THE INVITATION TO "GET OUT OF THE COUNTRY."

A Dominion Day orator advised those of his hearers who were dissatisfied with the Dominion to get out of the country as fast as possible. "Buy a ticket," he exclaimed, "for if you are not able to do that, walk down to the frontier and cross the border as fast as you can."

This is good advice for those who have no faith in their country, and who regard its inhabitants as poor, weak, puny specimens of humanity, requiring "protection" against their neighbors who may wish to sell to them and as a matter of course to purchase Canadian products in payment. The sooner Canada gets rid of that constantly lessening class of people the better.

But, judging from the context of his address, the Dominion Day speaker hardly had that portion of the community in his mind's eye. His advice rather applied to those Canadians who deem it their right and their duty to caudally criticize the management of public affairs. It has been said that it is "an Englishman's privilege to grumble" if he believes that the management of his country can be improved. And so in this fair Dominion of ours it is not only the privilege, but the duty of every loyal Canadian to combat the doctrine of "whatever is, is right," if he conscientiously believes that wrong exists.

If the British people who have from time to time combated the advocacy of class laws and hereditary privilege had taken the advice of the optimists of the day, and walked out of their country at the solicitation of the enjoyers of securities, the great reforms in the trade, land, and electoral policies of the country would have been indefinitely postponed. In that case Britain today would be a third-rate power, instead of the leader in all movements for the promotion of liberty, free trade and the arts of peace that invariably follow untrammeled commerce. Indeed, no country could hope for greatness that would countenance the exultation of the men who honestly believe that the existing government and existing laws should be improved, and are candid enough to say so and to agitate for such changes as they believe would be for the common benefit. Where would Canada have been today if the opponents of the Family Compact had accepted the advice of the official holding optimist of that day to clear out of the country if they were not satisfied? Premier Langley, of Nova Scotia, in speaking at the distribution of prizes and conferring of degrees at King's College, N. S., last week, uttered these patriotic sentiments:

"It should be the ambition of every man to advance his country's interests. Speaking for himself he would say without hesitation that no promised remuneration or honors would induce him to leave his native country to make a home in another land. If the universities of the country would only inculcate a love of country into the hearts of their students Canada would in a short time be foremost among the nations."

Yet Mr. Langley is one of the most earnest advocates of the speedy change of the Dominion trade policy. In that advocacy we believe he and the other Liberal leaders in the Dominion have the support of at least one-half of the Canadian people. What an absurdity, then, to advise those who are dissatisfied with the present condition of affairs to leave things as they are, and walk out of the country! Patriots are made of sterner stuff.

SPEAKING OF THE LANGVIEW-McGREAVY-CONNELLY-MURPHY investigation the Montreal Witness says: "It must be kept in mind that all who are concerned in this trial, both accusers and accused, the implicated and the witnesses, are of one political stripe."

VOTING AND JURY SERVICE.

Several of our contemporaries argue that a man should not be obliged by law to go to the polls and exercise the franchise which the law—the will of the people—had conferred upon him, because, after he goes to the polls he may spoil his ballot.

The law obliges a man to serve as a jurymen at coroner's inquests and in the courts of the land.

Sometimes there is a failure of justice because one or more jurymen decline to do their full duty. They do not respect their oath; they refuse to join in the giving of a true verdict according to the evidence. They prove themselves to be cranks or worse.

Do the opponents of obligatory voting say trial by jury must be abolished because a few men in every community are found to fail in doing their whole duty as jurymen?

THE NEGRO'S FUTURE.

General Francis A. Walker, in the July Forum, in an article sketching the future of the negro, shows the misleading nature of the hasty generalizations so often made concerning his future numerical strength. Taking the statistics by ten and twenty year periods since 1810 it is shown that the increase by per cent. has declined steadily, and the assertion is made that in all probability this steady reduction in the negro's relative importance in the population of the United States will never be reversed. In 1790 the negro was one-fifth of the population; in 1840 but one-sixth; in 1890 one-eighth; in 1890 less than one-eighth. The negro race is maintaining its slight rate of increase only by means of a very high birth rate over a very high death rate. As a slave the tropically-bred negro was forced to follow the interests of his northern-bred master, often into regions where he lived only at a sacrifice of vitality; but now that he can move freely from place to place industrial reasons and natural tendencies are drawing him off toward the low lands of the Gulf of Mexico, where his greatest rate of increase will be felt, and which in the nature of things will be constantly decreasing in its relation to the total population.

WHAT THE "ADVERTISER" THINKS ABOUT IT.
The Orange Sentinel thinks the one man for Dominion Premier is W. R. Meredith.
The Ottawa Journal, quoting the ADVERTISER, would like a time-limit for speeches in Parliament.
SUGGESTION, the mighty preacher, is evidently breaking up. The good he has done will live after him.
WHAT sort of a Temperance Liquor Commission will that fallen angel, "Bro." Foster, appoint? Its composition will be awaited with interest.
THERE is some reason for the number of Toronto's July drunks. If they had good water, like the citizens of London, they would be without excuse.
THAT is a curious spectacle at Ottawa, viz., Langevin in the dock of public opinion, with noted criminal lawyers straining every nerve to break down the credibility of some of the "pals."
MILLIONS of free men throughout the world will share Mr. Gladstone's grief over the death of his eldest son. In the Grand Old Man's enfeebled health, the blow is a terribly severe one.
THE Bradford Express glories that the recent suburban annexations bring the population of the city up to 15,500 people. The Express did much to achieve the result alluded to.
THE Christian Union, of which Lyman Abbott is senior editor, is now printed in new form, making it, on the whole, the handsomest religious paper, typographically, in the world. And it is just as well edited as printed.
AMONG the new exploring expeditions that have been started to remove the blank spots from the maps of the world is that of Sir Thomas Elder, of Australia, who has just gone out from Adelaide to make an exploration of the center of Australia. The unknown portions include nearly 800,000 square miles of area. If this vast interior is discovered to be habitable and useful for grazing purposes or the production of lumber, it will give a marked impetus to the settlement and advancement of that growing colony. The great lack of inland Australia, so far as it has been explored, has hitherto been water, but it has been found that even that necessity can be obtained if the people go deep enough into the earth.

There is still some talk over Rev. Dr. Douglas's objections to Sir John Thompson as Premier on the ground that he is a convert from Protestantism. If we understand Dr. Douglas aright, his position is that he doubts the mental possibility of a man of acute intellect, and in the maturity of years, honestly swinging over from being a zealous North of Ireland Methodist local preacher to becoming an out-and-out Roman Catholic of a rather pronounced ultramontane type. This is a free country, and any Roman Catholic has a right to turn Protestant if he sees fit, and any Protestant has a right to turn Roman Catholic if he sees fit. The implied charge in Sir John Thompson's case, if we have read the various criticisms correctly, is not that he "turned Catholic," which he had a perfect right to do if he chose, but that he did it from political and social reasons rather than from conviction.

The press room of the powder works at Jermyon, Pa., exploded this (Monday) morning. Philip Forkel and John Luceley were torn to pieces.

MUST BE CUT DOWN.

[Irish Canadian.]
The sands in the glass of the Abbott Government are but few. They are running out rapidly, and the days of the Government are numbered. The hulk is rotten, and the rats are leaving the sinking ship. Should the Government survive the session—which we do not anticipate—two or three reverses in the bye-elections will put an end to it. A Government so feeble, and soiled as it is, should not longer cumber the earth, but be cut down by the votes of the electorate.

WHAT SCOTCHMEN THINK.

[Glasgow Herald.]
The tariff war with the States has been a costly experiment for Canada, and has been steadily growing more unpopular. Even Sir John Macdonald did not venture to fight the last election on a bare protectionist issue. He put forth a programme of restricted reciprocity, and at the same time denounced his opponents as advocates of political union with the republic. It was by these devices, and by bringing about the struggle on an old electoral register, that he snatched his last victory. But it is becoming more and more manifest that the Washington Government will have nothing to do with restricted reciprocity; and the Conservative Ministry in the Dominion will not long be able to stand against the disappointment and reaction which the consciousness of this state of matters will create. A movement in favor of complete freedom of commercial intercourse with the States is sure to develop itself, and as Mr. Abbott and his colleagues cannot give effect to this without forfeiting the protectionist support, which is one great factor in their present ascendancy, their expulsion from office is not likely to be very remote.

Notes from Bradstreet's Review.
New York, July 6.—Bradstreet's weekly review says: "The available stocks of wheat in the United States and Canada on July 1 were about 23,000,000 bushels, which with invisible stocks in the United States indicate a total reserve not exceeding 33,000,000 bushels, the smallest at a like date for nine years."
Wheat crop prospects in the Dominion of Canada continue very favorable and export influence on general trade, which has heretofore been slow and depressed.
Business failures in the Dominion (including those for Newfoundland) increased 127 or 14 per cent. in six months of 1891 over 1890, while the increase of liabilities was $1,478,282 or 20 per cent.

NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE A Great Blood Purifier

A Sure Cure for DISCOVERY
Dyspepsia

A Medical Triumph! A Very Bad Case!
ONE OF BELLEVILLE'S CITIZENS WAS RESTORED.

Remarkable Cure of Dropsy and Dyspepsia.

Mr. SAMUEL T. CASEY, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1894 I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies, and applied to my physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of Dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever, except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my Dyspepsia and Dropsy are cured. Although now seventy-nine years of age, I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and my general health is good. I am well known in this section of Canada, having lived here fifty-seven years; and you have liberty to use my name in recommendation of your VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, which has done such wonders in my case."
