Friends must pass away.
Like landmarks round the sea.
Each succeeding moment
Bears in the flight a soul?
To its Maker—a bud,
A blossom or a flower,
Which bloom'd in Earth's Garden,
Full of life and beauty.
But God's own husbandman,
The reaper Death, ne'er tires,
A true, faithful ser'vant
Of a loving Master,
And she thy lov'd sister,
has opid the pearly gate,
Has enter'd the portal,
Has trod her Master's steps—
The Via Crucis trod
With patience, knowing that
He doeth all things well.
Then bear up, ye sisters,
Let her soul rest in peace—
Her soul that feard not death,
That lov'd the Lord her God;
That now from earth's pain is free,
And wears an angel's crown;
Gift of Immortality,
For the heart bowed down.
