The Stock Farm.

Can there be any truth in the rumor, that on account of outside influences that have been brought to bear on the Attorney General, he will relinquish for the present, the project to remove the Stock Farm to York County? Surely the Government will not voluntarily yield, and the Board of Agriculture, by yielding to such a pressure. The vote has been passed by a joint meeting of both houses, that the Farm shall come to York, and the public, with the exception of a few hotheads that are influenced by local feeling, will expect the Executive to stand by its determination. The FARMER will refuse to believe the rumors that are being freely circulated regarding this Stock Farm business, till there is some assurance from the Government party itself, that such are correct.

A Maritime Exhibition.

The great Exhibition to be opened at New Orleans, on December 1st, and closed May 1st, is said, with many of its features, to resemble the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia, in 1876. The total ground made for the Exhibition is 1,000 acres, and the estimated cost, at $1,000,000, is given by the United States Government, two hundred thousand dollars by the citizens of New Orleans, and half that amount each by the State of Louisiana and the Mexican Government.

The Maine Exhibition.

The Maine Exhibition, now being planned, is the largest structure ever erected, covering 30 acres of ground under roof. The structure is to be built of wood, and is to be the largest of its kind in the world.

The Prohibition Candidate for the Presidency.

John P. St. John, ex-Governor of Kansas, who has been chosen as the Prohibition Candidate for the Presidency of the United States, was born in Rockville, Franklin County, Indiana, on the 26th of February, 1838. He had for many years been a staunch advocate of the cause of temperance.
His election was thus afforded by a compact school in a log school-house, in a new settlement. But, with an inherent thirst for knowledge, he made the most of his limited opportunities. Every moment of leisure he spent in pursuing such books as he could by borrow, and thus he made himself familiar with history and biography, his favorite studies. In the beginning of his term he found employment in a store, and received six dollars a month for his services. Before he was quite twenty, he caught the "old disease," and not getting right in a twinkling, he turned his hands to any honest labor to relieve his suffering, chopping wood, cleaning clothes, and in various ways, he earned his living by the sweat of his brow. He even kept a little money which he sent from time to time to his parents, and filled every leisure hour with study. During his stay on the Pacific Coast, he made voyages to South America, Mexico, Central America and the Sandwich Islands. In 1863 he was engaged in the Indian war in Northern California and Southern Oregon. In these campaigns he fought bravely and was twice wounded.

"An Idyl."
Arabella was a school-girl—
So was Sally Ann;
They were thick as school-girls can be;
Deadlier love they were,
Yoked that nothing on earth should part them One forever more.
They grew up as school-girls will do;
Went to parties, too;
And as old folks have happened,
Sally came to woo.

Favored blue-eyed Arabella
More than Sally Ann.
And, of course, it made no difference That the laws are such That he could not wed two women; Though they wished it much.
So a coolness rose between them,
And the cause—a man,
Cold was Arabella—very—
Cold as Sally Ann.

A New Brunswick in Minnesota, recently wrote to the Chatham World, in which he strongly urged young men who were leaving from this Province to the Western States, to consider well before taking such a step. He gives some letters from his own experience, and we make a few extracts from his letter. He says:—
"While living in New Brunswick, I was very much interested in the question of emigration. I have seen many of the Western States, in particular, those who had been there, and those who had not.
I was inclined to believe that the Western States were a better place to live than New Brunswick, in every way. I have seen the country, and I have seen the people. I have seen the
