April 12, 1915.

Dear Mr. King:-

Your letter of April 9th, in regard to the end of your sister's life and the influence which that event has had upon your own life, has touched a very sympathetic chord in my own heart. Evidently, in the sorrow which has so recently come to each of us, we have passed through the same beautiful experience. I appreciate your writing me in so intimate a way.

The loss will fall very heavily upon your dear parents. I hope they are bearing up under the burden of sorrow with such fortitude as I am sure they must both have. You did just right to stay with them as long as seemed necessary to you, and I only trust that you did not hurry back to Denver.

Very sincerely,

John A. MacKenzie
