An Agent Widow Meets Her Death Under Mysterious Circumstances. Milton, Ont., Jan. 12.—A tragedy of

"Mirron, Ont., Jan 12.—A tragedy oc-curred in this vicinity early last Sunday morning which resulted in the terrible death by burning of an elderly woman named Margaret Ford, the widow of the late George Ford, an old, highly respected and widely-connected farmer of the neigh-boring Township of Nelson. The casu-alty would in all probability have attracted but a passing notice were it not for the fact that many ugly rumors have arisen as to the treatment the deceased had received at the hands other nearest relatives, who had the care of her, rumors which, if sub-stantiated, will place those implicated in a ated, will place those implicated in a very awkward predicament.

MILTON, Jan. 12.—The inquest of the late Mrs. Margaret Ford was held before Coroner Foreman and Crown Attorney, Matheson yesterday. The jury brought in the following verdict: "That she came to her death by being suffocated by smoke from a fire which destroyed her house. The origin was purely accidental. We hereby exempt from blame in premises, William Beaty and all other persons."

Gossip's tongue had been busy in connection with deceased's death, and Mr. Beaty and the other relatives were placed in a very undesirable position by the groundless assertions that the old woman in a very undesirable position by the groundless assertions that the old woman had been neglected. The true story of the had been neglected. The true story of the tragedy, though unfortunate enough in itself, is devoid of anything sensational. In brief it is as follows: On Saturday night the old lady, who for some years has been failing in health and very weak in mind, was put to bed as usual and her door locked by the young woman who was in the habit of looking after her. About two o'clock on Snnday morning the furniture or bedclothes in the old lady's room became ignited and the flames quickly spread. Mr. Robert Beaty hailed his nephew, who made earnest efforts to reach the poor woman, but failed. The fire was soon extinguished, and the corpse was found lying across the bed.

CANADA'S WOOL INDUSTRY.

A Deputation From the Associatio OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—The committee ap-pointed by the Woolen Manufacturers pointed by the Woolen Manufacturers' Association waited on the tariff committee yesterday and presented a mass of figures and statistics showing the growth of the business in Canada and how it is affected by the present tariff. The manufacturers' committee, after they left the Ministers, said that they had not the slightest idea what the Government intended doing in regard to their particular industry. Mr. H. W. Heneker, president of the Paton Woolen Mills Co. of Sherbrooke, and sonin law of the late Sir John Abbott, who is a member of the committee before referred to, was asked if the woolen manufacturers was asked if the woolen manufacturers could get along with 'less tariff protection than they now enjoyed. He said: "No, the outlook for the woolen trade of Canada is very gloomy as it is. Our company has not paid a dividend for three years, though we have managed to keep the mill our employes. Our market is limited to Canada, and as wool is free now the Gov ernment cannot help us by abolishing the duties on raw materials. In view of the reductions in the cost of English and

With the girl the downward course is somewhat different, though the result is essentially the same. And where, we may well ask, lies the blaine of this state of things? Not with the helpless victim of untovard circulationary in the community which failed to step in when the parents proved false to their daty.

In proposing a remedy, the first essential is education. Not education in the harrow sense of mere intellectual instruction; but education which cultivates the heart and the moral nature, which incullocates truthfulness and gentleness and tion; but education which cultivates the heart and the moral nature, which inculcates truthfulness and gentleness and modesty and calls out the purest and noblest instincts of humanity. In providing such an education it may, and often will, be necessary to remove the child from its natural parents. In this enlightened age, it is a recognized principle that no man or woman has a right to train a child in vice, or debar it from opportunities for acquiring pure and honest habits; and if parents are not doing justly by their children, they forfeit the right to continuel guardianship. This principle is now a legal enactment in almost every Christian land, and it is only in the careful yet unfaltening use of this power, that we can hope for a noticeable reduction in our prison population. It is a duty we owe to ourselves; it is far more a duty we owe to the children who are thus unfortunately placed. Every resource of the law should be exercised to compel such parents to pay for the children refor the cilication of their children removed from their control.

For the protection of the child the removal is made; for the protection of the community, the nuworthy parent should be compelied to pay to the last farthing. For all such children real homes should be sought, where they may develop naturally, and grow up in common with all other children. An institution is not a home, and never can be made such, though it may be useful as a temporary abode in which to prepare the little one for the family circle. No child should be kept permaneutly in an institution, however good, and this is something that cannot be too frequently pointed out, since there are orphanages that retain children for periods of from five to ten years.

While there are these cases in which the only hope for the child lies in its complete removal from improper guardianshin, mere are also many children who, without removal from their nome, need a lit camper vision and as many good influences as can be brought to bear upon them. Families, for instance, where the mother is employed during the day, or, where the children, living in poor neighborhoods, are in danger of evil companionship. To help to tide such children over the trying period of childhood, and get them safely started in life's work, there are many useful aids, some of which, with some evils which are to be avoided, might be mentioned, as follows: for the education of their children rameved from their control.

The business in which so many boys are engaged—that of selling newspapers on the streets—is nurful in many ways. Besides tending to make boys cunning and unscrupulous, it is an occupation of a temporary character, leaving a youth at sixteen or seventeen years of age without a trade and altogether unfitted for any vocation which requires steadiness, punctuality, obedience or manual labor. With expensive tastes and a love of freedom, many boys of this class take to piltering to keep up their decreasing revenue from the newspaper business. It would be very desirable to have open-air news-stands located on thee-leading thoroughfares in charge of old men, and limit the number of boys now running the streets as news-vendors.

Police Stations.—No child should be taken to a police station except in a very extreme case. The fear of such a place is the best deterrent, and the child who has once been confined there is likely to lose its dread of punishment, and to return again in a short time.
