DEPENDS ON A DATE Whether Legacy of Stolen Shares Goes

to Rich Man's Heirs. Paris. July 21. - A curious lawsuit is now occupying the attention of the Paris courts. Some years ago a wealthy landed proprietor in the Pas de Calais department, died, and left a subyears after his death fifty Austrian bank shares which had belonged to the July, at 2:30 p.m., the jewelry stock deceased were sold in England. These were traced to the servant-legatee, who appears to have purloined them from her master's safe. The woman was prosecuted and condemned for theft. i, Now the dead man's heirs, who suffered financially from the theft, are asking that the legacy to the dishonest servant should be declared void on the ground of the ingratitude evinced in robbing the testator. The legal problem is whether the robbery took place before or after the death of the testator. The defense says that it took place after the death, and that, therefore, there was no ingratitude shown toward the deceased, as immediately he died his property passed to his heirs.

Judgment has yet to be given.
