TORONTO ARTIST MAKES GOOD IN PARIS.

Goes to London to Arrange for Exhibition of His Work.

LONDON, July 18.—Most Canadians who go to Paris make a point of visiting the studios of Canadian artists who are resident there. French capital is much more of a center for Canadian art than is London, and the majority of Canadian artists who come to London come via Paris.

Mr. Frank M. Arrington, of Toronto, who has made an excellent reputation as a painter in Paris where he has resided for a number of years, was recently in London, to arrange for an exhibition of his works at the Etoile Gallery. This will be his first exhibition in London the examples of his work, as well as that of Mrs. Arrington, can be seen in the British Museum the next question, the artist himself having selected a number for inclusion in this collection last year.

BELL-PIANO COMPANY Noncommittal Regarding New Building.

The World man called on Mr. Wimpey, manager of the Toronto branch of the Bell Piano Company, yesterday to ascertain the location of their new building, reported about to be erected near their present location. The manager, however, was reticent, and stated that while plans were under discussion the announcement of a new building was premature.

But you had decided to vacate your warehouses at 146 Yonge street, haven't you? The World man asked. "Well, I would say that it is highly probable we will move within the next year, as it is imperative that we have more space," came the rather evasive reply. "Is there nothing definite decided then?" "Nothing definite," came the guarded reply, and it looks as if the public must wait official announcement for some little time yet.

EXECUTIONER'S AXE USED IN GERMANY.

Headman in Evening Dress—Woman Fainted at Sight of Weapon.

BERLIN, July 18.—Two women and a man were beheaded in Germany. At Strassburg, Magdelene Wendel and her lover, a man named Hirth, were executed for the murder of the woman's husband, whom they poisoned.

The execution took place within the city prison. It is reported that the woman fainted with terror when she saw the block and the headman in evening dress with a great axe in his hand. The headman's assistants carried her to the block in a state of collapse.

At Graudenz, in West Prussia, Marie Hesse was executed in the same way. She also murdered her husband by poisoning him. Germany is the only country in Europe in which women criminals are beheaded. All the protests of the humanitarians against the system have been fruitless.

PERCY HASWELL TELLS GIRLS HOW TO GET ON THE STAGE

Make an Early Start, She Says—Pay at First Will Be Small and Parts Will Be Minor.

LOCAL TALENT IN THIS WEEK'S SHOW

Possibly young women who for any reason feel that they harbor a temperamental which might win success on the stage could do no better than discuss frankly with someone acquainted intimately with theatrical life the inducements and disadvantages of the profession. And in the search of such a confidant and adviser, the ambitious girl could find no one more competent than Miss Percy Haswell.

In her five seasons here Miss Haswell has been the means of giving cleverness in extra young women opportunities in her production. This season she has been instrumental in bringing out little Violet Dunn, whose cleverness in extra young women opportunities in her production. This season she has been instrumental in bringing out little Violet Dunn, whose cleverness in extra young women opportunities in her production.

"That the woman wishing to go on the stage should make an early start is desirable," said Miss Haswell last week. "It is better for a young woman, at 15 years of age or sooner to use her voice in such way as to increase its volume and develop its quality."

"Suppose, then, a girl who believes she has the necessary qualifications for entering some stock company to begin training her voice at the proper course would be to address a note to the stage manager of the company she desires to join. It is not necessary, of course, that she know the stage manager in question, tho' I will admit that even here, influence is something."

"When the first opportunity presents itself, he may give the young woman who applied to him for a position in the company a list of people usually put on for a week by the stock companies and they receive $1 a performance."

"When a stage manager finds a woman displays a little talent, he may agree to attach her to the company as a regular extra in which case she receives a nominal salary, perhaps only $5 a week, but this would be enough to give her a footing. Then as soon as she has longed for a few weeks, the stage manager will probably cast her for a part in which she has an opportunity to speak a few words."

"As a player of minor parts, she should expect to net $25 to $35 a week. From this, if she is with a road company, she will have to pay her hotel bills and incidental expenses."

"That an actress can win a success that an actress can win. If she has ability and if she works hard, there are many possibilities for greater rewards open to her."

H. B. HARRIS ESTATE SHOWS RISKS RUN IN STAGE BUSINESS

Debts Were $400,000, and $35,000 More Than Assets of Estate—Yet He Was Fairly Successful.

That the theatrical business is a gamble as uncertain in its pecuniary rewards for those engaging in it as it is the most hazardous game of chance will not be disputed by any member of the profession.

Further evidence of its unreliability as a money making enterprise is furnished by the appraisal of the estate of Henry B. Harris, who perished in the Titanic disaster. As a result of his activities in operating theatres, producing plays and directing the professional fortunes of dramatic stars, Mr. Harris had become one of the foremost managers connected with the theatre in the United States.

At the time of his death he was the president of the National Association of Producing Managers and was believed to be one of the wealthiest men in that organization.

The appraisal recently filed in New York shows that Mr. Harris left an estate amounting to $388,448. His debts and the cost of administration totaled $400,000, which left a deficit of $11,552.

The enterprise that resulted in his heaviest loss was the effort to establish the Follies Bergers in New York. That music hall, designed as a home for vaudeville of the Pacific coast, cost him during the few months he conducted it $260,000. He was confident that New York needed a place where vaudeville of the Pacific coast, cost him during the few months he conducted it $260,000. He was confident that New York needed a place where vaudeville of the Pacific coast, cost him during the few months he conducted it $260,000.

On the western tour of "The Quaker Girl" the English musical comedy, he lost $10,000, and on the play "Shams," $9,000. By starting "An American Woman" and "Such a Little Queen" he was out of pocket about $25,000.

To Klaw and Erlanger he owed $10,336, his share of the loss in bringing Ruth Etting, the dancer and the Balalaika Orchestra before the public. To Miss St. Denis is due $6,701, which represents a share of Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, resulted in a loss of $7,800 during the season of 1911-12.

The play-going public has little idea of the financial risks incurred by the managers catering to it. Even so experienced a producer as Mr. Harris could not predict what would please it in drama and musical comedy, and could not anticipate the resaping of profits on any offering. Commercial-
