Trouble in Chitral. BOMBAY, April 27.—Serious trouble is again brewing in the State of Chitral, lying again brewing in the State of Chitral, lying between the valleys of the Oxus and Cabui rivers, where the former ruler, Afzul-ul-Mulk, was murdered by his uncle, Sher Afzul, the latter being afterwards driven out by the rightful surviving heir, Nizamul-Mulk. The State is tuil of intriguers, and Umra Khan is said to be the chief instigator of the agitation. It is stated that the Ameer of Afghanistan, who had claimed sovereignty over Chitral, is also taking part in stimulating troublesome intrigues, and is alleging that the British are endeavoring to encroach upon Chitral, It is said that the Ameer is seeking an alliance with Umra Khan and is urging the chiefs to unite in opposition to Great Britain.

The writer stated that unless tepairs were made while the vessel was lying at Liverpool the return trip would very likely prove to be a dangerous one. Spicy Libel Suit. LONDON, April 28 .- Col. Hughes-Hallett, London, April 28.—Cel. Hughes-Hallett, who married Miss Emily Schaumburg, of Philadelphia, from whom he is now separated, has brought an action for libel against John Passmore Edwards, and the Weekly Times and the Echo for a statement to the effect that Sir Charles Dilke would be the fittest colleague of Huges-Hallett in Parliement, and that Sodom and Gomorrah would be their proper constituencies, the allusion of the libel being to a certain scandal in which Sir Charles Dilke and Col. Hughes-Hallett, then Conservative M. P. for Rochester, were involved, and which at the time led to the withdrawal of both from political life. Mr. Gill, who appeared as counsel for Hughes-Hallett at the hearing of the case to-day, stated that while Passmore Edwards posed as a moralist, he was really a hyprocrite. Mr. Willis, counsel for the defense, asserted that no reader of the statement alleged to be libelous would think any worse of Hughes-Hallett's life was known to everybody. who married Miss Emily Schaumburg, of Five Distinct Cyclones Sweep Over Oklahoma.

The Death Roll Calculated to Reach Fully 100,

While Five Times That Number Have Been Injured-Texas Also Suffers from a Tornado.

GUTHRIE, Oks., April 27.—The latest and most authentic information obtainable from the cyclone-devastated section of the territory is to the effect that in the neighborhood of 100 human lives have been lost, many persons fatally injured and 500 more with injuries more or less serious.

Five distinct cyclones visited different parts of the territory between 2 and 9 o'clock in the afternoon Tuesday, and it will be days before the full amount of damage will be known. The catastrophe lies about the little town of Norman, near which two of the storms passed.

One man living some distance from the track of the cyclone found two dead bodies in his yard yesterday morning.

A baby that escaped the cyclone was killed by hallstones. At Langston, east of here, 30 houses were demolihed, a child of A. Jonos was killed, a man named Howard fatally injured, and a dozan other persons were sersously hurt.

The villages of Ransom and Cimarron were wiped out, and several persons were killed in each.

Near Parkins James Kirk was fatally interest and his son killed. Thomas Culver were wiped out, and several perseas were killed in each.

Near Parkins James Kirk was faally injured and his son killed. Thomas Culver had both legs and arms broken. Anthony Mehan and daughter were killed and a dozen others were badly injured.

Either this same cyolone or another did great damage across the Canadian River in Chickasaw county, and a number of lives were lost there.

The Catholic priest stationed at Purcell telegraphed here stating that eleva of his cangregation had been killed. The Byant family of five members had been killed.

The sufferings of the wounded were greatly augmented by the cold rain and terrific hail storm which followed in the wake of the cyolone. Hailstones foll larger than hens' eggs. A carload of coffins has been sent to Norman, and every town Oklahoma will at once raise a fund to aid the sufferers.

schools. The expenditure on public schools, he said, had not much increased since 1875. The schools attended by the mass of the people should receive the major portion of Government aid.

Mr. Wood (Hastings) complained that the aid to poor schools was not distributed judiciously.

Mr. McLenaghan enlarged on the alleged inefficiency of rwal schools.

London, April 27.—It has been learned that Mr. Gladstone, who attended a dinner party last night, was walking to his home about the time the man who fired the revolver was arrested. He saw nothing of the occurrence, and no one now believes any attempt was made to shoot him.

When the shooter was arraigned in the Bow street Police Court this morning the policeman who arrested him stated that the man had discharged the revolver in the Horse Guards parade near Downing street. He evidently intended to shoot the officer. An examination of the note book revealed the fact that it contained a mass of ravings against Irish home rule, and which was a suggestion that the murder of Gladstone would be justifiable. Upon this slender foundation the report of the attempted murder of Mr. Gladstone was constructed. Tounsend went away from Sheffield on Saurday last without informing his wife or anybody of his purpose to go away. His wife says he is subject to fits, and is often absent from home for days at a time without his whereabouts being known. He has been subject to apells of deep depression, but has never shown any symptoms of homicidal mania.

An unusually large number of people, attracted by the report that Mr. Gladstone's life had been in danger, waited for the arrival of the Premier at the Houses of Parliament. When Mr. Gladstone appeared he received a cordial ovation.

In the House of Commons to-day several questions were asked in regard to the report of an attempt on Mr. Gladstone's life. Home Secretary Asquith replied that the incident of the arrest and prosecution of a man for unlawfully discharging a revolver in a public thoroughfare was now under judicial investigation, and in the murder of President Garfield, and "warns the Unionist statesmen who indulge in abuse of Mr. Gladstone that there are people in Ireland and England ready to translate such abuse into actions."

The Daily Chronicle says that the attempt to shoot Mr. Gladstone says set he incident has embarrassed Unionist circles, and has encouraged many U

At 1:30 the first boom of the ten inch gun on the Miantonemah announced that the Dolphin, with the President on board, was passing up between the two columns of war vessels. The roar of the Miantonemah's 21 guns was followed by a salute from the Brazilian steamships Republica and Tirantes. The Dolphin replied to the Brazilians, whose sallors manned the yards. The Dolphin moved at a slow and stately gait, and the salute of each ship was distinct and sharp. The Aquidaban, flagship of the Brazilian fleet, finished saluting at 1:40, and the Neuva Espana took its turn. The Dolphin was followed by the Blake and she in turn by the Miantonomah. The bands on the ships played the national air, but it was only at intervals between the roar of the guns that the music could be heard.

When the Dolphin reached the end of the line in the neighborhood of Ninety-fifth street she dropped anchor and made preparations to receive the commanding officers of the foreign squadrons, who were presented to the President by their respective ministers. Duly attired in full ceremonial form with cocked hats and swords, the distinguished officers entered their barges and pulled off for the Presidential yacht. Sir John Hopkins, the British admiral, was first presented, followed by the naval representatives of Russia, France, Italy, Argentine, Brazil and Germany in the order named. As the President left the Dolphin and entered the barge at the foot of Ninety-sixth street every vessel in the fleet again manned the yards and rails and once more fired a salute of 21 guns. Then the President's flag was lowered from the Holphin and the public ceremonies of the day were considered over.

NEW YORK, April 28.—One o'clock was the hour for forming the land parade. The proceedings were managed by Gen. Louis Fitzgerald, of the New York State National Guard, and Commander J. W. Miller, of the Naval Reserve, acting under the directions of Admiral Gherardi, and the committee of 100 citizens appointed by the mayor. Reviewing etands had been erected by the committee at Madison Square and at City Hall Park. From these the admirals and officers of the vessels in the river and other invited guests witnessed the parade. Thousands of private stands had been erected all along the line of march, and windows, balconies and roofs along the route were utilized by the people. Gov. Flower rode at the head of the procession, followed by details from the United States army and engineer corps. The came the admirals in carriages. The foreigners were escorted by officers of our own navy. Following the carriages came the first division, consisting of United States sailors and marines, resplendent in their showy dress uniforms. The British marines were resplendent in red jackets, blue trousers, with a narrow red stripe down the side and black helmets topped with git. The band from the Blake led them. The British artillerymen wore black jackets, blue trousers with a wide red stripe down the side and little dinky caps with a yellow band and a strap under the chin. Her Majesty's blue jackets wore the regulation blue sailor's shirt, open low at the neck, blue trousers very tight at the hips and very wide at the ankle, and light straw hats. The Britons marched with precision and looked neither to the right nor left. They were cheered as they passed the reviewing stand and whenever they whoeled to turn a corner.
