Nature on the Prairie

Notes and Photos by S. J. Wigley,
Edgerton, Alta.

Zygadenus Elegans

This is one of the poisonous plants of the plains, and seems to possess no common name. It is particularly deadly to sheep that feed upon it and is in consequence dreaded by stockmen.

The plant has simple grass-like leaves and the flower stem—shortened in the photograph—is from one to two feet high and bears a raceme of dainty greenish white flowers. There is also a dwarf species known as death camas, that is even more deadly than the one illustrated and occurs in abundance in some localities. Both bulb, from which the plants grow, and leaves are poisonous, paralysis and often death resulting in a few hours.

Heavy losses are yearly reported from the sheep ranches in Montana not only from the camas but from false lupine and loco weeds.

High Bush Cranberry

(Viburnum Opulus)

Altho not related to the true cranberry, the fruit of this well known bush is in great demand for the making of jellies and is often associated with "Thanksgiving turkey." Many housewives preserve the fruit whole by simply keeping the berries covered with clean cold water till required for use.

HIGH BUSH CRANBERRY FRUIT

The bush is found from New Brunswick to British Columbia and is known under a variety of names—wild guelder rose, white dog wood, squaw bark, May rose being some of them.

The fruit is a bright red in color when ripe and the bush itself is somewhat similar to the maple leaf arrow wood (viburnum acirefolium) whose fruit is black.

THE TORONTO NEWS ON TAXES

(From The Forest Free Press)

The Toronto News says:—"The farmers of Canada must pay taxes like other people." If the farmers of Canada had to pay taxes only like other people the "stay in Ontario" and "more production" campaigns, on which the Dominion and Provincial governments are spending the people's money, would be unnecessary. The News knows very well that the farmers do "pay taxes like other people," and then some. It is The News, with its big printing presses and type-setting machines, made in the States and imported free of duty, that is not "paying taxes like other people." Nearly a million dollars' worth of these big presses and machines have been imported free in the past two years, and the duty which would have been collected, had the big publishers "paid duty like other people," had to be made up by the farmers. In this shirking of its fair share of taxes The News is one of the worst sinners in Canada, because it professes to be more loyal than most other people, and uses its Yankee-made duty-free machines to tell the farmers that it would break up the Empire if they were allowed to trade in the States. The farmers constitute the only industrial class in Canada who have to pay taxes on their invested capital, their raw material and their machines and implements. The greatest boon the farmers of Canada could be given would be legislation that would enable them to "pay taxes like other people."
