Where Were the Police?

At 6 o'clock this morning, in a well-known downtown district, in the presence of a large and select audience, an Englishman and a German, large, powerful men, discarded their outer garments and squared off for the settlement of a burning grudge. A referee and other officials were chosen and the men warned that foul play would be actively resented by the spectators. By mutual agreement gloves were dispensed with, and the men threw up their big, bony fists, ready for the call of time.

To Be Completely Rearranged.

It is reported, upon excellent authority, that an early start in the interior of the Bank of British Columbia in this city will be entirely remodelled and rearranged. Some time ago the proposition to carry out this work was laid before the managers of the bank in London, but it was at that time deemed expedient to allow the matter to remain in abeyance a little. Now, however, instructions have been received favoring the projected improvements. The details and superintendence of the work are in the hands of Mr. Sorby, architect, under whose able management the work will be pushed to completion with all possible expedition. That the business of the bank may suffer no interruption all the work of alteration will be carried on at night by strong forces of workmen. It is believed the re-arrangement of the premises will be completed before the middle of December, and that the interior of the bank will be very much improved. It is understood work will be commenced within the next fortnight.

Francis' Second Trial.

The jury in the case of Regina v. Francis, wounding, having failed to agree after several hours' deliberation yesterday afternoon, was discharged this morning a new jury was empanelled. Very little interest was taken in today's proceedings, as the evidence was the same as that given yesterday, and besides that the foreman of yesterday's jury had let drop the fact that the jury stood eleven for acquittal and one for conviction. The judge charged the jury in favor of the prisoner, stating that in his opinion the assault had been committed after much provocation. Much time was spent, all yesterday's jurors and one or two others being challenged. The following jury was finally decided upon: G. Lyall, foreman; C. Cameron, D. W. R. Stewart, John Hunt, H. T. L. Fisher, Jos. Levy, Wm. Sowden, Angus Fraser, Thos. R. Ella, Wm. Noble, W. Hatch and W. Anderson.

IS IT A JOB?

The New China Creek Trail—Man Hunting in British Columbia.

Alberni, Oct. 9.—The fall rains have now come and we must not expect much more in the way of snow. The mountains are now full of snow and a stop is put to prospecting on the high ground. Quartz and placer miners are now flocking in, now the rain is falling.

We have been treated to some wonderful phenomena here lately. Some weeks ago a mining expert came in and wrote out a flow report on mines that he had never seen, and now we have a man giving an estimate on a government trail without feeling what he is contracted for. No doubt he expects to have another McPherson-Alberni-Cowichan trail job, as a Cowichan correspondent said, $4,500 for a $2,000 contract. This contract however is only about $300. We shall see how it is performed.

A young boy from Nanaimo is here in the bush. Bylee, the Nanaimo constable, is here to arrest him for stealing or appropriating $8 from a Cowichan constable. He has been out three days trying to run down the boy, but have not succeeded, although on Saturday they saw him and fired two shots toward him. It is that the way in British Columbia to arrest a boy for such an offence? Perhaps the constables will say it is only to frighten him. The boy is unarmed and must be in a terrible state this weather.

A correspondent who signs himself "Halo-chee-chakko" presumably a Shishiwah who does not know how to spell his name (Halo-chee-chakko), wishes to throw a little dust in the eyes of I suppose, any intending purchaser of his gold claim out here. He quotes a lot of gold mines as being paid handsomely on various percentages of gold to the ton, but he forgets to say which of the nine has such refractory rock as here; indeed, none of them; they are all free milling ores, but here it is very different, as any one will find out when he begins to extract the gold. A most expensive plant will be necessary, and fuel will have to be brought in if it is done on the ground here. "Halo-chee-chakko" talks like a book about the mines and mountains, but would he be surprised to know that Mount Moriarty and Mount Saunders are one and the same?

A foolish attempt at train wrecking was made on the Intercolonial road near Truro. Some person opened a switch, causing an engine to dash off the track near a high embankment. The locomotive tumbled on its side. The engineer and fireman had an exceedingly close escape from death. It was a miracle that the entire train did not go over the embankment. An examination of the switch showed that the lock had been smashed open. Suspicion rests on certain persons, and an arrest may soon follow. Duncan Macarthur, late president of the Commercial Bank, was before the court in Winnipeg to answer to the charge that in a certain monthly return to the minister of finance and the receiver-general, he had unlawfully made a wilfully false statement representing the balance due from agencies of the Commercial Bank or from other banks or agencies in foreign countries to be $118,526.80, whereas in reality it was only $72,476.80. The attorney-general asked to be allowed to change the information, and a long argument over the point ensued. It was finally agreed to take the evidence of Mr. Garland, a clerk of the finance department at Ottawa, as to the correctness of the returns, after which the case was adjourned for one week.

Henry Labouchere is a short-built, pudgy-looking man, with markedly arched eyebrows, and a pointed black beard streaked with grey, and in a manner is generally incisive. He is rising two-and-sixty; was educated at Eton, and spent ten very pleasant years at his country's expense in the diplomatic service. He has sat in parliament for nearly two decades. He always commands the ear of the house, for he is never dull, always original, generally lively, and a master of irony, which is most gratifying to every one except the victim. He became part proprietor of the Daily News when it was started as a penny paper in 1868, and during the Franco-Prussian war contributed to the war-aided letters of the "World," in which he conducted a celebrated campaign against money-lenders; and in 1877 started Truth, which now brings "him something like fifty thousand a year," and which everybody reads for the sole purpose of ascertaining his views on things in general, for he writes as readily as he speaks. He has the keenest possible insight into affectation and bombast and as an unmasker of political and social humbug he is unsurpassed, but to take him seriously is to apply to him a use for which he was never intended. This is a characteristic which tells against him at times—when he wants to be a cabinet minister, for instance; but it makes him a very entertaining member of society. He never makes the worst of everybody, including himself. Yet withal he is a most charming companion, and has a rare stock of first-hand stories, which he tells admirably. Lately, however, he has become a personage of importance, and almost of seriousness. Politically, as is well known, he is an advanced Radical, and among British workmen "the gospel according to Labouchere" is preached with much popularity. He lives in Park villa at Twickenham, is married to a well-to-do widow, and smokes immoderately; he is a peer's nephew and a bishop's brother-in-law, but does not care for either. He does not love Mr. Gladstone.—M. Crofton in Observer, Lippincott's.

The Mystery of Mashonaland. It is recorded that King Solomon brought to Palestine by the way of the Red Sea, 992 B.C., a quantity of gold, weighing about 3,330,000 pounds. Where did he get it? In those early days of Arabian commerce its surface was covered with speckling of gold from India, China and Africa. The Arabian were the great ocean carriers; the frequent references in the Bible and in old records to Arabian gold being so carried by Arabians was not made in Arabia. As a matter of fact, there was very little gold in Arabia itself. Where did they get the gold they took to Palestine, and Syria, and Egypt, and old Rome, as we know they did?
