The Last Child.

RUTH CAMERON.

Because She Isn't Married Is She Responsible?

She is the youngest of a family of four. The other three, two brothers and a sister, are all married. When they married their father was making a living, and their mother was in reasonably good health. Since then, his salary has dwindled and the mother has become a semi-invalid. The youngest daughter earns a good salary, which makes it financially possible to keep the old home open, and for her spare time she gives her mother the attention which her semi-invalid state requires.

The older children regard this as an ideal arrangement. Naturally!

A Man Who Wants To Marry.

I think we all know cases like this, in which the youngest child or the child who for one reason or another has remained at home after the others have left, is thrust by circumstances into the position of being responsible for the old folks. Usually it is a daughter, more rarely it is a son. There was a pathetic incident in one of the magazines recently, telling of the case of a son so placed, who wants to marry but does not feel like asking any woman to

"How can I assume the care of his invalid mother? Has he brothers and sisters? Oh, yes, but they are married and it is, therefore, not their problem."

An Exasperating Case.

One of the most exasperating cases of unfairly divided responsibility that I ever knew was that of a woman who had two daughters. One of them married. She had no children and a comfortable income. The other was a stenographer. The mother in the last years of her life was an invalid and the unmarried daughter made a home for her, took care of her and did the housework on her return from her work. The other daughter may have contributed to her support, I don't know about that; but of the service that means as much as money she gave nothing. "I can't have my mother with me," she explained blantly. "I am living in a boarding house, and Mother wouldn't like that." The idea that she might go to house-keeping and take her mother apparently never occurred to her.

Not only the financial but also the personal responsibility for the old folks should be fairly and squarely divided among all the children, married and unmarried, according to their ability to help. Those who refuse to take their share, who need all their time and money for themselves, are guilty of one of the least pardonable meannesses. The unmarried daughter, who gives up the best of her life to her invalid mother or father, has lost much. But not so much as the child who deliberately shirks his share of this duty—and opportunity.

Diocesan Synod.

JULY 12, 1916.

Pursuant to adjournment the House met at 3.30 p.m., the Lord Bishop presiding. After the usual devotional exercises, the rolls were called when 25 clergy and 15 lay delegates responded.

Minutes of previous meeting read, passed and signed by the Bishop. Debate on Education deferred.

The Rev. W. J. R. Higgin moved the following resolution, which was seconded by Rev. Rural Dean Bayly, and carried by a standing vote of the Synod.

RESOLVED.—That this Synod begs to tender its respectful sympathy to the parents and relatives of men of all ranks, of both Army and Navy, who have given their lives for King and Country, and to record with pride and gratitude the splendid endow of Sir Douglas Haig that "their deeds of valor have never been surpassed."

Rev. Facey, in accordance with notice given, asked for the accounts of Bishop Spencer Lodge.

Mr. Blackall presented a statement of revenue and expenditure.

Rev. A. G. Bayly's motion re Bishop Spencer Lodge Committee deferred.

Rev. W. J. R. Higgin's question re spiritual needs of the outport volunteers. After some discussion, a motion proposed by Canon Smith and seconded by Canon Colley, that the Bishop be asked to appoint a chaplain from one of the city clergy to look after the spiritual needs of the volunteers, was carried.

Rev. Rural Dean Pittman proposed that a vote of sympathy with Rev. Dr. Jones in his sore bereavement and other domestic troubles be recorded by this Synod. Seconded by Rev. A. Tulk, B.A., and carried.

Canon Bolt's question as to the appointments of the Standing Committee created quite a breezy discussion as to the mode of procedure. After several members of both sides of the House had expressed their views, it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the Bishop.

Nuptials at Bell Island.

LAWTON-MURPHY.

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of W. K. Murphy, Esq., Postmaster of Bell Island, on Tuesday at noon when his eldest daughter, Miss Bride Murphy, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Louis J. Lawton of the same place, who is Managing Director of the Wabana Drug Co. Quite a large gathering of friends attended for the occasion, and the ceremony was performed in the Parlor by the Rev. J. J. McGrath, P. P.

The decorations for the occasion were something superb, the room being a regular palm garden; while the ceremony was performed under a large bridal bell of pure white. The bride was handsomely attired in a gown of hand-embroidered white crepe de Chine with a wreath of orange blossoms and a veil of hand-worked white tulle and carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. She was attended by her sisters Misses Minnie and Victoria Murphy who wore elaborate costumes of cream crepe de Chine, and the Misses May and Kathleen Moakler and little Miss Billingsley as flower girls. Mr. Wm. Billingsley supported the groom. The groom presented the bride with a Crescent brooch set with pearls and the maids of honour with beautiful birthstone rings. A luncheon and reception was held after the ceremony and the usual toasts duly honored, both Rev. McGrath and Mr. J. M. Greene expressing themselves eloquently in wishing the wedded couple many years of happy wedded life. The festivities were kept up during the afternoon and on the arrival of the S. S. Storstad the happy couple set sail for Nova Scotia en route to Providence, R. I., U. S. A., where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride's travelling costume was of fawn cloth with pale pink nylon hat. Numerous costly presents were received and speak as tokens of the esteem in which the newly wedded couple are held on the Iron Isle. A feature of the ceremony was the rendition of the Bridal March by Mrs. John B. Murphy, sister of the groom, as the happy couple entered the reception room. The Telegram joins with the friends of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Lawton—and they are legion—in extending to them the congratulations due on such an occasion and wishing them many years of happy wedded life.

Temperance Committee.—Rev. Canon White, Rev. Edgar Jones, Ph.D., Rev. H. Uphill, Rev. Canon Field, Rev. J. Brinton, Rev. C. A. Moulton, Mr. R. R. Wood, Mr. J. A. Winter, Mr. H. S. Hayward, Mr. R. G. MacDonald, Sunday School Committee.—The Lord Bishop (ex-officio); Rev. Canon Smith, Rev. Canon White, Rev. Canon Bolt, Rev. Dr. Jones, Rev. H. Uphill, Rev. C. H. Barton, Hon. R. Watson, Mr. J. W. Withers, Mr. C. McK. Harvey, Mr. C. E. Hunt, Mr. H. A. Winter, Mr. Brian Dunfield.

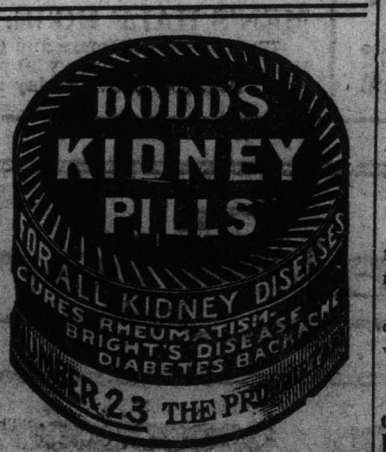

Debate on the Report of the Standing Committee on Education was resumed by Mr. Blackall which occupied the attention of the House for the remainder of the session, when it was on motion adjourned.

The Bishop announced that he would ask the Rev. Dr. Jones, Rector of St. Thomas's, to look after the spiritual needs of the volunteers belonging to the Church of England, residing at Headquarters.

The Bishop pronounced the Benediction and after singing the National Anthem the House adjourned.
