WOMEN TO SELL
PATRIOTIC ISSUE
OF THE ADVERTISERDaughters of Empire and Others Will Help Belgian Funds.

The various local women's organizations affiliated with the Local Council of Women are assisting with the sale of the special edition of the Advertiser, to be published for the Belgian Relief Fund. The Aberdeen Association, the girls of the Y. W. C. A., members of the Western University Alumnae and the King's Daughters of St. George's Church, have volunteered to help.

Miss Maaboth Conventer.

At a meeting of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire, held on Saturday at Cronin Hall, when the various chapters were represented, a number of ladies offered to assist in the sale of the special edition of the Advertiser. Miss Maaboth Conventer, of the Princess Patricia Chapter, is the general convenor of all the assistants, and any ladies desirous of helping should send their names to her at once. Captains are being appointed, and the various groups of "new women" given different districts of the city in which to sell the special edition.

HOME-RELIEF LEAGUE

The thanks of the league are due to six little girls—Louise Duffield, Dorothy Stevely, Babbie Chisholm, Agnes Duffield, Elaine Stevely, Laura Allen—for the gift of $12.50 for our fund. This is the proceeds of a play they held, and is the second donation from them. The officers and members of the league greatly appreciate the gift, and the spirit that prompted it.

Some weeks ago we asked our readers if any of them could spare a baby carriage for our use. We got no response to this request, but hope to be more fortunate this time—we want a carriage for a delicate baby, whose health depends on a plentiful supply of fresh air. Surely somebody has just what we want, stored in some forgotten corner of the attic.

Won't you get it out, and notify the secretary by postcard to Hyman Hall, or by telephone No. 353?

Local Items

TEA FOR DELEGATES.

The delegates to the Women's Institute convention will be entertained at a tea in the Alexandra School on Thursday afternoon of this week, and given an opportunity to visit the various departments of work at the Industrial Staff. Tea is being looked after by the Local Council of Women, and the Women Teacher's Guild, Miss Macpherson, of the Collegiate, and Miss Stuart, of the Industrial staff, having charge of the arrangements. A group of domestic science girls from both schools will assist in serving.

SALE OF WORK.

The annual sale of work and home-making will be held in Chalmers Presbyterian Church on Wednesday and Thursday, November 4 and 5. Some very nice articles will be on exhibition, as well as a goodly array of home-made bairns.

BILL AND THE WIDOW

Bill sighed at the loss of his good Sunday boots, and turning to the widow, said:

"Just pick up the lines, will you please? This brute of a horse is forever switching them out of my hands. The widow complied, and then he pulled one corner of the robe cautiously down, and the widow got in."

"What a lovely evening," said she, "and so warm I don't think we need the robe over us, do we?"

"You see she had a nice new dress and a pair of new gaiters, and she wanted to show them."

"Oh, my!" said Bill, earnestly, "you'll find it chilly riding, and I wouldn't have you catch cold for the world."

She seemed pleased at his tender care for her health, and contented herself with sticking one of her little feet out, with a long silk necktie over the end of it.

"What is that, Mr. Smiley, a necktie?"

"Yes," said he, "I bought it the other day, and I must have left it in the buggy. Never mind it."

"But," she said, "it was so careless, and stooping over she picked it up and made a motion to stuff it in between them."

Bill felt her hand going down, and making a dive after it, clutched it in his hand and held it hard and fast.

Then they went on quite a distance, he still holding her soft little hand in his and wondering what he would do when they got to Greens, and she wondering why he did not say something nice to her as well as squeeze her hand, and why his coat was buttoned up so tightly on such a face and hat so dirty, until as they were going down a little hill one of the traces came unhitched, and they had to stop.

"What a murder," said Bill, "what next?"

"What's the matter, Mr. Smiley?" said the widow, with a start that came near jerking the robe off her knees.

"One of the traces is off," said he, "well, you don't get out and put it on?"

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

"A Number of Things."

Dear Miss Grey,—This being my first call on you for assistance, I trust I shall not be too troublesome. Like the rest of your readers, I enjoy your page most of all. Will you please answer the following:

1. At dinner, should the host or hostess make the toast?
2. What year was the Boer War fought?
3. What year did good Queen Victoria die in?
4. Some months ago I started to keep company with a gentleman, and grew to be quite fond of him, although I did not show it. He told me that he cared for me, and then I did something which I thought would please him, but found that it displeased him greatly. Please tell me how I might win back his affection, as I still care very much for him.
5. Have you the song called "Life's

Engineer"—"Life is like a mountain railroad, with an engineer that's brave."

Ans.—1. The man of the house generally does, unless the guest is a clergyman, or an old gentleman.

2. On October 12, 1899, the Transvaal Boers invaded Natal. This was the first step in the conflict, and final peace was not declared until May 27, 1902.

3. 1901.

4. I don't know from reading your letter whether you still "keep company" with him. If not, it would do you to make any advances, as that would likely drive him away still further. If he really cared for you, he wouldn't think he will come back to you, if he didn't have any real affection for you, then you are better without his company. Interest yourself in something else, my dear, "the world is full of a number of things"—do you know who wrote that?

Father and Dimples.

Dear Miss Grey,—Will you kindly print in your valuable column the answers to the following questions:

1. I am 16 years old, and will graduate from the high school next June. Do you think I am far enough advanced?
2. My nose is often very itchy. Do you know of anything I could use to cure this?
3. Will vaseline make the eyelashes longer?
4. I have always lived in the city with my parents and brother, but now I have no one left but my father, who is a traveller. I have a good chance to travel about with him when my education is complete, but I think this would be tiresome. I would rather take a position, but he would always be away. Please advise.

Thanking you, I remain, DIMPLES.

Ans.—1. Yes.

2. Dissolve a teaspoonful of borax in an ounce of rosewater and dab this on the offending member.

3. Yes, if used for some time. Be careful not to get any into the eyes.

4. This is a family matter, just for you and your father to decide. If it is going to add to his comfort and pleasure to have you along, you would be glad to go with him, I am sure. I do not believe, though, that this knocking around would be good for you. Don't you think it would be best to keep your home, so he could always have someone to call "home" and have an elderly woman as a house-keeper and chaperone for you. Then you could take a position if you wished.

For Rough Hands.

Dear Miss Grey,—Would you be kind enough to publish again in your column the lotion for rough hands which was published a few days ago, as my paper was missing, and one of the ingredients was tragacanth.

Hoping it will appear in tomorrow evening's edition, if possible.

AN ADMIRER OF YOUR COLUMN.

Ans.—One and a quarter ounces of gum tragacanth, one ounce of glycerine, two ounces rosewater, one tablespoonful boracic acid. Dissolve the gum tragacanth in a glass of warm soft water, then add the rest and bottle.

Know This Verse?

Dear Miss Grey,—Have you, or any of your readers, the poem, "We Are Getting Near the Gate That Opens on the Day"? The first verse is:

"Just fifty years ago, dear wife, since first we came this way,

I have seen you in the light of life, and you my Queen of May.

The skylarks sang far up the blue, and cuckoos matched their powers,

Till I had seemed just to praise as earth was full of flowers."

Ans.—Referred to other readers.

A Fond Visitor.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am again, I am a fond visitor of the "Mail-Box" and derive much pleasure from reading your columns. Will you please answer the following questions?

1. Are the following materials in black considered proper for mourning: silk or wool, crepe de chine, moire silk and taffeta silk?
2. Now, there is a tapestry rug the same way as you do a rag carpet, it being dark green?
3. Is this time of year one's hair falls out? Mine is falling out terribly, and I feel worried about it.
4. Is peroxide harmful to use on the face?

I am enclosing a recipe for apple-sauce cake, which I have always found to be good.

Hoping I haven't troubled you too much, I am yours, BROADWAY.

Apple-Sauce Cake.—One cup raisins, 1 cup currants, 1 cup apple sauce, 2 cups flour, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup butter, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves or allspice, 1 teaspoon soda.

Ans.—1. Yes, any of the materials you mention are much used by those in mourning.

2. I refer this query to "Mrs. Home-bird," who so kindly helped us before. Will she please tell us what she thinks?

3. With some of the hair falls worst in summer; with others, winter affects the hair this way. I think this tonic should cause the hair to cease falling: One part glycerine, one part alcohol, or bay rum, one-quarter part castor oil, one-twentieth part tincture of cantharides. Rub into scalp with the finger-tips three nights a week.

4. The constant use of the bleach is sure to dry the skin too much, and turns it yellow in time.

Your recipe is very much appreciated.

Another Request.

Dear Miss Grey,—Will you kindly print in your valuable paper, if possible, the words of the old song, "Just a Handful of Maple Leaves," which came out about the time of the South African war, and another old one, "The Windmill on the Hill." She will be glad to see these in print soon, and thanking you in advance for your kindness, I remain, old Galt reader, "DODGE."

Ans.—Request referred to other readers.

Is He Worthly?

Dear Miss Grey,—As I am quite interested in your column, "The Advertiser," I am going to ask you to answer a few questions for me.

I am 20 years old, and have been going with a young man about a year and a half. I like him very much, but my mother opposes very much me going with him. She thinks he is too old for me, and thinks I should marry someone in a better position. She will not allow him to come near the house, but he does not know this. Should I tell him I have been away from home for two years, and that I have told him to the house, but this winter I intend being home, and I don't know how I am to entertain him, as it will be too cold to walk the streets, and I don't like doing that anyway.

Hoping that I have not asked you too much, and that I may read this in your column — I in the Advertiser.

Ans.—I am always sorry when a mother does not allow her daughter to entertain her friends at home. It very often rouses a spirit of opposition in the girl's heart, and she may even go to the person in question than would be the case if she met him only in a casual way. I think you will have to tell the young man frankly that your mother does not wish you to "keep company" for a year or so; that she thinks you are too young. If the man is in earnest, I think he will try and have a talk with your mother, telling her his prospects of providing a home for you. If he can show his real worth, it is very probable she can be won over. In the meantime, I think you had better obey her wishes.

OLD SONGS AND POEMS

Copies of the following, sent by Faithful Reader, Wood-Be Helper, G. V. E. Marvaleen K. and M. Elgin:

THE MILWAUKEE FIRE.

'Twas the grey of early morning when the door behind me creaked and I saw them, standing upon the cold and piercing air.

Just that little word alone is all it took to spread dismay and panic everywhere.

Milwaukee was excited as it never was before.

On learning that the fire-bells all around were ringing to eternity a hundred souls or more.

And the Newland house was burning to the ground.

CHORUS—

Oh! hear the fire-bells ringing at the morning's early dawn;

I fear the voices as they give that dreadful cry:

Oh! hear the wail of terror 'mid the fierce and burning flame,

Heaven protect them, for they're waiting there to die.

The firemen worked like demons and did all within their power

To save a life or try to soothe a pain. It made the strongest heart sick, for in that hour the bravest men

Were hushed, and further efforts were in vain.

When the dreadful alarm was sounded 'thru' the oft-mentioned story

They rushed in mad confusion every way.

The smoke was suffocating, and blinding them as well;

The fire-kindling could not be held at bay.

At every window, men and women wildly would beseech

For help in tones of anguish and despair.

What must have been their feelings when the ladders could not reach

And they felt Death's grasp around them everywhere?

Up in the highest window stood a servant girl alone.

The crowd beneath all gazed with bated breath;

They turned away their faces: there was many a stifled groan.

When she jumped to meet perhaps as hard a death.

A boy stood in a window, and his mother was below.

She saw him, and the danger drawing near;

With upraised hands, to pray for him, she knelt down in the snow.

And the stoutest man could not restrain a tear.

She rushed towards the fire, and wildly tore her hair:

"Take me, oh! God, but spare my pride, my joy!"

She saw the flame surround him and in dark despair,

Said: "God have mercy on my only boy."

TOO MUCH LOVE.

"Darling, I think of you every moment in the day."

"Law, Tom, give some attention to your work or you'll get fired."

"The reason I would like to have a lover is as follows: So I would understand the experience of being regarded that way. It would be like being up the sage-brush to plant Kaffir-corn and are shut off from the rest of the room, there is bound to be a part of my nature unworked."

"Now, there is a look in Mr. Gledware's library, a sort of alcove where you have a window all to yourself, but are shut off from the rest of the room, and that is where I was when two men came in softly and closed and locked the door behind them. I couldn't see them, but as I was starting up to find out what it meant, one of them—it was Mr. Gledware, which surprised me greatly, as he had gone with the rest to the picnic—spoke your name, Brick."

As soon as I heard that name, and saw him, I was so startled that I didn't know what to do. I was standing up to find out what it meant, one of them—it was Mr. Gledware, which surprised me greatly, as he had gone with the rest to the picnic—spoke your name, Brick."

It reminded me of the cry of a coyote I heard once, caught in a trap, that saw a Bill coming with his knife. The room was as still as death for a little while.
