It will be seen from these figures that, although they increased year by year, the scope of the R.C.S. at the beginning of the war was fairly limited.

The entire cost of the Navy in 1937, just before the outbreak of war, was less than half the cost of the Harbour Bridge, Montreal. Still, the Navy staff and sea gunners they could for the battle whose coming against mine ships before them seen they.
