AERIAL SERVICE FOR WORLD NAVIGATION

London, Oct. 28.—The Daily Express says that so soon as the war is ended, aerial navigation plans which are being drawn up by Lord Northcliffe's committee, appointed by the government, will be put in operation step by step, and the ends of the world will be brought together by long-distance airplane service.

The Express says it has information that if favorable weather conditions prevail it is likely that the Atlantic will be crossed by an airplane before the end of this year. It understands that the flight will be made by way of the Azores so that the journey may be broken.

The bridging of the Atlantic by airplane, it says, will be only the beginning of things. Plans are being laid for regular air service, not only to America, but to India, South Africa and Australia. If they are carried out, Melbourne will be brought within eight and one half days of London, India three days and Capetown, four or five. The best line to Capetown would, of course, cross the Sahara, but the winds of the desert raise obstacles to this route, and the route chosen is by way of Malindi, Cairo, Khartoum and Victoria Falls.

The Express says that the machine, which will be used for these world journeys, will be of the type developed by Handley Page, will travel 200 miles an hour, will have multiple engines, to avoid the necessity for descending if one engine gives out, will carry four or five passengers, and will be able to cover about 8,000 miles in fifteen hours. Two pilots will take turns at the wheel. There will be comfortable quarters and the journey will not be more exhausting than a railway trip of similar duration.

A TENDER TRIBUTE.

Friends of the late Dr. T. Dyson Walker will read with much appreciation the following poetic tribute from the pen of Sarah Robertson Matheson (Mrs. Kenneth Matheson), of Glenedenby-Dollar, Perthshire, Scotland.

FROM SCOTLAND, REMEMBRANCE OF DR. T. D. WALKER

The war-worn world is drearier without you,
Ye, who yourself have drawn more
about you,
So dim your coast, its mists so thick
Only your stars were in our sky.

Only the years with some kind gift or message,
Set down in that strong hand we knew;
Yestreen there came the swift, ethereal message
God's wireless worked for you.

"Better to wear than rust," your motto ever
"To work than grieve, and all goes well,"
You wore your armor, knight, with hard canvas,
Yes, thin, until it fell.

White roses, royal oak boughs, Britain weaves
Whose faithful forbear saved her king,
'Neath the same deathless sheltering boughs she leaves you,
O chivalrous in succoring.

St. George, St. Andrew, lay their crosses o'er you,
One, as on Britain's flag they rest;
Nobly you bore your cross, with Christ before,
To make the burden blest.

Even as true Canada uprose to render help to the foe-besieged throne,
Soldier, your brother wounded found you tender,
In grief the fight was not your own.

What shall I send your dear ones sad to gether?
What taken to that far-off land?
Only this freshly-budding whitest heather,
White thoughts, from Scotland's hand.

*King Charles II., who was hidden in the famous oak-tree by Penderel of Boscobel, the direct ancestor of Dr. Walker.

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't. It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and itching of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.
