Ruhlin Knocked Out by Fitzsimmons in Six Rounds—A Pierce Battle—Baseball, Racing Events and Sports in General.

FISTO.

FITZ WON FROM RUHLIN.

Madison Square Garden, New York, Aug. 10.—Bob Fitzsimmons, of Australia, but now an American citizen, met Gus Ruhlin, the Akron giant, tonight before the Twentieth Century Club at Madison Square Garden, and won by knocking the Ohioan down and out in the sixth round. Fitzsimmons did the trick cleanly and cleverly. It was a fierce and bloody battle while it lasted, and at times it looked as if Ruhlin would get the better of the older man, but Fitz at the proper time would cut loose with his fearful body blows, which finally stupefied the Ohio boxer's light. The betting all along favored Fitzsimmons, many wagers at the rate of 100 to 50 on Lanky Bob being made. Tonight, however, at the ring-side, there was a rush of Ruhlin money, which forced the odds to take a turn in Ruhlin's favor at the rate of 100 to 90. This did not last long, however, and by the time the men put up their hands for the opening round they were equal favorites, even money being the rule. Fitzsimmons conceded about 32 pounds to Ruhlin, and this in itself was a serious handicap. From the word "go," the men started in with hurricane-like force. Both were wild at times, but Fitz was always the quicker to steady himself. Ruhlin clinched a good deal, and for three or four rounds was the aggressor. He landed some hard straight lefts on Fitz's face, and swung his right to the body and head with fearful force. Several of these blows staggered, but none of them landed on the mark, as Fitz was too shifty. Fitz forced Ruhlin to break ground, and in a hot mixup the Ohio man was always the first to ease up and take refuge in a clinch. Time and time again Fitz forced Ruhlin to the ropes, from which position Ruhlin got away rather clumsily, while Fitz was always quick in his foot movements. When Ruhlin's nose began to bleed, from a left punch, the sight of the blood seemed to have a deterrent effect on him, and Fitz took advantage of this. On the first sign of weakness on Ruhlin's part, Fitz began his attack on the body, and each blow he landed there made Gus wince with pain. Fitz's handlers kept urging him to play for his feet, but Fitz only tried to do this occasionally. In the fourth and fifth rounds both men showed plainly the effects of the stiff and rapid work they had done in the preceding rounds. Both were tired and leg-weary, but Ruhlin showed up much the worse of the two. Fitz was always the quicker on his feet at the call of time, but now and then during the rounds he seemed to stand still and glare at his opponent. Ruhlin at these times also stood still, but he was evidently grateful for the chance of breathing which Fitz afforded him. Just once Fitz touched the floor, when he slipped down from a clinch at the end of a round. In the sixth round, while Fitz jumped at his man, it was just a question of who could land a telling punch, as both men were much fatigued. Fitz, always the quicker on his feet, was able to get around Ruhlin, and while the latter sent straight lefts for Fitz's head, Bob side-stepped and landed lefts on the body and right to the head. With a volley of lefts and rights to the head and neck, and a fearful left, on the solar plexus, Fitz sent Ruhlin in a heap to the floor. This was the beginning of the end that soon followed. Ruhlin, after taking nine seconds of the count, rose to his feet, groggy from the effects of the solar plexus blow. Fitz knew he had his man, and was ready for him. As soon as Ruhlin got up, Fitz rushed, sending two lefts to the face, and then shot his right with fearful force to the point of the chin. Gus pitched forward, as if struck with an axe, and fell on his face to the floor, where he was counted out, and had to be carried to his corner.

Tovings opened with Fitzsimmons the favorite, at 100 to 90. Very soon the odds were out, and even money was the rule. There seemed to be plenty of money on each side, but the Ruhlin people kept putting it up, and soon had the odds in his favor at 100 to 90. Ruhlin weighed 194 pounds, and Fitz 162. Ruhlin's seconds were James J. Corbett, Billy Madden and Charley Goff. George Dawson, of Chicago, Jeff Thorne, of England, Dan Hickey and Bob Armstrong were the handlers of Fitzsimmons. At 10 p.m. the betting was pretty lively, even money being offered and taken freely. They were to fight 25 rounds, under Marquis of Queensbury rules.

Fitz left the ring five minutes after he had delivered the winning punch, but it took Ruhlin twelve minutes to come around sufficiently to be able to walk to his dressing-room.

"Well," said Fitz, "I'm an old fellow, and a has-been, eh? Well, I guess I was good enough for Mr. Ruhlin, and he was not so bad, either. That was as tough a battle as I ever went through, but I'm still good enough for a few more. Ruhlin is a good one, and with a little more experience he will do. He hit me some corking wallops, and although I did not relish them at the time, I can tell you he can punch a bit. I was very tired, but the further the bout went the more positive I felt that I could finish him. Towards the close Ruhlin grew very weak, and I knew I had him. He gave me a good fight, and I can give him nothing but praise."

Ruhlin, when he reached his room, was in a sort of trance, and it was a long time before he fully understood that he had been defeated. He was badly bruised about the head, and both eyes were almost closed. He did not care to talk, but managed to say: "I did the best I could, and no man can do more. Fitz whipped me, and that's all I can say about it."

Billy Madden, Ruhlin's manager, declared that Gus' defeat was due to overtraining. James J. Corbett, who acted as one of Ruhlin's seconds, also declared that Ruhlin was overtrained.

Andrew Gilmour got off again all right with his shipment of young stock for Lacombe, N. W. T.

Miss Julia Barnard and Miss Ethel Swift took a wheeling trip to the Forest City the other day. Among the pleasures recounted was a visit to the home of Mr. William Barrows, a cousin of Miss Barnard's.

Mr. James Jackson has been working at his profession out on the third concession of Westminster of late. He has a big job at Mossley to do right away.

It is to be hoped that the guilty ones will read this, and thus see themselves as others see them—those who did such a cowardly-hearted deed as that done towards the property of Mr. A. E. Barnard lately. Mr. B., going the other morning to get his cows from the pasture was startled to find them and a horse in his corn—a corn standing seven or eight feet in height. Mr. Barnard, knowing that his stock are not brachy, looked about expecting to see the bars (the means of entrance into the field) out of place. These were all right, but the next look disclosed a gap, where the fence stood, seven or eight rails high. Here the fence had been laid down rail by rail to within three rails of the ground. Mr. Barnard could hardly think it possible that anyone about there could so completely an act. It was Thursday morning that the cattle were found in the corn. Saturday morning on getting up and going out of doors Mr. Barnard found his fox-collie, a dog that was as trustworthy and knowing as could be found, lying at his accustomed place on the grass near the milk can, stark stiff and cold, "faithful unto death," the victim of some one's malleousness. Mr. Barnard has taken no steps towards redressing his wrongs, but says that surely, even in nature's so degraded, conscience may stir up reflection and lead them to despise themselves and renounce such "deeds of darkness" forever.

As Lig as a Sea.
Perhaps no lake can lay so great a claim upon the tourist as can Lake Winnepesaukee. Its every environment leads to health and pleasure, and these are the salient qualities which have made the lake famous is shown by the great and ever increasing number who annually seek the resorts with which the shores of Winnepesaukee abound. The shore line of the lake measures more than 180 miles, and its surface of nearly three billion square feet is dotted with islands numbering not far from 300, some of which are mere specks, while others in area cover several hundred acres. The rugged shore line, with its innumerable bays, inlets, harbors and the many islands furnish thousands of admirable sites for camps and summer homes.

To reach the resorts on Winnepesaukee is an easy matter. Inasmuch as the train service to Wiers at one end and Alton Bay at the opposite end is so arranged as to enable the steamer Mount Washington to make two round trips of the lake daily. The trip over the lake is a delightful one, and in making the four landings made at Wiers, Alton Bay, Center Harbor, Wolfboro and Bear and Long Islands. The Mount Washington is a staunch craft, and sufficiently large to accommodate a thousand or more people. The boat is famed for the service it serves, and a most delectable one it is, too.

The passenger department of the Boston and Maine Railroad has issued a brochure, named "Lakes and Streams," which is sent to any address or receipt of a two-cent stamp, and the Winnepesaukee Tourist Folder, together with an Excursion Book, is sent free upon application.

Summer Complaint Is Serious

It Should Be Treated Without Delay by Administering Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

There is not a summer passes without thousands of people being attacked by Summer Complaint. The prostration—often verging on collapse—which sometimes accompanies this disease makes it one of the most serious and dangerous we have to contend with during the hot months. As there is no home in Canada this year that is likely to be exempt from this all-prevalent malady, everyone should have on hand a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so that this disease may be promptly checked and cured before it has time to weaken and debilitate the system and endanger life.

Mr. John R. Burton, Brockville, Ont., says: "Last summer I was very sick with a severe attack of Summer Complaint, and could get nothing to help me until I started taking Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. The action of this remedy was wonderful, and soon it had me perfectly well."

Remember that for fifty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been the great specific for Diarrhea, Dysentery, Cramps, Colic and Summer Complaint. You may endanger your life if you accept a substitute.
