BASEBALL.

The amateur baneball season is now at an end, and the record of London's crack nine, the Alerts, is a credit to that team and to the baseball talent of the city. As will be seen by the appended table they have played 24 games, of which they have won 19, or about 50 per cent.—against the best teams in the Province, too. Of the five games lost, two were won by a home club, the Stars, two by the Blues-Harris combination of Tilsonburg, and one by the professional Boston Athetic Association team. The Alerts made 281 runs to their opponents' 154. The Toronto nines proved 'pie' every time. The records is as tollows:

Sir Henry Tyler on the Matter of G. T. R. Access to Ottawa.

Sir Henry Tyler, president of the G. T. R., gave a cordial reception to President J. M. Garland, of the Ottawa Board of Trade, and Senator Clemow. In their interview with him regarding G. T. R. access to Ottawa, Sir Henry said that he and the directors were alive to that matter, but the less said about it publicly at present the better. He didn't believe the C. P. R. could be induced to give up the St. Lawrence and Ottawa branch, so that there were little hopes of the Grand Trunk being able to reach Ottawa by that route. The title hopes of the Grand Trunk being able to reach Ottawa by that route. The Kingston, Smith's Falls and Ottawa projected railway was next talked over. The Dorchester Agricultural Society Make a Good Display-Other Exhibitions.

WEST LAMBTON.

PETROLEA, Ont., Sept. 30.—The West Lambton Fell Exhibition proved a great success, both financially and with regard to the quality of the live stock shown, which was the best ever exhibited in the town. There were a number of attractions, which drew a large crowd to-day, and the weather was all that could be desired. The directors of the association have reason to feel satisfied with the results, and the amalgamation of Enniskillen Agrieultural Society with that of Sarnia was a move in the right direction. The citizens of Petrolea subscribed $300 for special prizes, and sweepstakes were given by the association for thoroughred animals in cattle and horses.

DORCHESTER, Ont., Sept. 30.—The Dorchester Agricultural Society held their annual fair to-day on their beautiful grounds adjoining the village. The weather was all that could be desired and the attendance large, fully 3,000 persons being on the grounds. The exhibit of roots, grains and fruit was not up to the standard. The poultry and live stock was exceeding good.

The sport in the ring brought out quite a number of excellent horses, and some very good races were gone through with. The society contemplate holding a two-days' fair here hereafter, and enlarging and improving the grounds. Altogether it was the most successful fair the society has ever had.

THE COAL MONOPOLY.

Action of the New York State Senate Committee—The Combines Hiegal.

New York, Sept. 30.—The State Senate committee instructed to investigate the Reading coal combine listened to the recommendations of the counsel to the committee, D. S. Griffin and Thomas Jackson, The testimony, Mr. Griffin saids, showed that the Philadelphia and Reading Company and four other companies controlled the whole of the output of anthractic could and had raised its price without regard to the cost of production. It was against the laws of this State for any stock corporation to combine with another stock corporation to prevent competition in the production and sale of the necessaries of life. It was against the laws of this State for the railroads to combine to control the price of coal.

The committee resolved to adopt the recommendations of its counsel as its opinion, to refer it to the Attorney-General together with a copy of the testimony taken, and to ask him to take such legal steps as the may deem advisable, Action of the New Jersey Attorney-General.

FOURTEEN AND WANTED TO DIE.

Sarah's Mother Refused Her a Dress and She Took Faris Green.

New York, Sept. 30.—Sarah Jane Ryan, 14 years of age, who lives with her widowed mother at No. 259 West Nineteenth street, attempted suicide by swallowing a quantity of paris green.

Mrs. Ryan keeps boarders, and Sarah Jane refuses to work. Her evenings and far into the nights she spends dancing on the dock at the foot of West Eighteenth street with undesirable male and female companions. The other evening at the supper table Sarah said she wanted a new dress. Her mother refused to give her one and told her to "go down to the dock and jump in." The girl said she would and left the supper table. She took a bed sheet from the house and pawned it. With the money thus acquired she bought a lot of paris green. She then returned home, and, stepping into the room where her mother and cousin were seated, threw herself on a lounge with the remark, "Well, mother, I am going to die." Then, before any one could prevent her, she opened the box of poison and swallowed half its contents. She was seized with a violent attack of vomiting, and to this probably owes her life.

A policeman was summoned and Sarah was removed to the Now York hospital, where it is said she will probably recover.

There were two Galway sentiemen in court—let us call them Butke and Blake. "Burke," called out Blake, in the silence that succeded the sentenced. "Burke," readed the sentenced. "Burke," repeated Blake's voice, solemniy, "let that he a lesson to you." [Canada Presbyterian.]

What does the meeting of the Alliance look like? Well, it looks just like a meeting of the Canadian General Assembly, but otherwise on the care in the Assembly, but otherwise on entering the Alliance one might think he was entering the Canadian Court. Solidity is the chief characteristic. Brilliant men are there, no doubt, in considerable numbers, but the solid men predominate. A large majority of the members have passed the imaginary "dead line of 50," but they are a long was from being dead. An equal number of lively old divines never met in the city of Toronto.
