LOOKING OUT TO SEE

Most people are looking out to see everything that is in sight and comment upon it. If it's good, there is approbation; if bad, condemnation.

Our Summer Suits are made to withstand criticism. Because they're made right, of right material, it is commendation always.

They have a dressy appearance, fit perfectly, and wear with satisfaction.

Your money will get you more style comfort, and durability in Hats, Caps, Colored Shirts, Underwear, Shirt Waists, Bicycle Hose, Fancy Socks, Bathing Suits, Sweaters, Belts, Collars and Ties, here than

OWE MUCH TO THE SAILOR-

To His Courage and Devotion England Owes Much of Her Special Glory.

In an address to the the sailors of Halifax on Saturday Mr. A. E. Dono an, of Athens, said : "To the sailor the world owes the commerce and civilization it begets. To his courage and devotion England owes her special glory, America, its discovery and home life its thousand and one comforts. Without him, the continents had never clasped hands or the voice of science rolled through the chambers of the deep. Yet, in the home land of to day, the sailor receives on a trip to the St. Lawrence for the past week and were pleased very much with their trip. Mr. Sliter reports that he found the crops better in this county than in any other place he visited.

no recognition. In the outsides the intellectual and moral world, the most ill-requited. On the sea he is subject to an iron law that knows only necessity. On shore he is reckoned save as his needs and necessities make him the victim of the ssities make him the victim of the unfortunate. We who are of the land know that however lonely our present know that however lonely our present calling may be, that there is always the hope of a broader opportunity, of a larger recompense. For the sailor no wayside flower invites the plucking. No umbrageous tree takes root, no grasses grow, for him no wife is comrade, no child is presence, alone he must do life's battle, unsolaced, unconsidered and englayed by him unconsidered and enslaved by his calling. He must go on to the end for once a sailor always a sailor. For the sailor there is but the engulfing wastes of water, there is but its sombre tomb, its solemn requiem. But they also have their days of sunshine as they behold the outstretched arms to welcome Home sweet Home. A stray boy with no other capital than the opportunity of the land walked into London and became its mayor. Such a story is never written of the cabin
