MILITARY MATTERS

Schools of Artillery Manoeuvring and of Signalling in St. John

A school of instruction in artillery manoeuvring will be begun this evening in the drill shed for the members of the 3rd Regiment C. A. It is expected that it will be quite well attended, as many of the members of the regiment have expressed the desire of furthering their chances of promotion through this source, by qualifying at the close of the school. The instruction will be given by a sergeant instructor from Quebec.

The school of instruction in signalling to be started next week gives promise of being a great success as many applications have been received from outside sources for tuition, not only from non-coms. and privates, but from officers as well. The school will be under the direction of Capt. T. E. Powers and Lieut. A. Leavitt, and will be taught by Q. M. S. I. Webb, of Halifax, who will probably be assisted by Sergeant Instructor Lindsey or Sergt. Henderson, of No. 8 Signalling Section.

TOMB HIS PLACE FOR SUICIDE

Andrew S. Foster Ends Life In Old Burial Ground

BULLET IN HEART

Stands on Stone Tablet and Sends Fatal Shot—Head Had Bothered Him—Letter in Pocket Supposed To Be Farewell to Wife

With a bullet wound in his heart, with blood streaming from his nose and mouth, and presenting a horrible spectacle to people gathered around, Andrew Sherwood Foster, of Leinster street, was found this morning lying almost dead stretched across a stone tablet in the Old Burial Ground. The neighborhood had been started at the sound of a shot from a revolver about 10 o'clock, and on rushing to the spot found Foster just about breathing his last.

Police Sergt. Campbell was one of the first on the scene, and after ascertaining that there was still some life in the man, he hurried to central police station and a telephone message was at once sent for a physician. In the meantime Dr. D. E. Berryman had arrived, but Foster was beyond medical aid, and in a few seconds had passed away.

Up to this time he was unidentified, but a search through his pockets by Detective Killen brought forth a small leather card case enclosing an identification card on which his name was inscribed, and also a certificate of membership in the Royal Arcanum, 1300 of Springfield, Mass., where he was also an unattached letter addressed to "Mrs. A. S. Foster, 28 Leinster street, St. John," who, it was later learned was his wife, and who is suffering untold misery and distress in their saddest home in Leinster street.

Other articles taken from the pockets were a tobacco pouch, one cent, a small leather pocketbook, and a gold watch and chain, to which was attached a charm bearing the initials "Y. M. C." The body was ordered to the morgue, but he had been taken to his late home some time today. It was feared that the shock would be too fearful for his wife to endure, and for this reason the body was not then conveyed home. Detective Killen went to the man's late home, and informed Mrs. Foster of his death, but did not let her know the circumstances. Later, however, she was made aware of the painful details, and was plunged into great grief.

His Head Troubled Him. The dead man was between 60 and 65 years of age, of powerful frame. Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Miss Hall of Boston and Mrs. Walter Boyce, of Winchendon, Mass. He was a native of Sussex, but had for many years resided in Springfield, Mass., coming here about a year ago, by taking the position of foreman in the factory of T. S. Simms, Ltd. He had not been at work since the first of last month, and it is believed that this fact, coupled with his being tired in the head, worried him considerably, and was a probable cause of his suicide. He remarked to his wife only recently, that if his head did not get better he "would soon be in the asylum."

A Times reporter who calls this morning at the accidental home, was told that Mr. Foster had sustained a shock about a year ago and had been troubled with his head since that time. This morning he left the house about 10 o'clock, ostensibly to see a physician, but he was seen by several people walking slowly up and down one of the paths in the Old Burial Ground. Sergt. Hastings, a window in the police building saw him pacing the sidewalk several times, but turned away from the window just as the man about reached the spot where his dead body was found, and about a minute, he believes, before the shot was fired.

Farewell to Wife? The suicide was enacted with precision and coolness. The man had on two coats, but both of them had been opened, and only a puncture had been made through his shirt by the bullet before entering his body. It is believed that the letter addressed to his wife was a last message, but it was taken care of by the coroner and its contents not revealed. The revolver with which life was taken was by his side on the tablet and was taken by the Detective.

The occurrence caused considerable excitement especially since the identity of the dead man was in doubt for a little while, and because various conjectures were made as to who he was, and on account of the shocking suddenness with which the act was committed.

The letter referred to above will be taken to Mrs. Foster by Coroner Berryman this afternoon. He said this morning that an inquest would be unnecessary.

DECK HAND ON AUSTIN DIES SUDDENLY

Murray Lodge of Eastport Taken Fatally Ill Here With Heart Trouble

Complaining that he was ill, Murray Lodge, a deck hand on the Eastern line steamer Calvin Austin, retired at an early hour this morning and expired in less than an hour. The Austin arrived yesterday and docked at her berth at Reed's Point.

That death came with awful suddenness is evidenced from the fact that he was working about up to 2 o'clock this morning, apparently in his usual good health. Just prior to retiring, he complained of feeling ill and his symptoms were such that word was sent for a physician, but before Dr. Walker arrived, Lodge was dead. Death was due to heart trouble. As the result of enquiries this morning, Coroner Berryman decided that an inquest was unnecessary and gave permission to take the body to the dead man's home, Eastport, Maine.

HERE FOR MATCH. The Thistle hockey team arrived in the city this morning from St. Stephen and will play the St. John team this evening in the Queen's rink.
