"His pegging around and his Peggy within."

He would walk by Lynn Beach, and far would outreach
The town noise, the bustle and din—
On a boulder would sit, while the waves at his feet
Would encircle "The Cobbler of Lynn."

One morn he was in that place "found drowned,"
So the Coroner and Jury gave in :
Perhaps deeply in thought in the waves he was caught—
And thus ended "The Cobbler of Lynn."

They carried him home, to his Peggy was shown
His body so lifeless and glim,
She gave a great cry, and said she would die,
Then fell dead by "The Cobbler of Lynn."
