A GAME EFFORT

Hand it to Parkdale. The west end paddlers must have set up many nights figuring cut the proper system to beat the Granites. The burning of the midnight oil was justified. The water dogs might off was justified. The water doss camped light on their men for sixy minutes, checked the Granites into incividual efforts and beat them, 3 to 1.

The Church street club have offended the goddess of luck. They had at least the goddess of luck. They had at least the goddess of luck. the goddess of luck. They had at least three shots to Parkdale's one, and only sprung the twine once in the hour of play. Ernie Collett, in the Parkdale net, played the game of his career. He stopped them from near and far and had a merry old time flopping to his knees. Three times he skated to the side to Three times he skated to the side to 15 to save the score. The campaign to keep the net guardians up got a great boost last night. Semething must be done. Parkdale did everything just right. The greatest credit for the victory must go to Muston and Eltherington. Muston checked Aird until the Granite leftwinger was dizzy. Eltherington was all over the pond, sticking his cane and his body in front of the puck-carrier. When the Church street crew got 10 within hitting distance they found two or three checkers under their feet. Aird failed to get the puck off the ice all or three checkers under their feet. After failed to get the puck off the ice all night. Watson was pestered inta usclessness and the rest stopped still. It was a heart-breaker for the Granites. They tried early and late, Rushed up the whole team when Collett was resting with the penalty-timer and the result of the night's work was a lonely goal goal.

The Granites paid far too much attention to the man early. They bumped themselves into the ground. That good passing and the hard lifts that characterized their work in the last two gomes were missing. The checking was too close and the going hard with the effort to bump. fort to bump.

Checking Fiends.

Checking Fiends.

The Parkdale defence were great. They got plenty of help from the front line, who raced back and into the checking like fiends. Woodcock was a bear at both defensive and offensive work. Mc-Caffery checked hard, but wasted his efforts on the offensive by shooting from outside. Stewart was brilliant in spots, but tired badly. He was busy at bumping and couldn't stand it.

Hugh Fox seemed to be the only Grainite man to keep to his form. He worked like a beaver all night, rushed repeatedly, but also found the going harder the closer he got. Granites' shooting was off the mark under the close tab kept on them by the Parkdale checking fools. Watson and Aird were pinned fown all night. Rommerill was over-anxious and checked too hard to be effective. Crane was good in spots. Laflame made superhuman efforts to Granftes deserved two or three goals in the opening period. They rushed in two and three at a time, only to have Collett come cut and save the goal by great stops, some of them on his kneed. great stops, some of them on his knees. Stewart put in his best licks in this round with a sweeping check that broke up a dozen Granite rushes. Parkdale put on the lid with the checking early. Aird missed a grand chance when Fox save him a pass and Aird swept it past the net.

Eitherington opened the scoring by taking a pass from McCaffery, closing fast from the side and beating Addison.

There was a delay when Collett broke a skate and retired to change. He signalized his return by saving two shots. Aird gave Watson a pass. Harry had Collett beat, but he dropped to his knees and stopped a count. Off he went for a minute and Granites tried all the tricks, but failed. McCaffery subbed in the a skate and retired to change. He signalized his return by saving two shots. Aird gave Watson a pass. Harry had Collett beat, but he dropped to his knees and stopped a count. Off he went for a minute and Granites tried all the tricks, but failed. McCaffery subbed in the net and stopped a hard one from Watson. Wright got inside after Collett came back, but couldn't beat the Parkdale goalie. The period ended with Parkdale having the only goal scored.

The Same Story.

It was the same in the second. Parkdale stuck right to their knitting and kept the lid down with the checking. A minute after the twenty minute spell copened Stewart beat Addison with a hard shot from outside the defence. Collett earned another peralty in this round for the sweeping the ice act, but still the Granites couldn't ram in the goals.

Eltherington tore down, drew over the delence and the checkers and slipped it across to Ingoldsby along in front of the interior of the interior by a pass.

Guelph has got one of the finest hockey ice surfaces west of Toronto Arena and are anxious to bring together some of the best O.H.A. teams that would like to meet on neutral ice. Guelph patrons will patronize hockey, and will give ovations to winners or losers. Let me hear from you secretaries. We have only a factory league here at present. Address H. E. Wicks, Box 239, Guelph.

The 27th Troop, Boy Scouts, proved too tough a proposition for the 35th Troop to handle last night at Victoria Rink, and romped away with the game by a score of 13-6. The forward line played well together and were a puzzle to the boys from the east end, althour agood showing against the speedy fellows of the 27th. The teams:

defence and the checkers and slipped it ecross to Ingoldsby along in front of the net and the third Parkdale score was chalked up. Even this did not break the spirit of the Granites. They will be the checkers and the third Parkdale score was chalked up. Even this did not break the spirit of the Granites. They break the spirit of the Granites. They still kept up the pressure, but nothing would break right for them. The period ended with it three to nothing.

The last was lively. Granites pushed every man into the offensive, but the only goal came with Collett doing his third penance act. Aird got it. Granites got a couple of offside scores, but they don't count on the official sheet. Every trick, was used, but still Parkdale's luck held out and with the paddiers playing the course of the cours Reld out and with the peddiers playing that had defensive game for a spell the had defensive game for a spell the failed to go to the curiers. This being the first game of the intermediate of the contract of support mediate series a good crowd of supporters was en hand to look over both teams. Broadview trotted out the team that brought home the bacon for them in brought home the bacon for them in the 135-lb. class of the recent tourney, while Central's five were what was left after the senior team had their pick of the talent. They were all defence players and therefore the checking was close and strenuous at the start and the for-ward work not of the best. Central changed their team around after ten ndinutes of play and the switch seemed to improve things. Half-time arrived with the score standing Central 9, Broadview 8. Central started fast in the sec-ord half and began to show some semb-ance of team play, tho their shooting was bad. They "rainbowed" many easy was bad. They "rainbowed" many easy ones over the net on what looked to be sure counters. Reaburn was doing the bulk of the work offensively for Central, while Beaton and McMurray were best for Broadview. "Cease fire" saw the score board reading Central 25, Broadview 16. The line-up dew 16. The line-up Central (25) Lee (4) and Halden (6).

Central (25) Lee (4) and Halden (6), forwards; Reaburn (11), centre; Newell (2) and Tresidder, guard; Winfield (2) and Pardington spares.

Broadview (16) Beaton (7) and Vazlna, forwards; McMurray (9), centre; McCahe and A. H. Elliott, guards; F. W. Elliott and Kerr, spares. The second game brought together Broadview and Central seniors. Central were short Jobson on the forward line owing to illness, while Broadview trotted out their regular line-up. Kelly ted out their regular line-up.
