DIED IN LYNN

Harding D. Porter, Veteran Grocer, Has Passed Away

(From a Lynn Paper)

Harding D. Porter, for more than 46 years engaged in the grocery and provision business at 9 Broad street, Lynn, and who retired from active business about a year ago, died early this morning at his late residence, 155 Queen street. The deceased had been in poor health for the past few months, but had not been confined to his bed until about three days ago. His sudden death this morning was due to heart trouble. The deceased was highly esteemed throughout the city and won for himself hosts of friends in business and in fraternal organizations. He entered the grocery business in the firm of Porter & Taylor on Summer street. After four years there he spent another four years associated with Young & Porter, operating two stores, one on Broad street, where the E. S. Young store is located, and another on Market street, where Patterson's clothing store now stands. From there he became affiliated with Porter, Hanson & Co., at City Hall square, whence he entered the H. D. Porter & Co. on Broad street 22 years ago. The deceased was a member of Golden Fleece lodge, A. F. and A. M., and of Sutton Royal Arch chapter; was past thrice illustrious marshal of Zebulun council, a member of Olivet commandery, and also served as past senior deacon of the Golden Fleece lodge. He was one of the most highly esteemed masons in the city. He was born in Paradise, N. S., 69 years ago, and had lived in Lynn nearly all his life. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Alfred T. Hawes, of this city, and two brothers, Thomas F. and Samuel F. Porter, both of this city.

THE FUNERAL

Simple and impressive were the funeral services of the late Harding D. Porter, who for more than 46 years, had been engaged in the grocery and provision business at 9 Broad street, held at his late residence, 155 Ocean street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The casket was hidden beneath a profusion of fragrant blossoms, suggesting the esteem in which the deceased had been held by his business associates and brothers in the several fraternal organizations with which the deceased had been affiliated. Rev. Frederic W Perkins of the First Universalist church officiated. The Harvard quartet, rendered "Nearer My God to Thee," "Able With Me," "Some Day We'll Understand." The burial was in the family lot in Pine Grove Cemetery. Conspicuous among the floral tributes were those from Golden Fleece lodge, A. F. and A. M., Olivet Commandery, Sutton Royal Arch Chapter, Zebulun council, Bay State lodge, I. O. O. F., from the employees at the E. J. Cummings' market, on Broad street, and many others from relatives and friends. [The late Mr. Porter, above referred to, was a nephew of Mr. David C. Freeman, of Paradise.]

AT REST

Brother, your work is done; The strife and struggle cease. The victory is won; You rest in quiet peace. We close the weary eyes, The pale, tired hands we fold, But memory never dies When lives true goodness hold. Your voice we hear no more, In accents firm, yet low, For you death opened the door Through which we all must go. Inactive seems the will, Alike the brain and heart, But they are conscious still, Because of God a part. Loved one, a short farewell, For we shall meet again, Where souls immortal dwell, For ever more to reign. Brother, we lay you down Within the walls of earth, Above awaits a crown For merit, kindness, worth. We lay you close to those You know and dearly love; Your bodies here repose, Your souls have met above. Good night, good night, good night, We take one last embrace, May God's eternal light Shine on your calm, dear face. —THOMAS F. PORTER

REALLY A PLEASANT TASK

Bancroft Times:—Every once in a while some cheerful individual remarks to us: "Well, now that the paper is out, I suppose you can take it easy for three or four days." Yes, how delightful it is that a country editor has nothing to do between press days Business runs along automatically. When paper bills come one money drops off the trees with which to pay them. Subscribers vie with each other to see who can pay the farthest in advance. Advertisers beg for additional space. And the way the news hunts up the edition is also pleasant to contemplate. There is something strange about the way the news items act. When the paper is out the editor simply goes back to his easy chair and looks wise and waits for next week's press day. The day before press day the people line up in front of the office door and they file past the desk and tell him all the news of the week. He writes it up in fifteen or twenty minutes, takes it back and hangs on a hook. The compositors take the copy and shake it over the type cases, say a few mystic words, the type flies into place, and after a few passes by the foreman the forms are ready for the press again. And the editor goes down and deposits some more money in the bank. It is the greatest snap in the catalogue. Now if the editor could only do away with the press day his job would be complete.

HOW THE WORLD LOOKS TO THE PESSIMIST

When the pessimist arises in the morning he feels sure in advancing he is going to nick his face a shaving or stick some tooth paste in his eye or something like that. He feels convinced that at breakfast his coffee will be cold and the eggs not cooked to suit him. Because he feels this way he does just exactly what he had expected to do, he cuts out a nice meaty ham from his chin, he declares the coffee is cold—though it is warm enough for all the others in the house—and he calls down the cook for the condition of the egg, although they have been cooked just as usual. With this bad start the pessimist feels, as customary, that it is going to be an unlucky day for him. He declares gloomily to himself that before the day is over he will lose a couple of customers and fall down stairs and break his neck or something. Consequently he is in just the right mood to get the boss in a condition where a call down is inevitable. He loses a couple of customers because he has told himself it is inevitable that he will lose them. And he does fall down and break his neck—but—just at the critical moment—a smiling optimist steps up and saves him. Which leads us to a consideration of the way the world looks to the optimist. The optimist arises in the morning with a tune on his lips and a gladsome smile upon his countenance. He knows he is going to enjoy his breakfast, and because he feels that he is going to like it—there seems one of the best breakfasts he ever ate. He knows he is going to be paid by the boss and make new sales records during the day, and all that—and because he has this attitude toward his business—he gets what he expects. And he feels that before the day is over he will help some poor sufferer who, as stated above, turns out to be the pessimist. Pessimism and optimism are almost percent states of mind. How does the world look to you? Which are you?—Winnipeg "Tribune".

WHERE PRESS AND PULPIT MET
