Child Covered With Eczema

Zam-Buk Worked Complete Cure.

Mrs. A. J. Cameron, of Melita, Man. writes: "When my little boy was six weeks old he had eczema. The sores simply covered his face and head, and I had to tie his hands to keep him from scratching and making them bleed. The doctor gave me several kinds of ointment, but they did no good. I then tried fourteen boxes of an advertised remedy. Still there was no improvement! I tried another ointment, and several medicinal soaps, but the poor little fellow still continued to suffer, and I began to fear nothing would do him any good. He suffered in this way for over a year, when one day a friend said, 'Why don't you try Zam-Buk?' 'I began with this balm, and a week's treatment made a great difference. I persevered, and within a month every sore was healed! I feared that the sores having been so bad on his head, his hair would not grow, but thanks to Zam-Buk his scalp is perfectly healthy; and he has long curls now.'"

For all skin diseases, cuts, burns and blood poisoning use Zam-Buk and Zam-Buk Soap. All dealers and stores, and Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld.

The Dinner Horn.

When I was young and full of vim I labored in my father's field, and I have heard it said by him that none a hoe could better wield; beneath my care the pumpkins thrived, tall grew the turnips and the corn; and when the noon hour had arrived, my father blew the dinner horn. Talk of the music of the spheres and all the sounds inspiring men! They would have jarred upon my ears, had they come floating to me then! I've heard great singers carol through notes of joy and notes of scorn, but nothing ever stirred my soul like father's old tin dinner horn. I've heard the noble organ peal, and thought it heavenly and grand; I've heard march waltz, Virginia reel, performed by Sousa's bully band; I've heard the great Caruso trot out songs sublime as e'er were born, but nothing ever hit the spot like father's old tin dinner horn. A crank on music, I have sailed, all o'er the world, to hear the best; the masters of all lands have failed to give my yearning spirit rest. When on their instruments they pound or beat or blow, my soul forlorn but reaches back to hear the sound of father's old tin dinner horn.

ROME, Sept. 18.
The most sanguinary engagement of the war in Tripoli was fought yesterday near Deeme, a town on the Mediterranean coast. The Italians lost 61 killed, and 121 wounded. The Turks and Arabs left 800 dead on the field. Forty-one prisoners, including an Arab chief, fell into the hands of the Italians.

Yesterday's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Philip Quirk took place yesterday afternoon, and the hearse was followed by a large number of citizens. Deceased was ninety-two years of age and a cooper by trade. He worked the greater portion of his life with Harvey & Company and a few years ago retired on a pension. He was a prominent member of the St. John's Mechanics' Society and the officers of that body formed a guard of honor in the funeral procession. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Mount Carmel Cemetery.

Bear Attacks Its Attendant.

Yesterday afternoon the Polar bear which is caged in on board the S. S. Neptune and which is drawing many visitors attacked a sailor named Mundy. Bruin was being fed by Mundy when the latter, who was near the cage, turned around to tell the crowd to keep back as they were teasing the bear. Scarcely had he got his back turned when Bruin gripped Mundy's coat and then lacerated his right hand. Mundy, who has had charge of the bear since it was caught says that it was almost tame while on the passage from Buffalo's Land, but since arriving in St. John's it is like a savage, as it is being tormented by people who go to view it.

Most children, at some time, show symptoms of worms—grinding of the teeth, picking at the nose, variable appetite, irritable spirits and other well known indications of their presence; and most mothers have some difficulty in judging what is best for the little ones. A worm medicine must be at once effective and palatable. McMurdo's Worm Syrup fulfils both these requirements. It is one of the best, quickest and most thorough destroyers of all kinds of worms that infest the intestines of children. And it is quite the pleasantest to take of all things of that kind that we know; and parents have no difficulty in getting their children to take it. If you believe your child to have worms, secure a bottle and try it. The result will be satisfactory. Price 25c. a bottle.

Of late there are strange callings followed by women, that of wine-tasting is one of the most curious and lucrative. As a matter of fact, Mlle. Presentation to Mr. Greaves.

A very pleasing ceremony occurred on Tuesday, when Mr. A. H. Christian, of Messrs. Bowring Bros., on behalf of the firm's Drapery Department employees, presented Mr. H. E. Greaves, former employee, with an address and a splendidly framed picture of the employees. The address was as follows:—

REMEMBRANCE.

Dear Mr. Greaves.—After such a long period of filling the position of Manager and Buyer for the Drapery Department of Messrs. Bowring Bros., we, the undersigned shipmates, who have been associated with you for such a lengthy period, learn of your resignation from the Ship-Company, to launch out and command a "Commercial Ship" for yourself. But before doing so, we take this opportunity of assuring you that the many years we have been together shall ever be fresh in our memories, because of the good will and kindly feeling which always existed while with us, and we trust the Balm of Breezes of Prosperity will continue to wait you along into every channel of success, never forgetting the days of "Auld Lang Syne." In conclusion we ask you to accept the accompanying group, yourself in the centre signifying that you will be always surrounded with the very best wishes from the Boys.

Signed—
N. Snow, A. H. Christian, Wilson Clark, E. J. Salt, R. Field, J. Ferris, A. J. Udle, E. Barnes, R. Joyce, P. T. Hogan, Cheesley Maund, John Williams, Sr., C. Penney, P. Kerrigan, H. Luscombe, J. M. Martin, H. J. Peet, A. Fortes, P. Flemming.

REPLY.

Dear Mr. Snow and Christian and all my late shipmates.
I thank you with all my heart for your very handsome present and for your kind expressions of good-will. I cannot express on paper my feelings at giving up the old ship and losing those in whom I have had such confidence and in whom I have always found ready to help me in storm and calm.

It is only when one has had the experience of his men he knows their worth, and I can say without any fear there is not a better staff in this or any other country than the staff I have left in the good ship "Bowring," and I hope you will continue to pull together in the future as we have in the past.

The photo and address are hanging in my private "cabin" where all of you will be welcome to drop in and see them at any time; I shall prize them as long as I live and will often look at them and think of the good days we spent together in "Auld Lang Syne."

If my present staff serve me as well as you all have done I shall be well satisfied.

I am now launched out on the ship "National" and I hope to bring her safely through.

Again thanking you for your great kindness, believe me when I say God bless you all, as it comes from my heart.

Yours sincerely,
H. E. GREAVES.

Why Who's Who.

BY H. L. RANN.

When the tooth of time removed his rude adornment from the lofty dome of William Jennings Bryan, the afore-said tooth spoiled a great Brutus. As we recall it, Brutus was in the full possession of his hair at the time he handed the late Julius Caesar a wallop under the fifth rib at the foot of Pompey's pillar. Whoever heard of a bald-headed Brutus?

Bryan and Brutus, immortal underlings! There is a difference, however. Brutus never ran for office but once. His method of getting elected was to stab the opposing candidate with a short Roman sword and then wait for a spontaneous uprising of the plain people. He never tried this but once, as the plain people rose the wrong way.

Mr. Bryan uses a different system. His idea is that no one should resist the call of duty, no matter if it is a trifle faint and leg-weary. He heard this call three times and was about to detect it for a fourth, but by the time it reached Baltimore it was too exhausted to speak out loud, let alone trying to sound a lusty tootin.

Mr. Bryan is an authority on tootins, by the way. He has tried several, but has never secured a good fit. He claims to have had a number of his best tootins stolen by other candidates, and this has impregnated him with a bitterness and falling hair.

He would no sooner get out a new tootin which looked good for several electoral votes than somebody would come along and weave it into a platform upholding the robber tariff and ship subsidies. It is no wonder that Mr. Bryan has to wear a skull cap during fly time.

Between campaigns Mr. Bryan tells the nation where to head in through the throbbing columns of a weekly paper. This paper has a large circulation, collected in advance, and carries no liquor advertising. In fact, it advertises nobody to any extent except the peerless leader.

In the present campaign Mr. Bryan is supporting Governor Wilson with great unanimity. His enthusiasm, however, has not started any congratulations anywhere, but it is believed he will warm up.

No Tidings.

Seventeen days have passed since Mr. John W. Green left his home on Power Street, and no tidings of him have been obtained. Various theories are expressed as to where he can be. There is a strong belief that he broke off the Blackmarsh Road and took to the woods where he succumbed. A reward of one hundred dollars is offered to anyone who can give information that will lead to the discovery of his whereabouts.

No one is better able to realize the injurious action of caffeine—the drug in coffee—on the heart, than the doctor. Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it, too, contains the drug caffeine.

When the doctor himself has been relieved by simply leaving off coffee and using Postum he can refer with full conviction to his own case.

A Mo. physician prescribes Postum for many of his patients, because he was benefited by it. He says: "I wish to add my testimony in regard to that excellent preparation—Postum. I have had functional or nervous heart trouble for over 15 years, and a part of the time was unable to attend to my business."

"I was a moderate user of coffee and did not think drinking it hurt me. But on stopping it and using Postum instead, my heart has got all right, and I ascribe it to the change from coffee to Postum."

"I am prescribing it now in cases of sickness, especially when coffee does not agree, or affects the heart, nerves or stomach."

"When made right it has a much better flavour than coffee, and is a vital sustainer of the system. I shall continue to recommend it to our people, and I have my own case to refer to." Name given by Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Paris twelve years ago, and Signora Sousa, who has a great reputation in Spain on account of her judgment and knowledge of wine.

Wine-tasters, it appears, are born, not made, and must possess the gift of a rare and delicate palate. To this, of course, must be added a knowledge of wines. Mlle. Colliniere's taste is so fine and her knowledge of wines such that she can discern from the first taste of a wine just where the grapes grew from which it was made, whether they were made in the vineyards of France, Germany or elsewhere.

She can easily detect adulteration of any sort, or if there is a blend, and of which wines, and can tell the age of a wine almost to a day. As a matter of fact there are no secrets that a bottle of wine can withhold from this remarkable French-woman once she has had a spoonful of it in her mouth. She does not swallow the wine. In fact, she is a teetotaler, and if she were to take the greatest care of her health. She must be well in order to do her work, for her sense loses its cunning when she gets out of health. —The Bits.
