's poems. Mr. Turner is possibly the best exponent of Drummoond's poems we have in the city, and he richly descrued the success he achieved. Mr. Shepherd also recited, with good ef-fect, from Dr. Drummond. One of the most enjoyable numbers of the evening was "The Bachelor's Farewell," performed by the G. T. B. C. Glee Club, and in which the following gentlemen took part: J. A. Asselin, J. T. McGrill Tait, W. E. Hen-nessey, H. Trainor, A. Harris, H. Bowden, A. Richards, G. Ritchie, F. Underdown, W. Brownrigg. ### Practical Work for Ireland.

The great Irish Industrial Confer-ence at Galway has just ended and the gathering was one of the most representative Ireland ever witnessed. Every manufacturer in Ireland was present, every trade was represented, every county council, as well as all organized bodies. The foreign dele-gates present were from the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Ar-gentine, France, Denmark, Portugal, Germany, Egypt, Mexico and Hayti. James O'Donoghue, chairman of the Galway City Commissioners, opened the proceedings. Edward J. O'Rior-dan of Cork, Secretary of the Irish Industrial Development.
