Alexander McQueen Tendered Reception by Ryerson School Mothers' Club.

GIVEN PERSONAL "LOG"

Alexander McQueen, veteran school principal, who closed a career of 55 fears' outstanding service to London n June when he resigned from the city teaching staff, bid official farewell to the community, in which he was beloved by all, at a farewell reception tendered him by the Mothers' Club and the teachers of Ryerson public school in the school audi-torium Tuesday evening. As a token forium Tuesday evening. As a token of appreciation of his six years' direction of one of London's newer schools, Mrs. W. A. Tanner, on behalf of those assembled, presented him with his personal "log" of Ryerson school events which had been tastefully bound. Mr. McQueen leaves London immediately for Tavistock, where he intends to reside with his daughter and spend the afternoon of life, which he feels sure will be enriched by fond recollections of his pleasant associations with thousands of pupils, many of whom are now leaders in the professions are now leaders in the professions and in business in all parts of the continent.

To former members of a certain To former members of a certain class in the early history of Askin street school—now Victoria school—the presentation scene last night could easily have led them to believe they were once more under the paternal care of their teacher, for Mrs. Tanner, who made the presentation, had been a member of their teacher. had been a member of that class, and one could not truthfully say that the trials and labor of intervening years and the misdeeds of scores of "Peck's bad boys and girls," who, thanks to the kindly advice of Mr. McQueen, have since seen the control of the trials and the misdeed of the control of the trials and the misdeed of the trials and the trials are since seen the control of the trials and the trials are true to the trials and the trials are trials and the trials are trials. have since seen the error of their ways, had detracted one whit from the kindly disposition of the dean of London pedagogues.
Hold Business Meeting.

A short business meeting of the Mothers' Club preceded the presentation, and a musical program and refreshments followed. During the evening Mrs. Tanner presented Miss Agnes Bryans, former kindergarten teacher at the Ryerson school, with a book as a mark of appreciation of her services while a member of Mr McQueen's staff.

The program included addresses on the Scholar," by H. B. Galpin, and "Community Spirit in the Schools," by Inspector V. K. Greer; solos by Miss Margaret McGregor; a violin
