Fredericton, N. B., Nov .24 - Mrs.

A $25,000 laboratory building is projected by Dr. C. C. Jones, the chancellor, as the most pressing need of the University of New Brunswick.

Plans for the proposed new structure will be submitted at the semi-annual meeting of the senate, which will be held here tomorrow, and the consideration of the matter promises to be the only business of importance, aside from the regular routine, for the meeting.

aside from the regular routine, for the meeting.

Letters patent incorporating the Atlantic Oilfields, Limited, have been issued by the department of the secretary of state of Canada. The company is to have its head office in Fredericton and is capitalized at about $3,000,000.

The incorporators are Alfred J. Gregory, barrister; J. J. Fraser Winslow, barrister; J. J. Fraser Winslow, barrister; J. Brunswick Gregory, manufacturer; Annie Elizabeth Rush, stenographer, all of Fredericton.

The capital stock of the company is to be divided into 24,000 shares of £25 each, making a total capital stock of £600,000. The company is organized for the purpose of developing the oil-shale deposits of this province and has the right to search for, quarry, mine or bore for oil, oil-shale, albertite, gypsum and other substances and to carry on the necessary transport and other operations which may be connected with the business. Old country capital will be behind the new company.

ST. STEPHEN

St. Stephen, Nov. 24—On Sunday afternoon, as A. A. Laffin, superintendent of the St. Stephen Water Co., and Mrs. Burton, of St. Andrews were driving down Union street, the horse became frightened by some children beating a tin kettle and promptly began to check his speed when a part of the harness broke. The horse became unmanageable and Mr. Laffin and Mrs. Burton were thrown to the street and rendered unconscious. Fortunately no bones were broken, but they are so badly bruised that they are still unable to leave the house.

Birthday Party at Pennsteld,

Birthday Party at Pennfield.

On Thursday evening, Nov. 20, an entertainment known as a "birthday party" was held in the Penfield Baptist church, the object being to raise money for church purposes. All members of the church and friends to whom invitations were sent were supposed to respond at the rate of one cent for each year of their age. The response was hearty, and when the returns are all in more than $100 will be the result.

This plan is an ideal one from the standpoint of children, but is rather hard on the aged members of the congregation. These latter evidently thought it a good place to stay away from, as it was noticed that members of 100 years of age and upwards were not largely represented.

HOW TO CONQUER RHFUMATISM AT YOUR OWN HOME

THE WOMAN'S CORNER

EFFICIENT HOUSEKEEPING BY HENRIETTA D. GRAUEL (Domestic Science Lecturer.)

The Helpful Stock Jar

Few of us agree with the French chefs who insist that the stock pot shall be upon every range open to receive bits of meat and bones as they are trimmed from meats; its contents ready to be drawn upon for all sances and soups. Indeed, so disgusting is the idea of a European stockpot to a dainty American home cook that exception is even taken to recipes that call for "a cup of stock," by some inexperienced housekeepers.

It is not practicable for us to have a stock pot unless we have very large families and cut great quantities of meat in our kitchens for our butchers trim every cut of meat closely and utilize every portion of the animals but the squeals. We even have to pay for a bit of suet to rub our meat boiler with!

Beside this the principles of nutrition and sanitation are becoming too well understood in this country to make the continuous boiling of fresh and of old meat together approved. Even our school children know that meat, to be wholesome, must be fresh.

When we think of meat that has once been boiled being re-boiled with fresh trimmings and other additions, we realize that the stock pot can only contain a greasy, acrid unpleasant mass. Perhaps the wholesale use of strong flavors and high seasonings, favored by foreign cooks, is due to their method of securing a plentiful supply of stock.

To make a fine, rich broth place a soup bone, sawed and broken, or soup meat cut in pieces, in a generous sized kettle and cover with cold water. Allow a quart of water, to each pound of meat that the stock pot the stock pot the stock pot the second place as the stock pot the stock pot the second place as soup bone, sawed and broken, or soup meat cut in pieces, in a generous sized kettle and cover with cold water. To make a fine, rich broth place a soup bone, sawed and broken, or soup meat cut in pieces, in a generous sized kettle and cover with cold water. Allow a quart of water to each pound of meat, that is to say, twice as much water as meat. Let this stand a few minutes before heating that the juices may begin to draw out, then put it where it will warm gradually, add salt now and cover closely to prevent evaporation.

Cook at a gentle, steady boil and when the process is well under way add salt, pepper, celery salt and those herbs that you are sure your family like. Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney said once, "The best soups are those that have a little of almost everything in, with nothing predominating."

When the meat is cooked to shreds you may be sure the flavor is all extracted and the soup finished. Now bring out a stoneware jar with a tight fitting lid and cover it with an old napkin or piece of cheese cloth. Through this strain the soup into the jar and keep in the refrigerator or in a very cool place. When the soup is cold a cake of fat will form over the top of the jar, excluding all air and moisture and as long as it is not disturbed and is kept cold the soup will keep sweet and fresh.

Persons who do not have ready access to meat markets tell me they "can" stock as they can any other article of food. This can be done, I am sure, if the soup is allowed to cook down until quite gelatinous and all bits of meat carefully strained from it. But I am of the opinion it should be poured into stone or glass jars; kept quite cold and not used after it is ten days old.

I believe most of my readers know that white stock is made from veal or light colored flesh and dark stock from beef.
