GAYNOR AND GREENE.

Principals In Jail Now-Resume of the Case Which Brought Some Disgrace to Canada.

It is with some reluctance one ven-It is with some reluctance one ventures the opinion that the Gaynor-Greene case is ended. So often has the announcement been made that Canadian readers treat its repetition with the incredulity Patti used to provoke on her "farewell tours." For more than three years Messrs. Gaynor and Greene played hob with justice in Canada, and made it a disgrace at home and a laughing-stock abroad. Only after the decision of the Privy Council in 1904 were they surrendered to the in 1904 were they surrendered to the United States authorities. The Case of Carter.

The chronology of the case goes back to 1888, when Capt. Oberlin M. Carter was appointed to take charge of the improvements in the rivers and har-bors of Savannah, Ga., for which pur-pose several millions of dollars had been appropriated. This responsible position he held for nine years, when he was appointed military attache to the American Embassy in London. His successor at Savannah, Capt. Gillette, successor at Savannah, Capt. Gillette, had not been many months in office when he unearthed unmistakable evidence that Carter had been defrauding the United States Government. A secret court of enquiry investigated the matter, with the result that Carter was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, to dismissal from the army, and fined $5,000. It was proved that Carter for years had consuired with the Atfor years had conspired with the At lantic Construction Co., to the end that only this company could successfully tender for the work at Savannah. Car-ter would draw specifications which only the Atlantic people could fill. The apparently public tender became therefore a private understanding between Carter and John F. Gaynor and B. D. Greene, the senior partners in the Atlantic firm. For this service Gaynor and Greene paid Carter well.

The Plunder Was Enormous. They also made a good thing for themselves, for they were permitted to make exorbitant charges, and also to supply inferior work, for which Carter would vouch as the best. The plunder they divided equally among the three. It was shown that these payments were frequent; that when they were to be made, Capt. Carter would go to New York, where he would draw a Treasury order for the full amount, plus $75 for his expenses to New York; that this cheque would be handed to Greene, and that within a few days Gaynor would hand his cheque for one-third of the payment, plus $75, to Carter, who would deposit to his credit. The dates of the cheques thus drawn corresponded exactly with Car-It was shown that these payments were drawn corresponded exactly with Carter's visits to the Union League Club of New York, of which he was a member.

Legal Fight Begins. Legal Fight Begins.

To the man in the street this would appear to be like the beginning of the fifth act. In reality it was the mere tuning up of the orchestra preparatory to the overture in the prologue. The Gaynor-Greene money was just as useful in the United States as later on it proved to be in Canada, and not for a year and a half do we hear anything more of this precious pair's connection. more of this precious pair's connec with the disgraced Carter. In meantime Gaynor had won notor in other lines. He was accused of pay-ing $16,000 to ensure his return as ocratic State committeeman for Onondaga County. He was a protege of David B. Hill, but abandoned his chieftain and was suspected of selling out to Tammany. Four months later he had himself mixed up in a matri-monial squabble. His marriage to a Washington stenographer was an nounced, whereupon another woman turned up and claimed him as her hushand. Gaynor took a trip to Europe. In December, 1899, he was indicted with others by the Savannah grand jury for conspiring to defraud the United States Treasury of more than half a million dollars. A week later the accused men surrendered, and on the accused men surrendered, and on the same day Gaynor's first wife got a divorce from him. The proceedings against Gaynor and Greene began al-most immediately, and at once legal objection was made by the accused. They didn't want to go back to Georgia for trial, and the Georgia officials pined for them. A judicious expendi-ture and some clever legal work reture and some clever legal work re sulted shortly in a spirited quarrel be tween the Georgia court and the Federal Court in New York, the prisoners becoming mere spectators.

ning mere spectators.

The Men Flee to Canada. So the wrangle continued until 1902, and in the meantime another claimed to be Gaynor's wife, but was bought off. The accused men were wealthy off. The accused men were wealthy enough to carry every point to the Supreme Court, but finally they were beaten and ordered to appear before a Georgia jury. They attended once, and were remanded, but when called on again they had fled, leaving their bondsmen to forfelt $40,000. On May 11, 1902, they turned up at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec. Proceedings for their extradition were at once begun. The Canadian officers, fearing delay, took their prisoners aboard a swift The Canadian officers, fearing delay, took their prisoners aboard a swift tug and hurried them to Montreal. The lawyers of the pair tried to stop the tug and serve writs of habeas corpus, issued by Judge Andrews, but they were foiled. With the prisoners confined in Montreal, there was a repetition of the United States quarrel between courts over again. The Quebec courts wanted the men back there, whereas Extradition Commissioner Lafontaine wished to hear the case against them in Montreal, Finally the Quebec Judge, Andrews, scored, and they were returned to Quebec. Here Judge Caron took over the case, and in the meantime the prisoners lived in the Chateau Frontenac.

Judge Caron's Decision.

Chateau Frontenac.

Judge Caron's Decision.

On Aug. 13, 1902, Judge Caron dismissed all charges again the prisoners, a decision which aroused a perfect storm of protest from the press in both Canada and the United States. Donald McMaster. representing the United Canada and the United States. Donald McMaster, representing the United States, then appealed to the Imperial Privy Council. The decision was adverse to the prisoners on every point, and with it was a severe rebuke to Judge Caron. For six months more the worthy pair dallied in Canada, and when finally they were returned to the United States they blocked justice for eight months or more. Now they go to jail for four years and pay fines of $575,000 each!
