One thing, however, we can be thankful for. The Advocate's political cord (not pulpwood) is burning; meanwhile would it not be wise of that "stormy petrel" Morine to tell it that since the last elections pretty nearly half the voters of this District have sought counsel from him? It may, on hearing this, froth at the mouth and faint-well let it faint, it will mean a respite from bluff and bunkum anyhow. When it revives it may understand that for those who transform fixed laws to match inane theory there comes a bountiful crop of confusion-for those who run amok after things that are not, buildome day that they are doing all that
