8720-A PRACTICAL APRON. A serviceable work apron such as the one here shown not only protects the entire dress, but is very becoming as well. It may be made with very little difficulty, and the ease with which it may be slipped on and off is a feature that will recommend it at once to the busy housewife. The bib is cut circular, and slips on easily over the head, requiring no pins or buttons to hold it in place. A generous-sized pocket is a useplace. A generous-sized pocket is a useful addition that will be appreciated by the wearer. Such a garment as this could be successfully made from linen, gingham, madras and percale. The medium size will require 3% yards of 36-inch ma-terial for the making. Sizes for small, medium and large. A pattern of this illusbe mailed to any address upon receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

French Fried Potatoes.—Peel potatoes, cut into strips and lay in iced water for an hour. Drain and pat dry in cloth that will absorb all moisture. Have ready a kettle of deep fat, heated gradually until it is boiling hot. Test this by dropping in a bit of the potato. It should rise to the top and brown immediately. Put in the potatoes, fry to a golden brown, drain, first in a hot colander, then shake in heated tissue paper before transferring to a hot dish lined with a table napkin.

A scared man-servant, vannly endeavoring to protect his master's private apart ments, was rudely thrust aside, and a fierce-looking old warrior entered, followed by a man who was obviously more of a Levantine than a Serb. The older man, small, slight, grey-haired, and swarthy, but surprisingly active in his movements for one of his apparent age, "Thank heaven, sire, that I have been stade up to Prince Michael. He fell on his knees, caught that nerveless right hand, and pressed it to his lips.

"Thank heaven, sire, that I have been stade to see this day!" he exclaimed. The Greek, less demonstrative, nevertheless knelt by Stampoff's side. "I, too, am your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subject," said he.

The Prince did then make a supreme effort to regain his self-possession. "Thank you, General," he murmured, "and you also, Monsieur Beliani, laye only just heep told Theory."
