

Jews, as there was on the Millennium. It would not be edifying for the Assembly to go into all that; but all were agreed in embracing the Jews as a fit subject for missionary enterprise, and the interest was one altogether too great to be omitted by a Committee on Foreign Missions. There was a great solution to come, some day, of all these great questions. The language of prophecy certainly did cover the whole ground of the Jewish restoration, the destruction of Popery and the conversion of the heathen; it covered the whole vast field of foreign missions. And it was impossible to strike out the Jews from our programme of missionary effort, without turning away from our duty, and mutilating the scheme of general good to be accomplished. There might be in the Divine mind a synchronism as to the great wants for the blessing of the world, and it was not for us to turn away from any portion of the promise or the prospect set before us in the Bible. Jerusalem was to be trodden down of the Gentiles till the times of the Gentiles should be fulfilled, and then all Israel should be saved. There was a definite time distinctly alluded to; and if there was one thing clearly taught, it was that God loved those who loved and cared for his ancient covenant people, and that he would execute his fierce judgments on all who oppressed them. He had never given Jerusalem a bill of divorcement; and it was a striking difference between Protestantism and Popery, that the one cherished and cared for the poor outcast exiles, while Popery every where hated and oppressed them.

WHAT THINK YOU OF IT!

A communication has been received, not only highly flattering as respects the value of this monthly paper, but suggesting that each able reader "advance the sum of $2 per annum," for the purpose of forwarding the interests of the Banner in various ways, and among others to assist us "to send to those who would be instructed by the Christian Banner and who have not the means to pay." We have not space to say much on this proposition, but we give it to our readers to be disposed of as it is deemed expedient and wise. Several friends within the past three years have voluntarily attended to what is equivalent to the suggestion, and have regularly forwarded to us from two to three dollars a-year to aid in maintaining and circulating this work.

TO SUBSCRIBERS IN THE EAST.

According to a purpose long cherished and a promise of long standing, I prepared to make a visit to friends in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island during the past summer. My trunk was packed for the journey in the month of July, and I actually proceeded as far as Picton, sixty miles east of Cobourg, on my way to the Provinces on the Atlantic. I was on all hands advised
