LESS PEOPLE VISIT BIRTHPLACE OF SHAKESPEARE War Cuts Down Numbers Who Can See Where Bard Used to Live. By Special Wire to the Courier. Stratford-on-Avon, May 30 —Shakespeare's birthplace was visited by only about 23,000 persons during the past year as compared with 37,000 in the preceding year, and approximately 50,000 in years of peace. The diminution of visitors from America was most marked, only 254 having signed the register album as against 3,000 the year preceding and an average of over 11,000 during the five years prior to the war. The pressure of the war also brought about a reduction in the number of admissions to Anne Hathaway's cottage and New Place. The trustees of Shakespeare's birthplace at their annual meeting elected the Earl of Plymouth, a life trustee in place of the late Lord Ronald Sutherland-Gower. Sir Sidney Lee, who presided, expressed the confident anticipation that American visitors would come in their ordinary numbers when the war was over.
