HOLLEN ROACH
THEIR STORES IN COUBOURT

The Evidence in the Ponton Case Yesterday At Cobour was Hard Against the Prisoner.

Holden Repeated His Former Evidence, and Roach Gave a Recital
Which was Precisely in the Same Line--The Court was Crowded and the Interest Intense.

Cobour, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—"Surprise" was written all over today's proceedings when John T. Roach was called by the Crown. Everyone was significantly turned into a question mark. The defence did not expect anything, for W. G. Wilson, counsel for Roach for the past two months, said Roach had continually protested his innocence, but Lawyer Preston of Napaeu had a card up his sleeve all morning, and suggestion of this nature was communicated to the World when Mr. Preston said he had been chosen by Roach as his counsel. No doubt the argument that prevailed with Roach was that Mackie had stood and, as a result got ten years. The evidence was as strong against Roach as against Mackie. What better result could Roach expect? Hence Roach became a Crown witness out and out, qualified to receive the usual clemency in such cases. No one would be surprised if he got off altogether. It is true that immediately after this trial he will be indicted in Cobour. The case will soon be disposed of.

THE COURT OPENED.
Holden's Evidence Was the Feature of the Morning Sitting--Interest Growing.

Cobour, Sept. 20.—The second day of the Ponton trial opened cool, cloudy and depressing. Additional strangers are in town and one can recognize the steadily growing interest in the case.

The prisoner William Mackie was brought from Kingston penitentiary today to give evidence for Ponton, and Holden was brought down to the court house from the jail here.

The cross-examination of Mr. Baines elicited nothing significant. He said that in May, before the burglary, he was warned that an attempt was made to rob the bank, but the men who came to do it got drunk and separated.

A number of witnesses were called who swore that they saw Holden, Roach and Mackie together about Napaeu, the three former as tramps.

William Burke, inspector of police, Boston, Mass., swore that he arrested Holden there and rescued the unslung bills shown in court yesterday. Mrs. Holden was putting them into the evidence.

Holden's Evidence.
The first real sensation of the trial occurred when the prisoner William Holden was called by the Crown. Mr. Oler told him that he was at liberty to give evidence, but was not bound to do so. No one to look at Holden would imagine him to be a professional burglar.

The Crown's case will be closed tomorrow at noon. The chief evidence to be produced will be concerning the finances at the time of the robbery. Holden in his evidence this morning said that Ponton had told him in August that he had short in his cash $100 for about a week, and thought it best to get the money tomorrow morning the specification book of the bank will be put in to show that this was correct. The question arises, how could Holden know such a piece of inner bank history if someone had not told him, and of course everyone knows where the signboard of the Crown points.

Ponton's Financial Condition.
The Crown bases much of its case upon the financial condition of Ponton at the time of the robbery. It is claimed he had $10 in urgent debt at that time and had no visible means of meeting his liabilities.

This is considered a very unsatisfactory not to say suspicious, state of affairs. The statement that he received his O.O. without the consent of the inspector, and in fact, against his express order, is claimed as another straw blowing the same way.

The matter of the musty bills also comes to-morrow morning. Money deposited by Mrs. Wray of Napaeu will be traced to Miss "Bonnie" Hunter, and thence to Hope McGinnis of Belleville. It is said these bills have been traced from Montreal, from Hastings and, from Brighton, to all comes back to Hope McGinnis. The inference is that McGinnis was a friend of Ponton and so on in the usual Crown custom.

Mackie Has Changed.
It is a fact that Mackie has changed considerably in his views since the last trial. From a reliable source The World was informed that Mackie had made overtures to the Crown in the hope that he might be allowed to become a Crown witness and reap what benefit would possibly occur.

The reason that would prevail with the Crown against accepting such overtures is that Mackie has already on oath made a statement denying complicity in the robbery. For him to renege this statement would be to stultify him, and in no way increase the dignity of the Crown's case. In spite of this it would not be a surprise, and would certainly be in line with the Crown's action to-day if Mackie were put upon the stand to-morrow morning. The defence would not say to-night that they intend to call Mackie. Nor will they deny it. On the other side the Crown, asked point blank, refused to make a statement. The night closed with the query, Will Mackie confess even as did Roach? The case of the defence will not be finished before Friday night. It is the intention of the counsel to present only witnesses whose respectability and reliability were above parley.

This is not the reason when the umbrella man, who once figured in the case, will appear. Nor will Shap Baldwin have a chance to win the court with her snuff, but Billy Ponton will be put in the box in his own defence, and certainly if a handsome, clear, red, vigorous boy, looking the picture of innocence, should be able to "take good" testimony Billy is the boy.

Speculation a Rife.
Speculation as to the verdict the jury will bring in may be premature, but it is rife. A disagreement, if not an acquittal, is spoken of. In case of that it is likely the case will never come up again, for the Government is in no humor to have a new trial, having already spent an enormous amount of money. A peculiar incident oc-

Montreal, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—The Dominion Trades and Labor Congress this morning adopted the following resolution: "Whereas, this Dominion Trades and Labor Congress has for several years pronounced strongly in favor of proportional representation; therefore, be it resolved that hereafter, and including the present session, all elections in connection with this Congress be held under the Hare-System system. Referred to committee. The Credentials Committee reported in favor of setting Ernest Denon as representing the barbers' union of Quebec. Carried.

A resolution was adopted on motion of Delegate Darlington, seconded by Delegate Gentry, that they threaten whose employes are regularly organized as unions men be penalized.

Delegates' arraignment gave notice of the fourth article of the constitution by which section 4 of the constitution be amended by striking out the words "distinct assemblies of the various trades and local assemblies of the various of labor."

There is Outward Calm in England But Military
Are Working Hard.

ACTIVITY AT WOOLWICH

Lord Wolsley, Sir Evelyn Wood and Mr. Chamberlain in Conclave at War Office.

NEWS MUST NOT BE GIVEN OUT

Kruger Will Recede No Further--
Waiting Free State's Move-- Harcourt Denounces Both.

London, Sept. 20.—Despite all outward show of calm, Great Britain is in practical the same condition as was the United States a few weeks before the opening of the war with Spain. Beneath the crust of diplomatic reserve the military officials are working night and day, preparing for the signs which begin hostilities, whether that comes or not.

Will Not Be Caught Napping.
England is not going to be caught napping any more than the Transvaal. While Lord Salisbury is only at home in Hatfield House, Mr. Chamberlain is buried in work at the Colonial Office, and double forces at the Royal Arsenal and dockyards are straining every nerve to equip and transport troops to the Cape. Many set down for certain that Great Britain
will do nothing to precipitate matters, and
the Colonial office is far from admitting
that the case is hopeless.

The report that Great Britain has demanded the dismantlement of the forts at Johannesburg, to the Cape, is a very
set down for certain that Great Britain
will do nothing to precipitate matters, and
the Colonial office is far from admitting
that the case is hopeless.

War Department Working Hard.
Meanwhile the Marquis of Lansdowne,
Secretary of State for War, who returned this morning from Jubbah, has had long conferences with Gen. Lord Uxbridge Worsley, held marches with Gen. Evelyn Wood, adjutant general to the forces, and the activity at headquarters is reflected in the constant study and transport partments.

The structure of the transport depots for the Mediterranean today with little doubt will be witnessed by a large and enthusiastic crowd.

At Woolwich activity increases daily, especially the Ordnance department, where Maxim guns, Lyddite shells, ballou equipment, gas, and other weapons for the army are being prepared. The depot is a busy scene, and the work is being done with a rapidity that is unusual.

Business of the Day.
While rumors of the reassembling of Parliament are current, the fact is recalled that in the original war in South Africa
Britain declared war first and then assembled Parliament. This evening the Marquis of Lansdowne, Secretary of State for War, warns all subordinates to give the Transvaal
the information without the authority of their superiors, and calling attention to previous breaches of duty in this respect, the order says, "will be no longer tolerated."

Kruger Will Recede No Further.
Advices from Cape Town this evening are to the effect that the Transvaal will not recede from its present position. The Transvaal will not recede from its present position. The Transvaal will not recede from its present position. The Transvaal will not recede from its present position.

Frank McGuire Threw His Wife into the Street and Then Camped in His Own Cage.

Smashed the Stove to Bits -- Fell Out a Window and Was Arrested in a Flash.

Frank McGuire made things lively about his home, 216 East King-street, yesterday afternoon. He carried on to such extent that a crowd of 200 people gathered before a policeman was to be seen. He started by putting his wife out into the street. The woman tried to get back into the house again, and was prevented by the husband. Fearing violence at the hands of the crowd, McGuire then beat a hasty retreat by taking refuge in his house. At this time the police arrived, and McGuire defied them by smashing everything of value in the house. He took an ax and broke in the stove top with one blow. Next he chopped up a new organ with the picture and making large cuts in the wall. He then went to the window sill, and suddenly the crowd was surprised to see him topple over and roll on the sidewalk. The officers quickly seized McGuire and took him to the police station. McGuire was being taken to the patrol box in Montreal, and it is feared he has succeeded in interfering in McGuire's behalf, and he was also taken into custody. They are both charged with being drunk. McGuire and his wife keep a lodging house at the above address, and the former was only recently released from jail.
