SPECULATION.

Sometimes I murmur and re-pine, and all my life seems sad and sour, for every time I buy a mine it fizzles out in half an hour. Oh, some grow rich by digging gold or tin or pewter from the earth, and all the stocks and shares they hold are things of an increasing worth. But when I buy up mining shares production in a minute stops; the mine has joined the other mines; the bottom from the venture drops. All round me wealthy men reside, they made their bundles out of oil; in pomp and panoply they ride they needn't buckle down to toil. I've heard them as they talked and chatted, their fortunes never know a hitch; it seems to be an easy graft to deal in oil and so get rich. But when that sort of thing I'd try, and buy a well with hard-earned yen, in half a day that well goes dry, and I am busted once again. Some grievous lesson I have learned, but not for long a lesson sticks; throughout my pilgrimage

I've yearned to blow myself for gilded bricks. Some day, I think, a brick will prove to be of pure and yellow gold; as down the poorhouse road I move, this fatuous belief I hold. Some day my wells will turn out grease, and I'll have diamonds on my hat; some day my swans will all be geese, my goat will be a Maltese cat.

The hip-length belted or bloused coat of fur is smart for street wear.

Corns Go
Just say
Blue-jay
to your druggist

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in a colorless clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plaster. The action is the same.
