Prof. E. E. Prince of Ottawa, dominion fishery commissioner, returned yesterday from Nova Scotia, and is a guest at the Dufferin.

He said to the Sun last evening that the lobster fishermen of Nova Scotia had been for some time dissatisfied with the existing regulations and several petitions had been forwarded to the department at Ottawa asking that certain changes be made in order to discover the real condition of affairs. Prof. Prince visited Yarmouth, Clark's Harbor and Barrington Passage, and held conferences with the fishermen. He will make a report to the department, but said he could not give any information as to the nature of the recommendations he would make. Donkin, who died at Athel some appertaining and the reversion and a family of sixteen and has many rereversions, remainder and remaind-ers, rents, issues and profits thereof and of every part thereof and also and of every part thereof and also peg eleven years ago. She was a woman of splendid intellectual endow-ments. The remains were interred in Wienipeg.—Amherst News.

Mrs. Donkin, whose maiden name was Elderkin, came when a child to St. John to reside with her uncle, Mr. Kerr, in whose household she remain-ed until her first marriage, when she went with her husband to the South-ern States. She was a lady of unusual literary attainments, and was at one time on the staff of Mt. Allison Ladies' College. A few old people in St. John recall this lady as she appeared nearly sixty years ago when she was a most interesting member of her social circle.

BUSINESS WAS LARGE.

The winter port business during the eason now closing has been the greatest ever. And the freight which has passed through St. John has been of the best paying kind. There has been a great falling off in grain shipments but package freight has taken its place. The imports, too, have been heavy, and it is predicted that the annual report will show by far the greatest season's business in the history of the port.

HONEST CONFESSION

A Doctor's Talk on Foot. There are no fairer set of men earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly confession of the fact.

A case in point is that of an eminen practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:
"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwar antable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads.' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till "While in Corpus Christi for 'm health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddlest, healthlest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons. came exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructation (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nauses, nor distress of stomach in any way. Spoke Against Separate Schools.

Grand Master McLeod, of the Orange Order, Delivered a Strong Address at Public Meeting Last frequently evoked by the speakers. The music furnished by the vocal quartette was also much enjoyed. The chief speaker of the evening was the Worshipful Grand Master, H. F. McLeod of Fredericton. His address was given entirely without notes, and was eloquent and forceful. after point was made and greeted with outbursts of applause. Rev. Mr. Ful-ton of the west side, and C. N. Skinner also spoke briefly.

Mr. McLeod prefaced his remarks on autonomy bill by stating that while the question should be treated with all tolerance, it behooved him as grand master of the order which had always stood for liberty of conscience, equality and justice to all, to speak with no uncertain voice on the sub-ject; to stand for free non-sectarian schools, and to oppose any attempt to throttle the educational system of the new provinces.

Dealing with the question from a legal point of view, Mr. McLeod showed that there was no constitutional ground for imposing separate schools. In 1867, when the B. N. A. act was drawn up, separate schools were provided for in Ontario and Quebec, only because those provinces previously had such schools. Other provinces were left free to decide upon their own systems. In case these latter inflicted a wrong upon any one body, redress could be had by appealing to Ottawa, but the Dominion government was not supposed to impose a system against the wishes of the majority.

If the leader of the government felt so sure the constitution provided that separate schools should be established in the west, why did he have to put a in the west, why did he have to put a ture of a country, and quoted France special rider in the bill granting them as an example of the evils wrought by provincial rights?

The Orange order had always stood for equal rights to all parties, and reiterated the need of a national syswould oppose any suggestion of state-aided Methodist, Presbyterian or Bap-tist schools in the same way as it op-posed this denationalizing of the pub-by the singing of the National Anlic schools in the interests of the Ro- them.

The public meeting held last even- man Catholic Church. The question ing in Orange Hall under the auspices is far reaching; it not only touches of Johnston L. O. L., was attended by vitally the present population of the a large number. The hall was com-pletely filled, and hearty applause was no possibility of their having any say in regard to their education and its system. It is contrary to the British principles of freedom, and will be op-posed wherever the old Anglo-Saxon stock exists. Had the new province found it well to establish schools we could not gainsay them; but they have no chance to pass upon their merits.

People say there are Protestant schools in Quebec, but there are no Protestant schools in the whole dominion. Public schools are called Protest ant schools. They are not so. They lics may attend without the least of their tenets being assailed. But in Quebec the public schools are Roman Catholic and their dogmas are taught there. The Orange Order stands for national schools which favor no den inational body (cheers.) What have separate schools done for Italy, for Spain and for Russia? The United States is an example of how a varied population can be assimilated and imbued with national life. Let our church, the Sunday school and the home can provide for the religious needs of the people. Referring to Monsignor Sharretti's resence in Canada, Mr. McLeod said that no one could object to him if he looked solely after the spiritual needs of his flock. But when he dipped into statecraft and the political life of the country it was time to cry "Hands off."

Church and state have been separated for all time in British dominions.
Mr. McLeod was followed by Rev.

Robert Fulton, who dwelt upon th importance of education upon the fustate-aided separate schools. Hon, C. N. Skinner in a short speech
